HISTORIC ALTON RAILROAD GOES ON BLOCK TODAY

$100,000,000 Line Formed in 1861.

The Chicago and Alton railroad, a public carrier operating 1,028 miles of track in Illinois and Missouri since civil war days, will be sold at public auction in foreclosure proceedings of the federal court at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Stockholders having failed in an eleventh hour effort to forestall what they described as confiscation of their $4,500,000 equity in the road, the auction will be held as scheduled on the platform of the depot at Wilmington, a village 15 miles south of Joliet and the first station out of Chicago which the Alton actually owns. Between here and Joliet the Alton operates over the Chicago and Joliet tracks on a perpetual fee hold.

B. & O. Expected to Buy.

The Alton properties, consolidated and developed by Chicago capitalists of the late 19th century, allegedly guided by the operations of the late Edward H. Harriman of New York between 1900 and 1904, and since dominated by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., a New York bank and investment house, are expected to be sold at today's sale to the Baltimore and Ohio railway. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. are bankers also for this road.

Although operated in receivership for the last eight years, the Alton still commands a rating by appraisal engineers as a first class property with respect to the condition of its equipment and right of way. Its book value has been set at $125,000,000 and its present worth, according to William G. Bierd, president and receiver of the company, is at least $100,000,000.

Stockholders Hit Banking House.

Despite this condition, the Baltimore and Ohio stands, on the eve of the auction, in the position of being the only bidder in the field to gain control of the Alton for an indicated price of $23,000,000, the stockholders contend. This situation has been criticized by the stockholders' protective committee and they have made Kuhn, Loeb & Co. the target of their attack.

Seeking to intervene in the reorganization and to have the auction suspended, the protective committee, through the law firm of Levinson, Becker, Glenn & Schwartz, with ex-Senator James A. Reed of Missouri as associate, presented to Federal Judge George A. Carpenter a petition in which the history of the relations of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. with the Alton were sketched.

By reference to the report of the interstate commerce commission on the Harriman consolidation schemes, the petition sought to show that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. were Harriman's agents in obtaining control of the road 21 years ago.

Formed by Chicago Pioneers.

Before 1899 the Alton was operated by Timothy B. Blackstone, Chicago pioneer. The company had been incorporated in 1861 as the Chicago and Alton Railway company, representing a consolidation of the Alton and St. Louis; Chicago, Alton and St. Louis; Jacksonville and Chicago, and the Chicago and Joliet lines.

In consolidating and operating these lines, Mr. Blackstone's principal backers were Marshall Field, John Crerar, John B. Drake, and John J. Mitchell. Mr. Mitchell's interest in the Alton arose from the fact that his bank, years before the civil war, had operated a river ferry between Alton and St. Louis as a complement of the railroad.

Harriman Takes Control.

In 1898 Mr. Blackstone retired from the presidency on account of age and poor health and the following year, according to one version of the incident, Mr. Mitchell invited Mr. Harriman to come into the Alton and take control. Harriman at this time was looming on the financial horizon as the coming railroad dictator of North America. He had performed spectacular financing with the Illinois Central and the Union Pacific, which latter road he had snatched from the Morgan interests following the panic of 1893.

Prior to Harriman's control the records show the road had been paying a regular annual dividend exceeding 6 per cent on a capitalization of $39,000,000. Its total liabilities were $33,000,000. The stockholders' petition, filed in an effort to block today's sale, cited the history of the Alton road as set forth in the interstate commerce commission's report of July 11, 1907.

To acquire the road Harriman, Mortimer L. Schiff, George J. Gould, and James Stillman formed a syndicate, with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. as syndicate

STATEMENT ON TREASURY 'RAID' BRINGS ATTACK

Relief Bill Debate Waxes Hot.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—The senate was rampant today over President Hoover's charges that certain members of congress were "playing politics with human misery" and that certain relief measures were attempted "raids upon the public treasury."

With Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader, at their head, the Democrats spent a large part of the day in aggressive verbal attacks on the President and his policy.

In a bitter speech that at times became scathingly personal and that brought a counter charge of "campaign propaganda" from the Republican side of the house Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] demanded an apology from the White House.

Statement Is Assailed.

"The statement given out by the President," he said, "is unworthy of the chief executive of this or any other nation. If the President is worthy of his office, he will apologize to the senate. If he is unworthy"—the Tennessee senator's voice dropped insinuatingly—"he will not apologize."

Support came to the Democrats from the radical Republican ranks. The resolution introduced yesterday by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rep., Wis.] calling on the senate to prefer relief measures to measures in the interest of "wealthy income tax payers" did not come up for discussion. But debate on the President's 110 million dollar emergency construction measure brought forth Wisconsin's junior senator, John J. Blaine, to join the vehement anti-Hoover ranks.

Senator Robinson served notice that the pledge of coöperation which he and six other Democratic leaders signed prior to the opening of congress still left him free to go his own course when his course and the President's did not coincide.

Robinson for Amendment.

In his turn he called on President Hoover to coöperate and plainly showed what he thought of the President's insistence that the budget be respected when he voted for Senator Blaine's amendment of the construction bill calling for an outright donation of $80,000,000 to the states for road work.

Senator McKellar began the day's attack. He had served notice yesterday that he wanted time for a speech and he broke into the debate on the emergency bill to carry out his plan.

"The President gave out a statement assaulting each and every member of this body," he declared. "This assault was unprovoked, unjustifiable, unconstitutional and untrue in fact.

Chose "The Angry Way."

"Instead of sending a message to the senate in the manner provided in the constitution, he took the unconstitutional, the angry way, and ran to the newspapers with his statement."

The Tennesseean's gray forelock tumbled wrathfully over his eyebrows and his voice rose to a shout.

"The President directs a tirade of abuse at us for adding $35,000,000 to the $25,000,000 he thought was enough to lend the distressed farmers," Senator McKellar went on. "He talks about raids on the public treasury.

"I say his statement is untrue in fact, and that his every attitude toward the farmer is one of ignorance and utter incapacity. The President is the last man who ought to object to raids upon the public treasury in view of his own record along that line."

Cites Records of "Raids."

Senator McKellar proceeded to outline that record of what he termed "raids on the public treasury" by the President: $35,000,000 for the shipping board construction fund and other sums for mail carrying subsidies; this year's $160,000,000 income tax reduction, which the senator said had been ordered in order to help those who gambled and lost on the stock market; the sum of $49,400,000 to build new warships under the London naval treaty, which the senator said was designed to increase the steel trust's profits; last year's $130,000,000

$166,687,878 INCOME TAX PAID; DELINQUENT COLLECTIONS INCREASE

Collector of Internal Revenue Myrtle Tanner Blackidge announced yesterday that income tax collections for this year up to and including Dec. 9 amounted to $166,687,878 as compared with $182,792,065 for the corresponding period last year. Delinquent collections so far this year amounted to $19,560,540 as against $17,664,324 for this period in 1929.

Most of this increase in delinquent taxes—which is believed to represent tax on income derived from illegal sources—was attributed by Collector Blackidge to the campaign instituted by the government against bootleggers and which has already resulted in the conviction of Ralph Capone and Jack Guzik, gangsters, and County Assessor Gene Oliver.

Mrs. Blackidge anticipates perhaps $1,500,000 more collections in delinquent taxes from this sort of revenue. Negotiations are well under way for the payment of this amount from well known bootleggers, it was reported. The deadline for payment on the quarterly installment expires at midnight next Monday.

Free Mother of Killer Who Dies Tonight

Mrs. Julia Glovka of Cleveland, mother of William Lenhardt, convicted slayer who is sentenced to be electrocuted at midnight tonight, was acquitted in record time last night of charges of plotting to aid her son to escape from the county jail. A jury in Judge Joseph Sabath's court returned the acquittal verdict for Mrs. Glovka and two co-defendants after 35 minutes of deliberation.

Mrs. Glovka was charged with being the leader of the escape plot, which was thwarted by Jail Warden David Moneypenny on Nov. 4. It was found at the time that Lenhardt was in possession of a loaded automatic pistol and that he had sawed through the bars of his cell. The prosecution charged that Mrs. Glovka had purchased the pistol and given it to John Soske, a friend of Lenhardt, to smuggle in to the prisoner. Soske was arrested as he was waiting for Lenhardt to escape and join him in a taxicab. He confessed.

Two Other Defendants.

Joseph Connior, 62 years old, a former guard in the jail, and Walter Wheeler, Negro trusty in the jail, were co-defendants with Mrs. Glovka.

Connior, it was charged, smuggled in the revolver, the saws, and other weapons to Lenhardt. Wheeler was alleged to have assisted in the work of sawing the bars. Frank Bell, now condemned to death for murder, was involved in the plot with Lenhardt, but he confessed.

When the acquittal verdict was read Mrs. Glovka jumped to her feet and kissed her attorney, Miss Charlotte Slavitt.

Prepares for Execution.

As the jury was bringing in its verdict Warden Moneypenny was making preparations for the execution of Lenhardt, who shot and killed a restaurant owner during an attempted robbery. The warden started his final preparations when he was notified that every effort had apparently been exhausted in behalf of the slayer.

Attorney Wilbur Crowley, now one of the public defenders, who was Lenhardt's attorney before his appointment, said that he would not file an insanity petition.

He has had a committee of alienists examine Lenhardt, and they have reported that the prisoner is sane. The Supreme court and the state pardon board have turned down pleas for a new trial or a stay of execution.

$44,500 PARED FROM CITY'S BUDGET BY COUNCIL COMMITTEE

Seven members of the council finance committee last night made tentative estimates on the 1931 appropriations for a few city departments. The final result, which will be subject to one or more revisions before the budget is approved, was that the aldermen cut the total $44,500 under this year's appropriations.

According to the figures of City Controller Schmidt, the aldermen will have to cut the total $3,000,000 under the 1930 expenditures. The committee, for the first time in many years, pared the amount for the mayor's office, subtracting $500 from this year's appropriation of $63,820. Then they appropriated for only forty-two aldermen for a full year and for eight aldermen for nine months, as eight seats will be vacant due to the resignations of aldermen.

Guardsmen Save Rummers; Put Them on Rum Ship

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Nine rum runners were transferred from one liquor ship to another tonight with the aid of the coast guard. The men were rescued from their burning liquor laden ship by the coast guard cutter Montgomery last night. Tonight they were put to sea again in their own dory near the rum runner Malahat off San José point, Mexico, radio messages said.

Girl, Police Sergeant Flee After Crash

Joseph H. Braun, 7311 Oglesby avenue, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club, and two other men were injured last night when their automobile was struck from the rear by another car at 67th street and Clyde avenue. The others injured are Braun's brother, Isadore H. Braun, an architect, also residing at 7311 Oglesby avenue, and William C. Greatman, 6524 Clyde avenue, said to be an attorney for the Chicago Motor Coach company.

As a result of the accident Manley Crory, 34 years old, 1941 West Garfield boulevard, a chauffeur for William C. Cummings, 4900 Woodlawn avenue, president of the Drovers Trust and Savings bank, was in custody and the police were searching for Sergt. Frank McGinty of the south parks police force and a blonde young woman. McGinty and the girl fled from the scene after the car in which they were riding with Crory struck the Brauns' automobile.

Charged with Intoxication.

Crory was charged with reckless driving, assault with an automobile, and driving while intoxicated. Sergt. McGinty also had been drinking, according to the Woodlawn police.

The Brauns and Greatman were taken to the Illinois Central hospital, where Joseph Braun's injuries were discovered not to be serious and he was removed to his home. Isadore Braun received cuts on the head and body and Greatman suffered a possible skull fracture. His condition was said to be critical.

Mrs. Rea K. Pinkerton, 61 years old, of 690 Longwood drive, Glencoe, died in the Highland Park hospital early today of injuries received last night when struck by an automobile driven by James Carlson, 24 years old, a dairy driver. Witnesses told police that Mrs. Pinkerton crossed the street at Park avenue and Sheridan road against a red traffic light and was struck by Carlson's machine. Carlson and Leo Hinkle of 8 North 2d street, Highland Park, who also was riding the car, were ordered to attend the inquest this morning.

Killed at Crossing.

T. S. Roberts, 70 years old, of Hollywood, Ill., was killed when his automobile was struck by a Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad passenger train at a crossing in Hollywood. Witnesses told police that Roberts apparently stalled his car after driving on to the tracks. The crossing is protected by a warning bell.

These deaths and two others raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 1,056. The other victims:

Clovin Landry, 60 years old, colored, 3765 Rhodes avenue. Fatally injured when struck by an automobile while crossing South Park way at 37th street. The driver, William Norwood, 554 East 36th street, was held.

Gregory Popescue, 8 years old, 6008½ Princeton avenue. Died at his home of injuries received on Monday when struck by an automobile in front of 275 West 63d street. The driver was William J. Hall, 7201 Harvard avenue.

Agree on Program to Put 150,000 Rail Men to Work

Washington, D. "Suicide" Hunts Up Wife and Gets Face Slapped

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Eleven months ago Alex Kozeken quarreled with his wife. He erected a large cross beside the bay, wrote a farewell note, piled his clothing at the water's edge, and disappeared. Today he returned and sought his wife. She slapped his face and slammed the door.

Business Will Leap Ahead When Normal Buying Rules

Who is it that isn't buying normally? Well, for one group, there are those who would like to be buying, but can't because their incomes have been seriously reduced or cut off. There is no reason to urge this group to buy normally. They would gladly buy if it were possible for them to buy.

The group that is being urged to buy are those who can well afford to buy, but who, for no particularly good reason, have cut down on their expenditures.

This group constitutes by far the largest part of the population. Their incomes are steady. The amounts they are receiving regularly are generally as large today as they were a year or so ago. Moreover, they need a lot of things and normally would be buying a great many things.

Most people are in one or the other of these two groups. It's the second group that holds the key to the present situation. Normal buying on the part of the second group will steady business. Steady business will result in jobs for those in the first group. Then everybody again will be able to buy normally.

PILOT STARVES IN YUKON WASTE, BUT 2 SURVIVE

Fought Hunger and Cold Two Months.

BY MARY BARROWS.

[California novelist and short story writer, who accompanied her husband, Pilot W. J. (Joe) Barrows, to the north in search of the missing aviator, Capt. E. J. A. (Paddy) Burke, and two companions. Joe Barrow's plane was wrecked during the hunt.]
[Copyright, 1930: By the New York Times.]

WHITEHORSE, Yukon Territory, Dec. 10.—Paddy Burke is dead. They found his body, watched over by two emaciated companions, 40 miles up the Llard river from where the ice-locked plane in which he and the two others disappeared Oct. 11 had been sighted Nov. 24.

It was one of the most dramatic stories of this dramatic frozen northland ever to be told that came today from the cracked lips of Emil Kading, mechanic, and "Three Fingered Bob" Marten, prospector, after they were lifted from the rescue plane of Pilot Everett L. Wasson.

Overlooked 15 Days Ago.

Pilot Wasson, with Joe Walsh, prospector, as a guide, has been flying for weeks in the search for Capt. E. J. A. Burke. Once, 15 days ago, the rescued men said, he flew directly over them without seeing the feebly waving arms of the prostrate men on the ground beside the body of their dead comrade. Twice before the rescue plane had been sighted by the wanderers, each time too far away to signal, and they had no beacon fire to light.

After Capt. Burke's death of starvation and exposure on Nov. 20, the mechanic and prospector decided to cease their fruitless hiking. They had no camp, but made their home in their sleeping bags on the open ground. Three days ago, after they had become resigned to a slow death from the cold and hunger, there came to their ears again the sound of an airplane motor. Mustering their last remaining ounces of strength, they hastily swept together all combustible objects they could find and lit a smudge. Pilot Wasson saw it.

Lands Ten Miles Away.

Steering for the thin blue wisp of smoke, Pilot Wasson sighted the figures on the ground and swooped low, circling above them. There was no place to land nearby. Turning back, he came down ten miles away, setting the skils of his plane gently on the wide sweep of an open snowfield.

Pilot Wasson and Prospector Walsh donned their snowshoes and started the long mush back to the spot they had located, but once again disaster threatened. A sudden blizzard blew up. But with lowered heads the two pushed on, blindly at times, but following their compass as best they could through the driving snowstorm. When they thought they had reached the vicinity, they shouted into the storm. Call after call went unanswered.

"We were afraid we had missed the place," Pilot Wasson said, "until suddenly we heard the crack of a rifle and turned toward the direction of the sound. Marten had heard us, but was too weak to answer. He had fired the last bullet of their original dozen rounds of ammunition to attract our attention, a bullet they had been hoarding carefully for such a final grave emergency."

Without Food Twenty-three Days.

When they hopped from Atlin, B. C., on Oct. 10, landed at Liard post and started the return trip the next day, they carried but little food in the plane, all the weight capacity being utilized for a heavy load of knocked down sluice boxes Marten was taking to his partner. This meager supply of grub soon was exhausted after the plane was forced down in the narrow canyon of the frozen upper Liard river, for the men, confident they soon would reach some trapper's cabin, did not load it as carefully as they might have. In consequence for 23 days they were without a morsel of food. The plane's pontoons broke when it was forced down, said Kading.

Then Marten shot a buck. On Nov. 15 Kading killed a caribou. From the juice of the animal they made a thin soup and forced some of it through Capt. Burke's lips. He was too weak to take any of the meat. "Three Fingered Bob" had lost 50 pounds in weight, Kading had lost 21, but Capt. Burke had no reserve weight to draw upon. Five days later he died.

"We ate mighty sparingly of the caribou meat, did Kading and I," said "Three Fingered Bob" weakly, "for we didn't know when we would be found, if ever, and our chances of making another kill with our one remaining bullet were pretty slim. The food Joe Walsh has been feeding us the last three days has saved our lives."

The faces of both men are covered with heavy beards. Kading has a frozen hand and Marten a frozen foot. Both are so weak they can scarcely talk and their story was told in brief snatches, much of it to Prospector Walsh and Pilot Wasson during the last three days.

After half-carrying the victims to the plane, Pilot Wasson found he would be unable to take off with the additional weight of Capt. Burke's body, so it was left behind in the carefully marked spot in the wilderness where the former royal Canadian air force flyer had died. Pilot Wasson will return immediately and bring the remains to Whitehorse. From here the body will be sent to Atlin, where the flyer's wife and two children have been waiting silently, hopefully for news ever since he disappeared.

Fear 3 Others Dead.

At least three other lives are believed to have been claimed in this tragic epic of the north, those of Pilot Robin [Pat] Renahan, Samuel J. Clerf and Frank Hatcher, who set out from Seattle to hunt for Capt. Burke and vanished on Oct. 28, somewhere between Prince Rupert, B. C., and Ketchikan, Alaska. The fate of two other searchers is uncertain. They are Pilot R. I. Van der Byl and Mechanic T. H. Cressy, left at Thudade lake, south of Atlin, in the remote interior of British Columbia by Co-Pilot W. A. Joerss, a former German war ace, when the plane could take off only with one man. Joers' pilot's license later was revoked by the Canadian government, for he was under temporary suspension at the time he flew out with the plane.

Besides Pilot Renahan's plane, which is believed forever lost, two other machines were damaged in the long drawn out search. Two cabin monoplanes owned by Edward Lowe Jr. of San Francisco and piloted by Harry Blunt and W. J. [Joe] Barrows suffered in forced landings, one of them being completely destroyed. The other is being repaired.

The hunt for the Burke and Renahan parties assumed international proportions and was one of the most dramatic episodes since the sad disappearance in November last year of Col. Carl Ben Eilson and Borland and the finding of their bodies weeks later in the snow of Siberia.

Renahan and Burke Pals.

Pilot Renahan, a friend of Capt. Burke's and himself a former flight commander of the royal air force in the world war, volunteered to hunt for his former buddy and obtained permission from the company by which he was employed, the Alaska-Washington Airways, to use one of their fast seaplanes. Clerf, a wealthy mining man familiar with the route Capt. Burke probably was following, since he had made a flight with him over the same course, went along as guide. Hatcher was Pilot Renahan's mechanic.

Private planes, the United States coast guard, the Canadian fisheries patrol, two Canadian government mapping planes, commercial fishermen and two United States army amphibian planes searched in vain for Pilot Renahan, while the concentrated search for Capt. Burke went on several hundred miles to the east. The navy flyers were the last to drop the Renahan hunt, only giving up the task last week, and are now on their way home to their base at San Diego.

NEW INDICTMENTS IN BAIL INQUIRY PREDICTED TODAY

Assistant State's Attorney A. C. De Witt yesterday announced that he expects additional indictments from the grand jury this afternoon in the bail bond investigation. He said that he will present evidence against more professional bondsmen. He refused, however, to give the names of the witnesses to be called or the names of the persons expected to be named in the new true bills.

The prosecutor said that so far he has been unable to make any progress in the investigation ordered by the jury in regard to the differing testimony of Judge Joseph Schulman of the Municipal court and Sergt. Harvey Gwynn of the detective bureau. The sergeant said that the judge gave him authority over the telephone to sign his name to some bonds and the judge has denied this.

Chief Justice John P. McGoorty, who ordered the bond investigation, said yesterday that he expects to have the central bail bond bureau for both the Criminal and Municipal courts in operation soon. At a meeting with Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court the principle of the bureau was worked out satisfactorily, it was said.

JOE MONTANA'S SON IS JAILED BY U. S. FOR PERJURY

Mauro Montana, son of Joe Montana, Melrose Park bootlegger, was sentenced to ninety days in the Cook county jail by Federal Judge Wilkerson yesterday when he pleaded guilty to perjury. He was charged with making false affidavits in filing an application for citizenship.

In 1927, according to the government, Montana told Naturalization Officer Fred J. Schlotfeldt that he had only been arrested once and that for disorderly conduct. The government learned that, with his father, he had been arrested, indicted and tried for murder in 1924. They were accused then of the murder of Policeman Lawrence Hartnett and the shooting of Lieut. Steve Barry.

Chief of British Prisons Will Try to Meet Capone

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Alexander Paterson, commissioner of prisons, will sail on Dec. 27 for a four months' study of American penitentiaries. He will spend two weeks in Chicago and expects to visit Joliet. Mr. Paterson hopes to arrange a meeting with Al Capone, since he considers gang activity has an important bearing on the treatment of prisoners.

ASKS JUDGMENTS FOR $15,700,000 UNPAID TAXES

Judgments against 500,000 pieces of property for delinquent special assessments for 1929, totaling $15,700,000, were asked in the County court yesterday by County Treasurer Joseph B McDonough. Property owners have until Monday to file objections against the assessments. Sale of the property on which special assessments are unpaid will be started Dec. 22 in the county building.

The unpaid special assessments represent levies by the city, county, park districts, and other municipalities in the county against properties benefiting from public improvements.

The number of delinquent special assessments for 1929 is approximately 350 per cent greater than in 1928, when 140,000 items were ordered sold. The sale of the special assessments is conducted the same as the sale of tax bills for general taxes. Tax buyers bid for the bills.

Under the new laws the special assessments may be sold before the general assessments instead of afterwards as formerly required.

TWO FLEE INSANE ASYLUM.

Police last night began search for two patients who yesterday morning escaped from the Chicago state hospital for the insane at 6500 Irving Park boulevard. The fugitives are Karl Karner, 47 years old, and Albert Gaing, 53 years old, a Negro.

FEDERAL AGENTS LISTEN AS MORAN TELLS OF INCOME

Bugs Portrays Himself as Business Man.

Public Enemy George [Bugs] Moran took the stand in his own defense yesterday in his vagrancy trial before a Lake county jury in Waukegan and portrayed himself as a reputable Chicago business man with a substantial income.

His testimony as to the size of his income, given to support his claims to respectability, may prove a boomerang to the former north side booze gangster. It was learned that federal agents were interested listeners when Bugs told about the money he had made. It was reported that the income figures would be used as a possible basis for questioning Moran on his untaxed income.

Crowd Attends Trial.

Moran took the stand in his own defense after eighteen witnesses for the state, chiefly policemen, recited his record as shown on police blotters and recalled his pals, Dean O'Banion, Earl [Hymie] Weiss, Vincent [Schemer] Drucci, and Frank Gusenberg, all in gangland's Valhalla.

The courtroom was crowded with spectators. So great was the crush that a door was partly broken as the crowd surged back into the courtroom after a recess, called when the state rested its case. Moran, clad in a gray suit with a black stripe, blue tie, white shirt, gray socks, and black shoes, sat unmoved with his wife and Mrs. Elizabeth Cassidy, proprietor of a Lake Bluff resort at which Moran was arrested, during the procession of prosecuting witnesses.

Calls Moran Business Man.

Attorney Claire C. Edwards, who with Attorney Richard I. Gavin represents Moran, made a statement for the defense. He stated that Moran was not a vagrant under the statute which holds a man a vagrant who does not make a living by lawful means. He declared Moran to be a Chicago business man and property owner. Moran was then called to the stand and asked to state his name and age.

"George Clarence Moran, 37 years old, vice president of the Central Cleaners and Dyers, 2705 Fullerton avenue," he said proudly.

There was a general titter through the courtroom at the mention of the middle name.

Moran said he received an income of $100 a week from the company and held 200 of its total of 600 shares. He added that he owned seven lots valued at between $12,000 and $13,000 in Berkeley Lawn. He told of purchasing and selling shares and bonds of the American Telephone and Telegraph company since 1926. He listed profits in the transactions and said that he now owns 50 shares in the company.

The state began a review of Moran's criminal record by calling Sheriff James Reeder of McLean county and Herbert Loer, formerly jailer at Bloomington, Ill., to the stand. They testified that Moran had been arrested in 1912 and 1913 in Bloomington, once for the theft of a horse, buggy and harness and again for larceny. Moran winced as the first episode drew general laughter from the court fans.

Chief of Detectives John Norton told of Moran's identification by a boy witness as the assailant of John Torrio, Capone's predecessor as gang chief. Torrio refused to confirm the identification from his bed in a hospital, Norton said.

Photographs Are Shown.

Capt. William Schoemaker, former chief of detectives, showed photographs taken at O'Banion's funeral and identified Drucci, Weiss, Moran, Gusenberg, and Matt Foley, former assistant circulation manager of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, now under indictment for operating a lottery, among the pallbearers.

The testimony of George Kargonis, a private detective, who was employed by State's Attorney Smith to get evidence of liquor violation by Mrs. Cassidy, ocered an interlude in the trial. Kargonis told of seeing drinks served by Mrs. Cassidy. Mrs. Cassidy, in a stage whisper, said: "You lie."

On adjournment, Mrs. Cassidy lunged at Kargonis, shouting, "You liar. I'll get you." She was restrained by a bailiff and led from the courtroom. Attorneys announced that they expect to complete the trial today.

Hearing Today on Barker Writ.

The Supreme court yesterday allowed a motion for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of George ["Red"] Barker, public enemy labor racketeer recently sent to Joliet penitentiary. A hearing will be held today.

Johnny Genaro, 515 West 28th street, brother of Joseph ("Pepe") Genaro, public enemy, who maintained before four Municipal court judges that he was not a vagrant, was freed by Judge Justin F. McCarthy.

Bernard O'Donnell, west side beer runner and hoodlum, did not appear before Judge Peter M. Schwaba in the Criminal court, where he was to be arraigned on a charge of perjury. Detectives were awaiting him with a vagrancy warrant. The judge ordered his bond of $10,000 forfeited over protests of Attorney Milton D. Smith.

BUNDESEN SINGS CITY'S PRAISE AS OTHERS CONDEMN

McGoorty, Hatton, Jacobs Point to Faults.

What ails Chicago?

Professor, efficiency expert, and judge answered that question last night before the Men's Club of Sinai at the Emil G. Hirsch center community house. It was a physician, however, who sang the praises of Chicago—Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, coroner.

Prof. A. R. Hatton of Northwestern university, J. L. Jacobs, head of the county's efficiency staff, and Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court listed what in their opinions were the faults of our local government. The audience, as described by Dr. Louis L. Mann of Sinai temple, consisted of 500 red-blooded men.

Prof. Hatton Tells Faults.

Prof. Hatton found these faults:

Chicago has shown no progress in government in 25 years, but that is not altogether to be blamed on our citizenry. We are deprived of the power of self-government and home rule, being hampered by a legislature that retains control of us and administers our affairs at Springfield. There is a complication of government both within and without the city.

Mr. Jacobs discussed the 153 officials we elect nearly every year or every other year and the 353 officials we elect every two years in Cook county, and the 31 separate tax levying and tax spending bodies in the city and the 415 of the same politically controlled bodies in the county.

Asks Aid in War on Crime.

Judge McGoorty drew applause when he appealed to the "500 red blooded men" for aid in the war on crime. He told of his charges to the grand juries under his control and what they had learned.

"I know wheeof I speak when I say that organized vice and crime is being protected," he asserted. "There is a three cornered connection between dishonest police, organized crime and crooked politics. It is true that the mayor is head of the police as well as the fire department and therefore we must have an honest, courageous and able mayor." After much hand clapping he continued:

"Men have told me in chambers they feared for their lives to go into the grand jury room and tell the truth. Well, I am thinking of those fine, honorable, decent young men who crossed the mine ridden ocean for the honor and glory and the safety of their country when I say the time has come for the civic minded citizen to take some risks and to brave dangers for his government, his home, his family and children, his church, his God, and all he holds dear."

City Is Sound, Bundesen Says.

Dr. Bundesen said Chicago's reputation is not what it should be, although admitting that a few faults may be found. The city does need a preventive, he diagnosed, but otherwise it is sound and healthy.

"For every gangster—every Al Capone—there are hundreds of fine, clean, loyal citizens who are bringing up their children in honesty, culture, education, and who are leading proper lives and are paying their debts and buying homes," Dr. Bundesen declared. "For every representative of crime or vice there are hundreds of thousands of God fearing people who attend the 1,700 churches of our city and who live up to their church teachings.

"Chicago has three great universities. In a year 14,000,000 books of its public library are read."

Believed Income Exempt, He Testifies.

The muddled business affairs of State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien [29th] were spread upon the court record before Federal Judge Lindley yesterday in an effort to show that the legislator and teaming contractor had no bookkeeping system and could not have known that he owed the government about $31,000 in income taxes.

O'Brien himself gave that interpretation from the witness stand, which he occupied most of the day. He spent hours examining checks handed him by his attorney, James A. O'Callaghan, which represented outgoing expenditures for his business in 1926, 1927, and 1928, the years covered by the indictment. Half of the time he couldn't recall from memory upon what expenses the checks represented payment, and was then forced to refer to memoranda or bills of sale.

Halt His Life Story.

The defendant took the stand in midmorning and began a recital of his life, particularly his business rise from the time he was 12 years old. This proceeded a few minutes and was then ordered stopped, the court sustaining an objection from First Assistant United States Attorney Cassius Poust, who said the autobiographical monologue was irrelevant, save the portion that bore upon the years named in the indictment.

He gave his age as 39 years and said he lived with his wife and two children at 71 Cedar street. In his autobiography he had progressed through his early years before he was stopped, and told of leaving school in the fourth grade to help his mother, then a matron at the House of Correction, to support the family.

Thus, he began work as a teamster when he was 12 years old, he said, and in the succeeding twenty-seven years had built his one team concern into a business of fifty-six horses and twenty-three motor trucks. At that point Mr. Poust charged irrelevancy and O'Callaghan skipped to the business at hand.

Does Not Keep Books.

He said that he would next show that out of the $436,776 of incoming receipts O'Brien gathered in 1926, 1927, and 1928 his business operations forced him to spend about $296,000 in salaries and overhead. He began questioning his client on his business methods.

Q.—How did you pay the teamsters and truck drivers employed by you [during the years in question]? A.—By cash every Friday night.

Q.—Did you keep books or accounts of money paid out to them by you? A.—No.

Q.—Why not? A.—Because I could not keep books and did not employ a bookkeeper.

Q.—Did you file an income tax return on money received by you during 1926, 1927 and 1928? A.—No.

Believes Income Exempt, Claim.

Q.—Why not? A.—Because while I was in Springfield other representatives and state senators told be that my salary was exempt from tax and all money received from the sanitary district or other taxing bodies. (It was brought out by the government that about 80 per cent of O'Brien's receipts came from contracts executed for the sanitary district, the city, and the Lincoln park commissioners.)

Mr. O'Callaghan brought out that his client believed that the money he received from the taxing bodies, being part of government contracts, was exempt. Having business expenses of almost $300,000 and claiming that accounts in banks contained another $100,000, which he said did not represent income, O'Brien totaled about $400,000 of his receipts as legitimate deductions. What tax he should have paid on the remaining $36,000 was trivial, he claimed.

Identifies Many Checks.

Mr. O'Callahan then began to unroll bundles of checks and bills of sale, receipts, and outgoing vouchers, passing them over to his client for explanation. Most of the time he could not specify what this money had been spent for without consulting an attached memorandum.

It was a haphazard way of operating a business, his attorney admitted, but the only way O'Brien knew. Last January, said O'Callaghan, after O'Brien learned that the government was investigating his income, he sent auditors to the firms he had dealt with, seeking back information on transactions. These auditors will take the stand probably today.

In the late afternoon Attorney O'Callaghan attempted to introduce a document showing that O'Brien had lost $2,000 which was the amount of a bond he posted for William Burke, accused of election frauds in 1926. This was ruled out of the evidence.

The legislator was still identifying 1926 checks at the close of the day and will complete that year and the next two this morning, his lawyer said. As the session ended, Judge Lindley suggested that some method be found to expedite the proceeding and it is expected that the trial will move more swiftly today.

It is considered possible that the case may be in the hands of a jury by nightfall.

Girl Beats Lindy's Record

Ruth Nichols of Rye, N. Y., who flew across the continent west to east in 13 hours 21 minutes 43 seconds (flying time), making only one stop—at Wichita, Kas. Col. Charles A. POLISH DEPUTIES DEMAND RELEASE OF TEN IN PRISON

WARSAW, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Opposition deputies at today's plenary session of parliament introduced an urgent motion demanding the immediate release of ten deputies, elected to the present session of the diet, who were jailed during the election campaign recently.

Seven of those held are radical deppties. Three are Ukrainians, including Dmytro and Lewicki, two of the most prominent Ukrainians in Poland.

Woman Collects Evidence.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Ten days travel in Polish Ukraine has convinced Mary Sheepshanks of London, secretary of the International Women's League for Peace and Freedom, that atrocities were committed against many Ukrainians during the recent election campaigns. Miss Sheepshanks hopes to lay her information before Premier MacDonald.

Bank Corpn. to Give 8,000 Employes Christmas Bonus

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association of California, controlled by the Trans-America corporation, will distribute extra compensation aggregating $570,000 to 8,000 employés prior to Christmas, A. J. Mount, chairman of the board, announced today. An announcement said the bonus is considerably less than half the total of similar awards of extra compensation made by the bank since the beginning of the year.

AVIATRIX SETS RECORD FLYING ACROSS NATION

Ruth Nichols Betters Lindbergh Mark.

New York, Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Miss Ruth Nichols, a New York girl, set her red and cream monoplane down on muddy Roosevelt field this afternoon just 13 hours 21 minutes and 43 seconds [flying time] out of Burbank, Cal., thus breaking Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's speed record across the continent and coming within 56 minutes and 40 seconds of the record held by Capt. Frank Hawks. All women's records for long distance speed flying were shattered by her.

She circled several times above Roosevelt field before coming down and thus she lost two minutes more she might have knocked off her mark.

Miss Nichols made the cross-country flight in two hops, one from Los Angeles to Wichita, Kan., where she landed at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon after three hours' blind flying through fog, and the other from Wichita to Roosevelt field today. She was in the air 7 hours and 1 minute between Los Angeles and Wichita.

Last Lap Fast One.

She left Wichita at 7:41 [central standard time] this morning and flew here in 6 hours 21 minutes and 43 seconds. By that hop she broke all existing women's records.

The difference between Miss Nichols' flight and those of Col. Lindbergh last Easter Sunday and Capt. Hawks a short time later was that Lindbergh and Hawks completed their flights in one day and Miss Nichols spent the night in Wichita, the refueling place for all three of them. In all three cases only the actual flying time was counted.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh made the flight in 14 hours and 43 minutes. Capt. Hawks lowered it to 13 hours 25 minutes and 3 seconds.

Miss Nichols beat Col. Lindbergh's flying time by 1 hour 21 minutes and 17 seconds.

Australian's Record Broken.

The previous women's record for the west to east flight was held by Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, the Australian flyer, who flew from Los Angeles to New York in 21 hours and 47 minutes, elapsed time.

The girl from New York flew a Lockhead-Vega cabin monoplane named the New Cincinnati. She carried radio and oxygen equipment for high altitude flying. The plane was driven by a 425 horsepower Pratt & Whitney motor.

WOLFE EVADES COUNCIL AGAIN IN BRIDGE QUIZ

Aldermen Aroused by His Failure to Appear.

Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works, yesterday evaded questioning about the Wabash avenue bridge contracts by refusing to appear at the meeting of the council committee on efficiency, economy, and rehabilitation. It was the second time that Wolfe has failed to appear before the committee which is investigating alleged irregularities in the contracts, and the aldermen were aroused.

Despite the absence of Wolfe the committee delved further into contracts let by him. They said they found evidence that Wolfe had let a contractor proceed with work before the contract was signed, and this, they declared, was a violation of the law. The aldermen also found evidence, they said, that in one contract alone the city has lost $161,760 because Wolfe threw out the low bid and accepted a higher one.

Albert Rips Into Wolfe.

Ald. Arthur F. Albert [43d], who started the investigation, was joined by other members of the committee in criticizing Wolfe for his disregard of the committee's invitation, which, the aldermen said, was sent to him five days ago. Albert declared that if he were a member of the committee he would ask Mayor Thompson to remove Wolfe forthwith for "this effrontery."

"This investigation is for the purpose of instituting reforms to save the taxpayers' money and if ever anything was a direct affront to the aldermen and the people they represent it is Wolfe's refusal to coöperate," said Ald. cAlbert. "We should be in a position to compel his attendance. What would a board of directors do if an employé failed to respond to a summons to appear before them? They would get a new employé."

What to Do to Get Him?

"What do we have to do to get Wolfe to attend?" asked Ald. John A. Massen [48th]. "We want to get his opinions on some things."

"O, he'll come in when he gets through reading speeches and cutting ribbons," answered Ald. Clement A. Nance [7th].

The committee had no more success in getting the attendance of a city employé named Cordell who supervised the caisson construction of the north viaduct approach to the bridge. Ald. Massen requested Cordell's presence and Loran D. Gayton, city engineer, said he could be reached in a few minutes. When the committee adjourned after a two hour session Cordell had not appeared.

With Victor S. Petterson, deputy city controller, as a witness, the committee scrutinized the contract for the construction of the north approach to the bridge, which Wolfe let to the Ketler-Elliott company instead of to the low bidder, the E. J. Albrecht company.

The aldermen paid particular attention to two items of caisson excavation, the estimated quantity of which totaled 2,200 cubic feet. On both items the Ketler-Elliott company bid $10 a cubic foot while the Albrecht company bid $2 a cubic foot on one item and $1.90 on the other.

After the contract was let the quantity was increased to 20,100 cubic feet, for which the Ketler-Elliott company is demanding payment of $201,000, the aldermen said they learned. After figuring for a few minutes Ald. Albert said the Albrecht company would have done the work for $39,240 and declared that the difference between the two figures, $161,760, is a direct loss to the city through Wolfe's methods of awarding contracts.

54 More Policemen.

"How many policemen would that $161,760 keep on the pay roll?" Ald. Massen asked Petterson.

"The city could have 54 more policemen with that sum, counting in equipment and the overhead in commanding officers," Petterson replied.

The committee had before it a statement from the William J. Newman company, which had a subcontract from the Ketler-Elliott company for the caisson excavation, showing that the work had cost an average of $6.52 a cubic foot, or a total of $131,052 for work for which the Ketler-Elliott company is charging $201,000.

Turning the attention of the committee to a contract for the grading and paving of several streets at their junction with the bridge approach, Ald. Albert brought out from Petterson that the contract had not been signed by Thompson and City Controller Schmidt until Dec. 6. The work under the contract, which was awarded to the Newman company, although it was not the low bidder, was begun before that date, according to Ald. Albert.

Work Started Before Contract.

"This contract did not become valid until Dec. 6," said Ald. Albert, "but work was started prior to that date. It is a serious matter when the law is absolutely disregarded. It shows the high handed manner in which they operate, and we should take such summary action as we think necessary against those responsible. If it is not done here, there is another place to go."

After the meeting Ald. Albert said he was referring to the grand jury.

GELHARDT, FORMER CHICAGOAN, SUED ON COAST FOR DIVORCE

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 10.—(AP)—John H. Gelhardt, Beverly Hills, Cal., capitalist and former Chicago real estate dealer, was sued for divorce today by Mrs. Birdella Gelhardt, who names Miss Frances Bracken as corespondent.

Mrs. Gelhardt asked division of property valued at $300,000 and custody of a year old son.

The wife alleged her husband called her by telephone from Chicago in September, 1928, and offered her $150,000 for his freedom. She said she went to Chicago to talk the matter over and Gelhardt flew into a rage.

The complaint asked Miss Bracken be required to account for property given to her.

EPIDEMIC HITS SCHOOL CLASS AT LAKE FOREST

Ten Pupils Get Whooping Cough; Close Grade.

An epidemic of whooping cough among pupils in the first grade of the Alcott school, Lake Forest, a private institution attended by children of wealthy north shore families, yesterday caused the authorities to order the room closed.

The action was taken by the Lake Forest board of health, whose membership includes Dr. Clifford T. McCullough, Lawrence Dunlap Smith, and Hempstead Washburne. The board met in secret session.

Explanation of the spread of the epidemic is said to lie in the fact that the child who first contracted it mingled for some days with the other pupils before his case was diagnosed. He is Charles Mitchell, 6 years old, son of Lithgow Mitchell. His 10 months old brother, Lynn, now has it.

The first grade of the school numbers 25 pupils, of which ten have contracted the disease. All live in Lake Forest. Those who have the whooping cough, besides Charles Mitchell, are:

James Douglass, 5, son of Kingman Douglass, 425 Illinois road.
Peter Clow, 6, son of Kent S. Clow, 550 East Deerpath road.
Edward Shumway, 6, son of Edward D. Shumway, 457 North Green Bay road.
Mickey Sturgis, 6, son of Robert Sturgis, 504 Oakwood avenue.
Joan Potter, 6, daughter of Albert Potter, 117 East Westminster road.
Thomas Conners, 6, son of Thomas A. Conners, 472 Illinois road.
Virginia Washburne, 6, daughter of Mr. Washburne of the board of health.
Scott Brumwell Jr., 6, of 455 East Deerpath road.
Ellen McIlvaine, 6, daughter of John R. McIlvaine, 195 North Green Bay road.

The room will be kept closed until all danger of the disease is past. A. C. Bell is principal of the Alcott school.

SEIZE TWO AS ROBBERS.

Jack Shearer, 20 years old, 4847 Quincy street, and Harold Angle, 24 years old, 4120 West Monroe street, were arrested yesterday charged with committing a dozen restaurant robberies in Hammond and other places.

managers and Harriman as the dominant operator. Having acquired 97 per cent of the stock, according to the commission's report, Harriman put a $40,000,000 mortgage on the property, paying 3 per cent interest.

Selling some of the bonds to the public at 65 cents on the dollar, the syndicate used the money thus realized to vote themselves a 30 per cent dividend, according to the commission's records.

In the next four years, according to the record, Harriman increased the capital indebtedness of the company from $34,000,000 to $114,000,000, of which only $18,000,000 was expended in improvements. Harriman's operations were not made public, however, until the Interstate commerce commission in 1907, at the instigation of President Roosevelt, instituted an investigation of the Harriman lines, which then included two-thirds of the trackage west of Chicago.

Moore Brothers Win Road.

By 1906 the Alton's financial condition was such that Harriman offered no contest when the brothers, William H. and J. H. Moore, Chicago lawyers and promoters, challenged Harriman's domination and gained control.

The Moores had won their financial spurs by the organization of such concerns as the National Biscuit company, the American Tin Plate company, in concert with W. B. Leeds, and the American Steel and Wire company, with John W. [Bet a Million] Gates. They had acquired the Clover Leaf road, the Minneapolis and St. Louis, the Rock Island and the Iowa Central, and took in the Alton to complete the group.

Burdened with interest charges on the $84,000,000 in mortgage bonds issued in the Harriman régime, the Alton paid no dividends. The other roads, too, were in trouble. The Clover Leaf went bankrupt and was taken into the Nickle Plate system. The Rock Island did likewise and was saved from a foreclosure sale only by a reorganization some years ago.

Bierd Becomes President.

Meanwhile the Union Pacific had acquired a substantial bloc of the Alton bonds and, when the road defaulted on interest payments of a bond issue, sent in Mr. Bierd as president. Starting his railroad career as a laborer for the Chicago and North Western as a 17 year old boy, Bierd had risen through the ranks of yard master and division superintendent of various roads until, before his appointment as president of the Alton in 1914, he was vice president and general manager of the Minneapolis and St. Louis.

After Mr. Bierd took hold of the road it traveled a comparatively smooth course through the war years and up to 1921.

Along about that time President Bierd found the road had exhausted its credit and the officials were concerned as to what coal company would advance them fuel on credit. The following year its condition was worse because of the shopmen's strike.

Adding to the road's troubles was the depression in the bituminous industry, more than half the Alton's freight tonnage being in soft coal. On Aug. 30, 1922, therefore, the company was placed in the hands of receivers, Mr. Bierd and Attorney W. W. Wheelock being named to act.

It was at this juncture, the stockholders' protective committee says, that it first entered negotiations looking toward reorganization of the company. By reason of the prevailing financial depression this step was postponed, to be resumed in 1925.

Thereafter there were differences between the stockholders' committee and the bankers with lawsuits and with proposals for a reorganization in 1929. A petition of the stockholders' committee recently presented to the court recited that the Baltimore and Ohio acquired all of the Alton's 3½ per cent bonds for $17,600,000, at a rate of $800 for each $1,000 bond including accrued interest and substantially all of the 6 per cent bonds for $3,861,820, at a rate of $230 for each $1,000 bond.

"It was the purpose of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., in negotiating the sale of the bonds, to favor its client, the Baltimore and Ohio, at the expense of the Alton stockholders," the petition alleged. "Disregarding their duties to the Alton stockholders, they joined with the Baltimore and Ohio to defeat the rights and equities of the stockholders in its plan to secure the Alton properties for many millions of dollars less than their actual value."

The Court's Position.

Presentation of the petition before Judge Carpenter was preceded by a motion for lease to file it. This motion the judge denied. In explanation Judge Carpenter pointed out that the stockholders failed to accompany the petition with a reorganization plan of their own, nor had they given the court assurance that if there was a plan the protective committee had power to assess the stockholders to finance it.

For more than a year, Judge Carpenter pointed out, the stockholders should have been aware through published reports that the Baltimore and Ohio was seeking to get control of the Alton to give it access to St. Louis. The consolidation plan announced by the interstate commerce commission last year allocated the Alton to the Baltimore and Ohio.

Denied the right to file the petition, attorneys for the committee yesterday asked leave to appeal. This motion Judge Carpenter also denied.

In a statement issued in New York last night Edward A. Pierce, head of a New York investment house and chairman of the protective committee, declared the fight would be carried to the United States Supreme court if necessary to protect stockholders' interests.

Following the auction the law provides an interval of 28 days for interested parties to object before the terms of sale may be finally approved by the court.

WOULD ADD POWER TO BATTLESHIPS INSTEAD OF ABANDONING THEM

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—A revolutionary change in construction of the powerful modern battleship rather than its abandonment by the major powers was forecast before the house naval committee today by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations.

The gray haired naval student, who will retire from the scene before any ship of the radical design he depicted will flaunt the colors, predicted that the capital ship of the near future would be in effect a combined aircraft carrier and battleship. This vessel, he declared, would combine great offensive gun power with ability to launch destructive bombs from the air at targets hundreds of miles in the distance.

CROWDS BESIEGE NEW YORK BANK; ARE PAID IN FULL

Rumor Starts Rush of Foreign Born.

New York, Dec. 11 (Thursday).—(AP)—Wall street's leading bankers were in conference early this morning at the New York Federal Reserve bank after one of the city's newer and smaller banking organizations had weathered a flurry of withdrawals.

Although the bank experiencing the withdrawals—the Bank of the United States, which is not connected with the government despite its name—is not a Wall street institution and caters to small depositors, heads of banks with total resources of more than $10,000,000,000 met to discuss effective measures of stilling financial nervousness.

Those at Conference.

Among those attending the conference were Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Albert H. Wiggin, head of the Chase National bank; George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of New York; Owen D. Young, deputy chairman of the Federal Reserve and chairman of the General Electric company; Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City bank, and Jackson E. Reynolds, president of the First National bank.

The conference recessed for luncheon at 1 a. m.

Thousands of excited depositors had congregated at eight branches of the bank yesterday, and police reserves were called to handle the situation.

The branches affected were in widely separated parts of the city—three in the Bronx, one in upper Manhattan, and four in Brooklyn. The largest crowd, estimated by police at 5,000, was assembled in front of the Bronx branch at Freeman street and Southern boulevard. Here mounted police preserved order.

How Run Started.

At the Freeman street branch a throng collected demanding their funds before the bank's closing time at 3 o'clock. All those who were able to get inside before closing were paid in full. Most of the depositors gathered at the other branches after they had closed, but the early comers were paid in full.

It was unofficially reported that the excitement started in rumors having their basis in the experience of a merchant who endeavored to cash certificates of stock of the bank and was advised to hold them as a good investment.

It was understood that some $3,000,000 in cash was rushed to the bank to meet demands of depositors.

Southern Bank Suspends.

Greenville, N. C., Dec. 10.—(AP)—The National Bank of Greenville failed to open for business today, its directors announcing that heavy withdrawals had made the action necessary for protection of depositors.

ARREST OFFICIAL OF COMPANY AS AN EMBEZZLER

Jacob Larsen, traffic manager of the Masonite Insulating company, 111 West Washington street, was arrested yesterday on a warrant issued by Judge John H. Lyle charging embezzlement of company funds. The complainant was Elmer L. Saberson, another official of the company.

The Larsen family received publicity last May when 10 year old Johnny Pershing Stanton, slipped away from a boat in New York City on which his mother was preparing to take him to France. Johnny lived with Mr. Larsen's mother-in-law.

Mr. Saberson said Mr. Larsen had left for a vacation four days ago and that it was while examining his books that the shortage, about $3,000, was discovered. Mr. Larsen, who obtained his release on bond last night, did not deny the charges. He said, "I didn't know I was taking that much. I would draw a little at a time, just for spending. I haven't been playing the races or gambling on the markets."

HOOVER PLEADS FOR SENATE O. K. ON WORLD COURT

Disregards Probability of Extra Session.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Early consideration of the world court issue was urged upon the senate by President Hoover today in a special message transmitting the revised protocols.

Many of the leaders of his party as well as prominent Democrats, including world court supporters, fear the President's action will bring a legislative jam which may force him to call a special session in the spring. The President requested that the protocols be given consideration "as soon as possible after the emergency relief and appropriation legislation has been disposed of."

Pacifists Rap Republican Leaders.

The head of the pacifist lobby, Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, announced the opening of "an intensive drive for action this winter." Mr. Libby in a statement calling attention to the inability of President Hoover to find a Republican senator of prominence to assume the leadership in the world court fight scored the Republicans for their attitude.

"With such divided counsels among its leaders on an important measure on which the party has expressed itself," said Mr. Libby, "can any one doubt that the Republican party is riding for a fall?"

The President's message was read in the senate and referred to the foreign relations committee after Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the committee, moved that the senate go into open executive session.

Senator Borah indicated that the method of handling the protocols would be taken up by the committee next Wednesday.

Senator Borah and other opponents of the court are unwilling to take responsibility for bottling it up in committee. They are expected to join in reporting the protocols to the senate soon after the Christmas holidays.

Extra Session Likely.

President Hoover apparently is convinced that the annual appropriation bills will be out of the way in time to take up the world court on the floor two or three weeks in advance of the adjournment on March 4. But the radicals are ready to filibuster against appropriation bills if their pet measures are not acted upon. Insistence by the President upon action on the world court will make it easy for the radicals to tie up legislation and force a special session.

The President may muster the necessary two-thirds vote for ratification of the revised protocols. This will come, however, only after the liveliest sort of a fight.

In his message President Hoover asserted that the provisions of the protocols "free us from any entanglement in the diplomacy of other nations." He urged that this nation "lend its coöperation in this effort of the nations to establish a great agency for pacific settlements."

The President's Message.

"I have the honor to transmit to the senate for its consideration and action three documents concerning adherence of the United States to the court of international justice," said the President. "I inclose also a report of Nov. 18, 1929, by the secretary of state. I trust the protocols may have consideration as soon as possible after the emergency relief and appropriation legislation has been disposed of.

"It will be recalled that on Jan. 27, 1926, following extended consideration, the senate advised and gave consent to adherence to the court with five reservations; and it gave authorization to effect their acceptance by an exchange of notes. Consent to four of these reservations was promptly expressed at a meeting of the nations members of the court, and after negotiations, undertaken with the approval of President Coolidge, two protocols were drawn to revise the statutes of the court in order to embody this consent and also to meet the fifth reservation. The protocol of accession of the United States and the protocols of revision have now been signed by practically all the nations which are members of the court and have also already been ratified by a large majority of these nations.

Says Entanglements Are Prevented.

"The provisions of the protocols free us from any entanglement in the diplomacy of other nations. We cannot be summoned before this court, we can from time to time seek its services by agreement with other nations. These protocols permit our withdrawal from the court at any time without reproach or ill will.

"The movement for the establishment of such a court originated with our country. It has been supported by Presidents Wilson, Harding, and Coolidge; by Secretaries of State Hughes, Kellogg, and Stimson; it springs from the earnest seeking of our people for justice in international relations and to strengthen the foundations of peace.

"Through the Kellogg-Briand pact we have pledged ourselves to the use of pacific means in the settlement of all controversies. Our great nation so devoted to peace and justice should lend its coöperation in this effort of the nations to establish a great agency for such pacific settlements."

Under the plans of the pacifist lobby, at whose insistence the President submitted the protocols at this time instead of waiting until next winter as was his original intention, a bombardment is to be kept up on senators by pro-court groups in the various states.

Civilization Cannot Withstand New War, Kellogg Warns as He Gets Nobel Award

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Sounding a confident note on world peace, but at the same time warning that western civilization could not withstand a new war, Frank B. Kellogg, whose efforts toward world peace resulted in the Kellogg-Briand pact, today received the Nobel peace prize for 1929.

At Stockholm Sinclair Lewis received the Nobel prize for literature and Dr. Karl Landsteiner of the Rockefeller institute, New York, received the Nobel award for medicine.

An orchestra played "The Star Spangled Banner" as the former American secretary of state, fifth of his countrymen to win the award, received a diploma and medal from Prof. Frederick Stang, president of the Nobel committee. King Haakon was present with Crown Prince Olov and a distinguished gathering of cabinet members and other Norwegian notables.

"Thankful for Peace."

In an address preceding the presentation, Premier Johan Mowinckel described Mr. Kellogg as "The man of practical politics," contrasting him with Dr. Nathan Soederblom, winner of the 1930 award, whom the premier termed "a man of the church and a spiritual warrior."

In acknowledging the award, Mr. Kellog asserted there was no indication of war in the world, but rather the prospect was for continued peace.

"General unrest," he said, "is a natural expression of hard times everywhere, but there has been no war and we should be thankful to take it as a good omen that peace prevails today on the earth.

Should there be a war, however, he warned, western civilization could not withstand it.

"For ten years the European nations have patiently worked on a solution of the difficult problems that in former days would have promoted international conflicts," he said.

"I feel sorry that so many people, among them many of my own countrymen, constantly predict a new war. I have said it before, and will emphasize it as strongly as possible, that western culture will never outlive a new war, but will perish in a general chaos.

"I know of no nobler work for humanity than promoting peace. Men must adopt higher and greater goals than that of settling international quarrels by arms.

"Leading statesmen have taken steps to prevent a new catastrophe, and while these measures are no absolute guaranty of peace, they are the most secure arrangements hitherto adopted by the nations."

Other Americans who have won the Nobel prize for peace were Theodore Roosevelt in 1906, Elihu Root in 1912, Woodrow Wilson in 1919, and Ambassador Charles G. Dawes in 1925.

The Ceremony in Stockholm.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Sinclair Lewis, who told Americans about themselves, bringing out some details they hadn't thought about before, today received the coveted Nobel prize for literature.

With him in the auditorium of Stockholm's concert hall, bright with flowers and bedecked with flags and hanging rugs, three other leaders in their fields received Nobel awards—Dr. Karl Landsteiner of the Rockefeller institute, New York, for medicine; Sir Chandrasekhara Venkata Raman of India for physics, and Prof. Hans Fischer of Germany for chemistry.

The prizes, including checks, were handed them by King Gustav V.

Facing the stage where sat the winners were the most notable men and women in Swedish national life, and on the left was a crescent shaped group formed by members of the Swedish Nobel institute. Two figures particularly held the attention of all—Raman, with his dark face and snow white turban, and the red haired Sinclair Lewis.

The long, lanky Minnesotan didn't appear altogether at ease as he sat in the presence of personages so decidedly different from the characters he loves to write about. His eyes roamed from the front benches filled with men whose costumes were ablaze with the ribbons of their orders up to the gallery reserved for the younger and less distant generation.

Then his eyes alighted on the press section, where he found familiar faces, and the tired but characteristic smile flashed over Lewis' face.

Raman's turn came first. He was followed by Herr Fischer and Dr. Landsteiner.

Finally it was Lewis' turn. Dr. A. E. Karlfeldt, permanent secretary of the Swedish academy, who introduced the author, began by describing the characteristics of three of his works—"Main Street," "Babbitt," and "Elmer Gantry."

"U. S. Still Melting Pot."

Dr. Karlfeldt said the American nation was still a melting pot, and hadn't yet settled down. American literature, he said, was being created, and it was a promising indication for the future that this literature was characterized by self-criticism.

He congratulated Lewis on having created a type of man who was not unsympathetic, but was more acceptable as a good, respectable man than corresponding types would be in other countries.

Lewis listened to the speech with his arms folded across his chest and his head held high, then walked from the stage, stood before the king and received his prize. Those who were there and saw his firm, confident bearing felt certain that whatever else Lewis said to his majesty, he did not suggest that it was all a mistake that he had been given the award, as he threatened to do a few days ago.

FRENCH CABINET CRISIS UNSOLVED; LOOK TO POINCARE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 10.—After three days of vain efforts to form a cabinet Senator Pierre Laval tonight gave up the job. He formally notified President Doumergue of his failure.

This leaves France still nowhere near having a government after six days. This ministerial crisis, which is the fourteenth President Doumergue has been called on to adjust and the eighty-sixth experienced by the third republic in sixty years of its existence, promises to be one of the most serious ever seen.

Although business continues normally, tax collectors collect taxes, policemen arrest wrongdoers, and state employés keep on winding red tape, it is felt that the failure to install a new government without delay presents a grave danger at a time when the growing economic crisis and the ticklish political situation in Europe demand authoritative attention.

As the crisis grows worse a movement to draft Raymond Poincare grows stronger. If M. Poincare persists in his stubborn refusal to take power, President Doumergue's last resort will probably be to call on Aristide Briand.

SONSTEBY TO SIT IN MANY COURTS TO LEARN HIS JOB

Clean Up Jury Calendar, Chief Justice's Aim.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court has found after a week in office that he has the most interesting job in the city and one offering the greatest opportunity for service.

As one means of better acquainting himself with his opportunities he plans after the first of the year to sit in the various branch courts in rotation, a sort of swing around the circle of the police courts, the Morals, Domestic Relations, and Felony courts, with a few days—possibly a week—in each court.

To Learn His Job Better.

"This will give me better knowledge in assigning the judges," Chief Justice Sonsteby said. "Each judge is fitted by temperament to some kinds of work better than others. It will also show me conditions in the districts and how the police captains are working.

"I want to run this court in an efficient, businesslike way, and as a practicing lawyer would like it to be run. I have been practicing law myself for 24 years and have been a member of many committees of the bar association.

"I want to say now that any suggestions for betterment of conditions that may come from the Chicago Bar association will be welcomed and will be tried out so far as they are compatible with the law.

"One of the big things that I want to do is to clean up the jury calendar as far as possible and make it possible to get a jury trial within three or four months.

"The records show that we have run about 2,800 cases behind since last April. These are jury cases only in civil litigation. There are no records here for the criminal cases, no records of the South Chicago court, no records of the emergency jury calendar.

"This will take effort and real cooperation on the part of the judges. The cases are piling up every day!"

Find $74,000 Due Courts.

The chief justice found that the court was $2,040 short of enough money to run until the end of the year, and had a session with the finance committee of the city council. It was discovered from the clerk's accounts that there was $74,000 of interest money due the Municipal courts and that it was in the banks awaiting appropriation.

As a result of the warning by Judge Sonsteby and Joseph L. Gill, clerk of the Municipal court, that unless additional money is provided they will be forced to lay off employes and curtail activities during the remainder of the year, the finance committee authorized the transfer of $2,031 to the chief justice's account for the purpose of paying outside judges for relief work. Mr. Gill was authorized to continue the employment of 157 clerks. The amount of $17,887 needed for the salaries of the deputy clerks will be included in the 1931 budget.

Judge Sonsteby has not heard from former Chief Justice Harry Olson concerning the missing records on which he has requested information.

One branch of the work that will claim Mr. Sonsteby's attention will be that of the psychiatric bureau. As a social worker and member of the American prison congress for many years, he has gained a good working idea of the value of scientific help in the administration of justice.

"A good psychiatrist," he said, "is not dogmatic in his judgment of individuals. He will admit there is a lot he does not know. His opinion, however, is valuable, when it comes to the question of punishment. I do not believe that a person who has committed a crime should be excused from punishment because he is found mentally defective. It may change the character of the punishment.

NORTHUP GIVEN ULTIMATUM IN CANAL BATTLE

Apology Demanded by Judge Williams.

A conference was held yesterday in reference to the reassignment of the trial of the sanitary district indictments involving Timothy J. Crowe and other former officials of the district. The conference resulted in an ultimatum being delivered to First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup that he must issue a public statement, which will be tantamount to an apology to the judge. Northup agreed to draft a statement which is expected to be submitted to Judge Williams today for his approval.

Although the conference between the judge, Chief Justice John P. McGoorty, the prosecutor, and the defense attorneys was secret, the result of what had been accomplished was announced. If the prosecutor does not issue a statement meeting with the approval of Judge Williams then the latter will go ahead on Monday with the hearing on the motion to quash the indictment which was filed by the defense attorneys.

Northup Charges Prejudice.

Prosecutor Northup in a certificate of prejudice filed several weeks ago charged that Judge Williams was unfit to preside at the trial because of the fact that the judge had sponsored his son, Willard Williams, to the sanitary district pay roll.

Prosecutor Northup, immediately after his certificate was denied, started a grand jury investigation and announced that the judge's son was one of the unnamed conspirators in the indictment. It was charged that the judge's son performed no work for the pay he received over a period of about one year.

A small crowd of interested spectators was drawn to Judge Williams' court yesterday in the expectation of listening to a lively tilt between the prosecutor, the judge and the defense attorneys. They, however, were disappointed when the judge invited only the lawyers to step into his chambers. Even the court stenographers were barred at the outset of the conference.

Situation Still the Same.

"The case is still in my court and the motion to quash is set for hearing Monday morning," said the judge after the conference. "The situation is still the same as it was before the conference."

Prosecutor Northup refused to make any statement, but one of his associates indicated that he would make no statement that could be considered an apology.

Object to Reassignment.

The defendants, represented by Attorneys Albert Fink, John McInerney, and John F. Higgins, took the position at the conference, it was admitted, that Prosecutor Northup agreed to the original assignment of the case to Judge Williams and that he now has no right to complain. They objected to a reassignment of the case to any different judge.

Judge Thomas Taylor of the Circuit court was named yesterday to act as commissioner of the Supreme court in hearing the evidence on the information filed by the Chicago Bar association against 56 lawyers, who at one time or another collected money from the district without performing adequate services. The judge will hear the evidence and then recommend to the court whether grounds exist for disbarment of any of the lawyers mentioned.

University of Washington Restores 'Washington Elm'

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 10.—(AP)—An offshoot of the famous elm under which George Washington took command of the Continental soldiers will be planted on Cambridge common in the spring. It will be a gift from the University of Washington.

In 1896 Arthur J. Collins of Spokane, Harvard '99, presented a shoot from the parent tree to the University of Washington. Since that time it has grown to a height of 40 feet and soon is to replace the parent, which toppled over in 1923.

FARMERS WANT JOB OF BOSSING MUSCLE SHOALS

Launch Movement at Boston Meeting.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 10.—(AP)—The American Farm Bureau federation today adopted a resolution seeking operation of Muscle Shoals by a cooperative organization of farmers. The federation also voiced its opposition to amending the agricultural marketing act at this time.

Among other resolutions adopted were:

Recommendation for stricter regulation of the grain and cotton exchanges.

Recommendation that funds to be used as loans to farmers in the purchase of feed for animals, fertilizer, and seeds in the drought area be made available immediately.

That congress appropriate money to insure immediate carrying out of the development projects authorized.

Advocation of a revolving fund in the federal treasury to be used exclusively to stabilize federal land bank bonds.

To Push Tariff Fight.

A declaration that the farm bureau would continue efforts to secure adequate tariff rates on vegetable oils, starches, sugar, dried egg products, and hides, and recommending an increase in the tariff on pulp and pulpwood.

The resolution pertaining to Muscle Shoals authorized and instructed the board of directors to move to set up a corporation truly representative of agriculture to lease and operate Muscle Shoals on a cooperative basis.

An amendment to the resolution regarding the rivers and harbors bill was defeated. The amendment would have put special emphasis on the Mississippi waterway and great lakes development projects.

Hyde Urges Crop Control.

At the morning session Secretary of Agriculture Hyde told the federation that the hope of agriculture rests in an organization of farmers broad enough to plan production and control marketing, coupled with adequate tariff protection.

"The root of our troubles is overproduction," he asserted.

Acidity

Runs Down More Persons than all the Motor Cars in the World!

We are shocked to hear of the number of persons every day who are run down by motor cars. Yet a condition known as Acidity takes a far greater toll in human life and happiness.

When the stomach secretes too much acid it causes acid-indigestion, with gas, sourness, and burning. It also sets up fermentation and putrefaction in the intestines, creating poisons which pull us down physically and mentally. A marvelous German development, called Magnesia Oxoids, corrects Acidity in the right way. Upon contact with gastric juice, Magnesia Oxoids generate nascent or active oxygen. The oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus which keeps the acid in check; corrects intestinal fermentation and stimulates peristalsis or the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary, and only Magnesia Oxoids supply them because it is the only magnesia product known to science which when taken internally, releases oxygen to the system.

To see just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from Walgreen's Drug Stores or Economical Drug Stores or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If after taking the contents of one bottle, the results don't more than amaze you, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money promptly and in full.

NEAR $2,000,000 MARK IN DRIVE FOR RELIEF FUND

Certificate Plan to Be Abandoned.

Aided by a contribution of $50,000 from the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and its employés, Chicago's emergency relief fund for the unemployed yesterday approached the $2,000,000 mark with a total day's collection of $61,784. The total contributions so far recorded amount to $1,895,953, with more than $3,000,000 remaining to be collected in the drive of the governor's commission for $5,000,000.

Several changes were noted during the day in the standing of the soliciting teams as reports were made from the various trade groups. Chief among the advances was that of the men's clothing group, headed by B. J. Cahn. This group exceeded its quota by $25,000 and was advanced from fifteenth place to second place in the ratings of the trade teams.

Large Contributions Listed.

Among the large contributions made yesterday were: Mandel Brothers and employés, $14,000; Hart, Schaffner & Marx and employés, $11,513; B. Kuppenheimer & Co. and employés, $7,000; A. Stein & Co. and employés, $4,660; Steele-Wedeles company and employés, $3,379, and Butler Brothers' employés, $3,009.

The governor's commission reported that thirty truck loads of clothing have been cleaned, repaired, and distributed through the city's regular relief organization operated by the commission. A total of 150 more truck loads have been collected, but these will not be available for distribution until they have been cleaned and repaired. For this reason the clothing distribution centers will be closed for several days in order to allow the commission's staff to get the clothing in shape.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, chairman of the women's division, stated that while response to the plea for old clothes has been generous, there is still great need for more garments. The drive for clothes has been extended until Dec. 13 and after that date contributions can be made at 163 West Washington street, she said.

Certificate Plan Abandoned.

The plan to issue merchandise certificates in lieu of bonuses and gifts of money to stimulate buying was abandoned last night, according to an announcement made by Jacob M. Loeb, former president of school board and chairman of the committee set up to operate the plan.

Mr. Loeb said that while the committee regretted its inability to carry out the plan, it was deemed advisable because of the fact that it had been started too late to accomplish material results during the Christmas buying season.

Delay Causes Action.

"It was impossible to get our machinery set up in time to put the certificates on sale now," Mr. Loeb stated. "We felt that in order to be successful the certificates should have been available the first of this week, but due to delays we are unable to get the proper certificates delivered."

The urgency of the Chicago unemployment situation was described by various members of the governor's commission at a meeting of the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday in the La Salle hotel. Those of the commission's executives who spoke were George F. Getz, chairman; Samuel Insull Jr., Louis E. Myers, Victor Olander, Philip R. Clarke, Mrs. Fairbank and D. F. Kelly.

Rating of Groups

Following are listed the ratings of the various trade groups in Chicago, showing the percentages of their respective quotas so far collected in the drive of the governor's commission on unemployment for the $5,000,000 relief fund. Four teams have now exceeded their quotas. The ratings:

Buy a Gas Mask for Xmas! French Firm Opens Drive

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 10.—Gas masks will be popular Christmas presents in France this year if the campaign of an enterprising French merchant proves successful. Taking advantage of the widespread fear of another European war and the horrors of gas attacks, which the Belgian death fog brought home in a striking fashion, the mask works advises the public to do its Christmas shopping early. The price is $2.40.

BUSINESS BODIES WILL STIMULATE THE BUYING URGE

Plan Campaign to Speed Up Trend in 1931.

"Steady Buying Steadies Business."

This slogan is to be driven home to the Chicago public in a 90-day campaign to be launched next Monday by 32 community business men's organizations coöperating with the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Col. Robert I. Randolph, president of the association, revealed the plans for the campaign yesterday in an appeal issued to 8,000 business institutions in the city.

Would Affect Trend in 1931.

"The primary purpose of the drive," the appeal reads, "is not the mere stimulation of Christmas business. That probably will take care of itself. But the important thing is the encouragement between now and the end of the first fiscal quarter of 1931 of the normal commercial commitments by the retailer, the wholesaler and the manufacturer, upon which the whole economic trend of 1931 will depend."

In addressing business houses, Col. Randolph said:

"You can do your part by: Getting your salesmen or other representatives to emphasize the 'Steady Buying Steadies Business' idea in all of their contacts, and by practicing what you preach by buying normally for normal needs."

Points to Savings Deposits.

The appeal also points out that there are more than 28 billions of dollars on deposit in the country's savings banks and that fewer than 20 per cent of the nation's wage earners have suffered any reduction whatever in their income in the last twelve months.

"The big job of business right now," said Randolph, "as the banking, merchandising and advertising experts realize, is to get the consumer with the unimpaired income to stimulate business in general by buying normal requirements while commodity prices are down."

MICHIGAN WAS THIRD FASTEST GROWING OF STATES, SAYS CENSUS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Michigan's gain in population between 1920 and 1930 was exceeded only by that of California and Florida, the census bureau announced today in making public the final official census figures for the state.

Michigan's new population total was 4,842,325, which represents an increase of 1,173,913, or 32 per cent. The numerical increase was the highest in the history of the state. The gain, however, was confined largely to the metropolitan area of Detroit.

Largest city in the state and fourth city in the United States, Detroit had the largest numerical gain in its history with a population of 1,568,662, but its rate of increase was the smallest since 1900. Grand Rapids, the second city, had 168,592 inhabitants, and its numerical gain was 30,958, or 22.5 per cent.

The census bureau also announced today the final population figures for Indiana, showing the state to have a population of 3,238,503, which represents an increase of 308,113. All of the increase was accounted for by the large cities.

Indianapolis had a population of 364,161, an increase of 49,967. Fort Wayne was second with a population of 114,946. Three other cities—South Bend, Evansville, and Gary—had over 100,000 inhabitants.

Bad Stomach Ended. Can Eat Anything Now

"Finally I took a shot at ACIDINE and discovered the Ambrosia of the Gods. Now I can eat 'tacks.'" says M. S. Holman, Buffalo, New York.

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis.

Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, gassy headaches and sleeplessness trouble you, take ACIDINE. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money.

GERMAN JOBLESS FIGHT COPS; ONE SLAIN, SIX HURT

Police Charge Disorders Organized by Reds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAMBURG, Dec. 10.—One person was killed and a half dozen were injured during a battle here today between police and a mob of unemployed. Communist agitators had called for a huge demonstration by Hamburg's jobless. When the demonstration threatened to degenerate into a riot police opened fire to drive back the mob.

Fascists and Reds Riot.

LUDWIGSBURG, Wurttemberg, Germany, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Revolvers were used in a fight between communists and Fascists today. One Fascist was wounded. Many rioters were arrested.

167 Jobless Arrested.

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Dec. 10. (AP)—A procession of unemployed developed into disorder here today. One hundred and sixty-seven persons were arrested for resisting police and for damaging public property. Severe rioting was prevented by the arrival of police reinforcements.

Fascist Leader Fined.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—Dr. Hans Fabricius, Fascist leader, and one of the chief organizers of the demonstrations against the film "All Quiet on the Western Front," was fined $7.50 today for failure to obey police orders, and $37 for slanderous language in the emergency court which is sitting to take care of the rioters arrested in last night's "film war." Dr. Fabricius is a member of the reichstag, but parliamentary immunity did not save him.

Worried by the arrest of his colleague, Paul Goebbels, another Fascist leader, today ordered all his followers to "take a day off and await new orders." Meantime, the police chief has prohibited all demonstrations except in four squares far away from the movie theater.

Cabinet Watches Film.

For hours today members of the cabinet watched "All Quiet on the Western Front" in its German, French and American versions.

The war ministry has worked out a 15 page report of objections to the film for the censor. Five of Germany's seventeen federal states will also protest to the censor at tomorrow's final session of the censorship committee.

A number of harmless garden snakes turned loose by an unknown person in the movie house showing the film nearly caused a panic tonight.

SENATOR ASKS APOLOGY FROM THE PRESIDENT

Democrats Angered by Statement.

income tax refund, which the senator termed "legalized graft," and the recommended additional $150,000,000 to the federal farm board in order that—in the senator's words—"this incompetent, incapable board might engage in further gambling, and hold wheat and cotton prices down when they could at any time send them up, in order to help the millers and the cotton spinners."

The heads of great industries, said the senator, had promised President Hoover not to discharge employés, then had gone home and fired hundreds of thousands. The President himself, he said, had discharged employés of government departments.

Then he grew still more personal.

Criticizes Hoover's Tour.

"As soon as Mr. Hoover was elected President," Senator McKellar declared, "he began to disregard the proprieties of office. It was the height of impropriety to tour South America on a battleship at government expense. And there is plenty of public talk about his use of United States marines in building a summer home. It is an indecent and illegal use of the marines under his command."

It was in answer to Senator McKellar that Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] rose and said:

"It is easy to see that the campaign of 1932 is already under way. The Democrats are reeling off campaign speeches as fast as the stenographers can take them down. The insinuations which Senator McKellar has made in the ardor of his partisanship are unworthy of being placed even in the Congressional Record."

Only a few senators attended the debate on the emergency bill, but a demand for a roll call to determine a quorum brought them in in numbers to hear Senator Robinson. And the galleries filled on hearing that the minority leader was about to state his position.

Charges Indifference.

"We are all agreed that the country is experiencing an economic crisis more serious than any in its history," he began. His slow, tempered periods were in striking contrast to the tempestuous language of the Tennessee senator. He painted the plight of the jobless man and the drought stricken farmer. He pictured the administration as indifferent. The President, who had termed an appropriation of $60,000,000 for drought relief a raid on the public treasury, must, he said, be numbered as one of that class of public officials who "either are ignorant of the true situation about unemployment or who, for some cause, may not be inspired with appreciation for the necessity of decisive action."

"It was my judgment that the country needed coöperation in the work of enacting relief measures," he declared. And then he brought the situation down to date with, "That judgment has been confirmed by the action of the President in making the statement he did yesterday and by the reaction it brought forth in the senate.

Says Hoover Lost Temper.

"We have proceeded to an unfortunate position. The President lost his temper and made a statement which of course is to be condemned, I for my part do not propose to follow his bad example. My purpose is to try to do my duty to my people and to my country."

And as for coöperation Senator Robinson made his position clear:

"Coöperation is not for one man to lead and other to follow. Coöperation means that when one man stands here and another there, they both move forward to common ground."

And with that definition established, a definition which told the President he must move from his fixed position if he expected Democratic assistance, Senator Robinson concluded: "I'd like to see this congress now act in a spirit of greater coöperation."

Senator Blaine was not so temperate as Senator Robinson nor so vehement as Senator McKellar when he spoke in favor of his proposed amendment to the emergency bill. The bill sought to loan the states $80,000,000 in order that states without road funds might make up sufficient money to match and thereby obtain their federal aid highway allotments. The states were to have five years, beginning with 1933, to repay the loan. Senator Blaine sought to have the $80,000,000 a gift to the states.

"It has been heralded far and wide by the President and other officials that this $110,000,000 is a federal relief fund," he said. "I want to debunk the hypocrisy of the President and those speaking for him on this proposal of spending 110 million dollars to relieve unemployment. I have no doubt he would like the country to believe we are taking 110 millions dollars out of the treasury to help our people.

"This bill actually carries but $30,000,000 as a permanent appropriation from the treasury. The larger portion of the bill—$80,000,000 out of the 110 million—is to be charged against the state governments and the state governments are to repay that $80,000,000 in five years through reductions of future federal aid appropriations."

His amendment was defeated, '31 to 43.

MRS. M'LEAN, WAR NURSE, TO WED A THIRD TIME

Marriage to Artist Is Set for Next Tuesday.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Kathleen Burke McLean, known along the war torn fronts of Europe as "The Angel of France," and Girard Van Barkaloo Hale, Santa Barbara, Cal., artist, filed notice of intention to marry.

It was announced the wedding would be next Tuesday. Mrs. McLean's age was given at 43 and Hale's as 44.

For the British war nurse it was the third romance since her heroic work among the wounded of the world has gained her fame and decorations by many governments.

Last Husband Died in Crash.

In 1927 Frederick Peabody, whom she married in 19290, died at Santa Barbara. On March 3, 1929, she married Col. John McLean, mining engineer. He was killed in a motor car accident nine days later.

The friendship between Hale and the war nurse began at Soissons during the heavy bombardment in January, 1918. Hale was serving with the American field ambulance service attached to the French army. He was decorated three times by the French government for bravery.

Many events of the war recall Mrs. McLean's name, then Kathleen Burke. She was the first woman permitted by France to enter Verdun during the siege.

Raised $89,000 for Red Cross.

England sent her to the British front, the first woman to enter her country's trenches. In France she also was known as "the lady of tenderness and pity." In America, as "the beloved girl," she was the first woman to speak before the New York stock exchange and in one plea raised $89,000 for the American Red Cross.

The couple renewed their friendship during archaeological excavations in Peru. They plan to return there next year and continue the explorations with scientists.

TO BE WED AGAIN

MRS. KATHLEEN B. M'LEAN.

KILLS HIMSELF; WIFE IS FREED AFTER INQUIRY

Elmer Walrath, 64 years old, a painter, committed suicide last night in his home at 6920 Aberdeen street by shooting himself through the head.

The police after an early investigation expressed doubt that the death was a suicide and questioned Walrath's wife, Martha, 52 years old. She insisted that her husband had ended his own life. Later she was released after Coroner's Physician Chester Guy had traced the course of the fatal bullet and had expressed the opinion that Walrath killed himself. David McCulloch, a painter, and Mrs. Rose McGrady, with whom Mrs. Walrath said she and her husband had been drinking, also were released after questioning.

FALL IN HOME PROVES FATAL.

August Sahr, 78 years old, a laborer, 4466 South Wells street, died yesterday in the county hospital of a fracture of the pelvis sustained in a fall in the kitchen of his home Nov. 13.

DELAY EXTORTION HEARING AS GIRL MAKES HER DEBUT

Signs Complaint Against Kuhn, Goes to Party.

Miss Marion Wright, 18 year old daughter of William V. Wright, steel company executive, made her debut at the Casino club last night after the case against William Kuhn, 23 years old, son of a retired California broker, charged with attempting to extort $25,000 from her, was continued until today. The coming-out party will bring further delay to Kuhn's hearing, as it was explained to Municipal Judge John H. Lyle that Miss Wright will be too tired to appear in court today.

Miss Wright did not appear in court when Kuhn, represented by Attorney John P. McGoorty Jr., son of the chief justice of the Criminal court, was arraigned. She and her father were in conference with Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks. Later she visited Judge Lyle to sign a complaint.

Threatening Letter Produced.

Kuhn, nattily dressed, appeared ill at ease before the judge. He toyed with his hat as the court was told that he was arrested Monday night after Mr. Wright had appealed to the "secret six," crime fighting committee of the Association of Commerce to investigate five threatening letters received by his daughter. One of the letters, dated Nov. 21, was produced in court. It read in part:

"Dear Miss Wright: In this present business depression many organizations are being formed to relieve the unemployment. Working on this I am authorized to force person or persons by extortion to donate their share.

"My associates have perfected a wonderful but deadly dart; with the use of powerful but silent spring this weapon is capable to strike an object 3,000 feet. Imagine this dart dipped in a very deadly poison."

Other Letters Made Public.

Three other letters were made public. In one of them, posted on Nov. 26, the writer said: "It will soon be necessary for me to throw caution to the winds and from sheer desperation expose myself to the danger of committing the crime you have been warned of. I wonder if you realize that at the present time that a life is held very cheaply. If you value the life of your father, or maybe your own, highly, the small sum of $25,000 ought not to stand in your way."

In the last letter, dated Nov. 29, the extortionist extended the time for the "showdown" from Nov. 30 to Dec. 5. The letter also said: "On my arrival from New York I have discovered that my organization has blundered. It is one curse of employing drug addicts. I am going to send an unknown person for this package, and any means on your part to trace him will mean the death of some one in your household."

How Kuhn and Girl Met.

Kuhn met Miss Wright at the Casino club, where the party was held last evening, three weeks ago. During the investigation Miss Wright told the police that she had quarreled with Kuhn and that he had promised to get even. Police visited the investment office where Kuhn is employed and compared the typography of the letters with samples from typewriters. Kuhn gave his address as the Ambassador East hotel.

Kuhn is at liberty on bond of $7,500 posted by his brother, Wendell, a broker.

U. S. Buys Famous Palace in Berlin for Embassy

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—The famous Bluecher Palais on the Under den Linden adjoining the Brandenburger gate, passed into the possession of the American government today, and will be remodeled to serve the requirements of the American embassy and its allied official missions, now housed in various sections of Berlin. The property was acquired for about $1,800,000. The huge building will not be ready for occupancy before the middle of 1932.

STREET OPENING PROPOSAL UP IN COUNCIL TODAY

The city council at its meeting today will be asked by Ald. Edward J. Kaindl [34th], chairman of the council railway terminals committee, to approve a plan for the opening and widening of five streets through the railroad terminal district at the southern end of the loop. An ordinance for the regulation of mechanical refrigerators also will be up to the council for action.

The street plan provides for the extension on viaducts of Dearborn, La Salle and Franklin streets over the maze of railroad tracks. It also provides for the extension of Taylor and 14th street as east and west arteries. The project, if approved, can be used, according to the alderman, as a lever to force the railroad in that area to proceed with plans for new terminals.

A fight is expected over the refrigerator ordinance. The public health committee has recommended the ordinance supported by the boiler inspection department while a minority report has been submitted by three aldermen who favor the ordinance backed by Health Commissioner Kegel.

JUDGE TO RULE ON EVANSTON SUNDAY MOVIES

The question of whether Sunday movies will be permitted in Evanston will be settled within the next few weeks. Circuit Judge Philip L. Sullivan has taken under advisement a petition for an injunction to restrain the Evanston police from interfering with the Sunday shows.

Master in Chancery George Gorman, in a report recently summitted to Judge Sullivan, held that the referendum last April in favor of Sunday movies requires that the city council expunge its ordinance prohibiting the shows. This was overruled by the judge.

Judge Sullivan, however, held that the ordinance was unconstitutional on the ground that it is religiously discriminatory. The injunction was asked by the Union Bank of Chicago, receivers for the Varsity theater in Evanston.

TODD RESIGNS AS ATTORNEY FOR SCHOOLS

Sullivan, His Foe in War Over Duties, Gets Job.

James Todd, attorney for the board of education since March, 1927, resigned his position at a meeting of the board yesterday. He gave as his reasons "the press of private affairs which prevent me giving the board the necessary time." Thomas V. Sullivan, special assistant attorney, who has been receiving $10,000 a year, was elected to fill the position, which pays $12,000. Todd was retained as a special attorney.

Todd's resignation ended a service which for several months has been filled with dissension and continuous court action over the appointment of his assistants and the designation of their duties.

Todd Goes to Courts.

Sullivan, the new attorney, and Frank Righeimer, another $10,000 a year specialist in charge of condemnation matters, were appointed to their duties, comprising 90 per cent of the legal activity for the board, over Todd's objections. Todd obtained a Circuit court order, which the Appellate court sustained, directing the board to rescind its action. He contended the appointments had left him a figurehead. The case is now pending before the state Supreme court.

Sullivan was brought to Chicago from St. Paul in 1927 by Mayor Thompson as an orator during the mayoralty campaign. Since that time he has held political positions and has been Thompson representative in the 48th ward.

Attorney in Graft Trial.

Last February Sullivan made a trip back to St. Paul to act as attorney for J. E. McMahon, former superintendent of the Ramsey county home and farm, who was under indictments charging graft ranging from pay roll padding to billing the county for whisky as "timothy hay."

McMahon was sentenced to prison for seven years on the charge of forging the name of a tailor on a $550 order for clothing which the county never received. Sullivan returned to Chicago following the trial.

Sullivan first came to public attention when he defended Ben and Al Gleeman in Minnesota on a charge of murdering Burt Stevens in an alcohol hijacking racket. The Gleeman brothers are now serving life sentences.

Garment Makers Will Run Factories on 5 Day Week

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 10.—The H. D. Lee Mercantile company announced today a five day week, with no reduction in wages, will be placed in effect at its garment factories Feb. 1, 1931. The factories are located at Kansas City, South, Bend, Ind.; Trenton, N. J.; Minneapolis, Minn., and San Francisco.

ASK DOUBLE TIME TEACHERS TO GIVE UP ONE POSITION

The board of education yesterday, by a unanimous vote, decided to ask all teachers now holding positions in both day and evening schools to give up their evening school assignments. The resolution, made by Joseph P. Savage, newly appointed trustee, goes into effect at once. The 500 positions left vacant will be given to graduates of the Chicago Normal college, taking up about half of the present teacher surplus.

A resolution favoring unmarried women school teachers was adopted by the board. The resolution stipulated that all future teaching assignments must be given to teachers who are unmarried or whose husbands are unemployed except in cases where such policy would conflict with the civil service laws.

ARRAIGNED FOR KIDNAPING GIRL LOST SINCE 1928

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Albert Edward Corthell, who says he is a physician, pleaded not guilty today to the kidnaping June 3, 1928, of 10 year old Grace Budd, who has never been found.

Corthell, arrested recently in St. Louis, was committed without bail to await trial.

Police alleged Corthell had several aliases and a long criminal record.

Miner Called Kidnaper.

Shenandoah, Pa., Dec. 10.—(AP)—George Weiss, a miner of Port Clinton Schuylkill county, was arrested here today in connection with the kidnaping six months ago of Anna Szakacas, 10 years old, of Cleveland.

State police said Weiss confessed. The girl, they said, had been attending school dressed as a boy. The child's parents in Cleveland will come here to identify her.

SEIZE 2 AND FOIL ROBBERY.

Police of the Fillmore street station, watching two suspicious characters hanging about a garage at 1852 South Crawford avenue early yesterday, captured them just as they were preparing to hold it up. The men were discovered to be paroled convicts from San Quentin [Cal.] penitentiary. They are Thomas Rinfroe, 31 years old, and De Grove Bullock, 29 years old, bank robbers.

REPORT KEGEL PLANS OUSTING OF DR. TONNEY

Calls Noted Scientist In for Conference.

Reports that Dr. Frederick O. Tonney, noted scientist, who for more than 22 years has directed the city's research laboratories in the health department, may be asked to resign by Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, city health commissioner, were prevalent around the city hall yesterday after Dr. Kegel had called Dr. Tonney in for a conference.

Four months ago, when Dr. Tonney was transferred from his post as research director of the municipal laboratories and assigned to other work under Dr. Archibald L. Hoyne, superintendent of the contagious disease hospital, there was considerable comment among the city's foremost scientists. They expressed regret that Dr. Tonney was being deprived of the opportunity to continue his valuable research work.

Transferred to Hospital.

Dr. Tonney was in the midst of carrying on some important experiments in the measurement of ultra-violet rays of the sun when he was summarily transferred last August while he was out of the city on his vacation. He had developed a system of measuring the sun's rays to determine the amount of healthful rays shut off by smoke and clouds, but since his transfer to the contagious disease hospital he has been unable to carry on this work. He recently has been engaged in an experiment with bacteria.

Among scientific men Dr. Tonney has been highly regarded for his work as director of the research laboratories, and in the absence of any apparent reason for his transfer there has been much speculation regarding Dr. Kegel's reported plan. The health commissioner said that he did not desire to have men in his department who did not keep faith, but did not specify in what manner, if any, Dr. Tonney had violated such a principle.

Neither Dr. Tonney nor Dr. Kegel would comment on their conference yesterday, although there were rumors that Dr. Kegel was irked by reports that Dr. Tonney had gone to the state's attorney's office to see what could be done about being restored to his civil service rank as director of the laboratories. Dr. Tonney denied emphatically that he had at any time consulted the state's attorney.

Loses $18 at Poker; Lies to Bride; Honeymoon Over

YOUTH KILLED IN NEW CUBAN RIOTS AGAINST POLICE

HAVANA, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Fresh rioting between the students and police was reported to have broken out in several parts of Cuba late today, resulting in the death of one youth of 18 and the wounding of six others at Sagua la Grande in Santa Claro province. Several students also were wounded in a clash between youths enrolled at the Camaguey Normal school and the rural guard, a branch of the army.

FATHER OF ELEVEN KILLED.

John Vanosky, 55 years old, 5603 Turner avenue, father of eleven children, a section foreman, was killed yesterday when he was struck by a train on the tracks of the Monon railroad at West Fifty-eighth street.

If you walked, head-bent, down the smartest street (which, heaven forbid, you should do, except for this experiment — raindrops do have such a way of sliding inside collars), you could easily pick out the smartest costumes merely by letting your eye travel upwards whenever you spy a pair of Glove galoshes.

Then, if you went into the smartest shoe store you know, you'd find these same galoshes there, in shades to harmonize with all the newest costume colors; and in toe-shapes and heel-heights to fit the newest shoe styles.

LAKE FILL PLAN MUST GET HELP OF LINCOLN PARK

Discuss Project for 235 Acre Recreation Plot.

The Lincoln park board yesterday discussed a measure which would help the south park commissioners push forward their project to add 235 acres of recreation land to Grant park by filling in the lake. At the same meeting the Lincoln park commissioners acted to add 125 acres to their park domain when they let a contract for an 1,800 foot breakwater extending from Montrose avenue to Argyle street. The new land is to be created by filling in between this breakwater and the extension of the outer drive north of Montrose avenue, now being built.

The breakwater contract was let to the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company for $846,400 yesterday. The job includes the building of a dike at Ainslie street and a jetty at Montrose avenue.

Yacht Club Rights Involved.

In discussing the possibilities of coming to the aid of the south park board in the Grant park land project the north side commissioners took cognizance of the fact that the rights of two yacht clubs in Grant park may prove an obstacle to the project. Several of the Lincoln park commissioners indicated that they would favor offering the Chicago Yacht club and the Columbia Yacht club sites on the Lincoln park yacht harbor—between the Navy pier and the Oak street breakwater—in exchange for the yacht clubs' sites in Grant park.

The plan to create the large tract of land off Grant park was evolved in a conference between government engineers and Col. A. A. Sprague, vice chairman of the Chicago plan commission; Hugh E. Young, engineer for the commission, and President Edward J. Kelly of the south park board. At a subsequent meeting of the south park board, George E. Gorman, park attorney, was asked to prepare a petition to congress asking title to the submerged land.

Seek to Extend Harbor Line.

The petition will ask for an extension of the harbor line, which is now at the eastern edge of the outer drive, for 1,650 feet into the lake, Mr. Kelly said yesterday. A petition asking an extension between the river and Randolph street is now being examined by Maj. Herbert J. Wild, federal engineer in the Chicago district. This extension will accommodate approaches to the new outer drive bridge.

"We are anticipating no legal difficulties," Mr. Kelly said. "The city of Chicago and the Illinois Central railroad surrendered their riparian rights in the lake front ordinance of 1919.

"Tentative plans for use of the filled land call for an airplane landing field and room for a large war memorial. These, of course, will leave space for extensive recreation grounds. We expect that the petition will be considered at the present session of congress and the entire project should not take more than two years."

President Warren Wright of the Lincoln park board said yesterday that Col. W. H. Beckman, Lincoln park attorney, probably would be asked to investigate the legal aspects in connection with the possible construction of yacht clubhouses offshore in Lincoln park harbor. Col. Beckman said the park owns 50 feet of submerged land and has riparian rights extending 250 feet into the lake. The area of the harbor is 380 acres.

"I am heartily in favor of the use of the harbor by the clubs if they decide to leave their present sites," Mr. Wright said.

The Lincoln park commissioners ordered that the question of a $3,000,000 bond issue, the proceeds of which would be used for an extension of the outer drive between Foster and Devon avenues, be submitted to the voters on Feb. 24, 1931. This is the third section of a total of $9,000,000 in bond issues approved by the state legislature last year. Two bond issues, already approved by the voters, are financing the present work.

DEMOCRATS SEEK WAY TO UNITE ON ONE FOR MAYOR

Work to Narrow Down Field of Candidates.

BY PARKE BROWN.

In an effort to avoid a family row Democratic leaders began an effort yesterday to devise ways and means of uniting on a single candidate for the mayoralty who will receive the indorsement of the regular organization. Just what form the elimination process will take has not been forecast, but several methods of attempting an agreement have been proposed and the first step will be to find the plan that will be acceptable to all or nearly all the potential candidates. County Chairman Cermak is said to have begun work in this direction already.

With half a dozen or more possible entries pushing themselves or being pushed by their friends, the consensus is that action must be begun almost immediately to shut off the announcements of several candidacies without waiting for action by the organization.

Cite Actions in Past.

In past years the Democrats sometimes have gone through the process of having all candidates' names presented to the county central committee and then referring them to a special committee. There has been objection to this plan this year because Cermak is believed to control a large majority of the committee.

Therefore it has been suggested that a candidates' conference in some form be called. One proposal is that the candidates themselves meet and try to agree on one of their number. Another is that each candidate appoint one member of a special conference committee. And still a third is that the conference consist of the candidates, plus one spokesman or "mouthpiece" for each of them, who will present the arguments on behalf of his favorite and answer those of the other spokesmen.

It is understood that if the conference materializes the candidates considered will include Cermak, Recorder Clayton F. Smith, Michael L. Igoe, Ald. John S. Clark, and Coroner Herman N. Bundesen. Col. A. A. Sprague has notified the leaders positively that he is not to be considered a possibility.

Mayor Thompson Home.

Mayor Thompson returned to the city hall during the afternoon after a two weeks' stay at St. Joseph's sanitarium near Ottawa, but so far as could be learned he observed the same silence on politics here that he had while taking his convalescence outing.

However an announcement of some sort concerning whether he will or will not be a candidate for a fourth term is expected soon.

Thompson's arrival was coincident with an announcement by Michael Carrozzo, boss of several city hall unions, that he and his friends will war on Thompson if he becomes a candidate. Thompson rejected Carrozzo's demand for the dismissal of James Savage as general foreman in charge of granite and miscellaneous repairs in the bureau of streets.

On the advice of Joseph V. Moreschi, international president of the hodcarriers, building and common laborers' union, Carrozzo called off the strike of granite repair foremen and announced he would not call a strike of the street cleaners as he had threatened. The unemployment situation was named as the cause for his change of position.

BANKER HAS PLAN TO MAKE THE VOTER VOTE

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Rome C. Stephenson of South Bend, president of the American Bankers' association, has a cure for the evils of an electorate too indifferent to vote.

He proposes a franchise tax of $30 against every qualified voter. When the voter casts his ballot he gets a receipt canceling the $30 tax. If he fails to vote he will be assessed the $30 and upon refusal to pay without a sound excuse, he shall be imprisoned for a short term.

DRY CONFERENCE ASKS MORE MEN, MONEY AND LAW

Defiance Is Answer to Wet Vote Trend.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Two hundred militant dry leaders gathered here for the annual conference of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment served notice upon congress today that they want bigger and sharper teeth in the prohibition laws. They also want more men and money for federal enforcement.

The conference adopted a resolution asking immediate passage of all the pending Wickersham commission bills, appropriation of the additional funds asked by the enforcement agencies, and the defeat of any legislation designed to modify or weaken the Volstead act or the eighteenth amendment. The conference also expressed its opposition of any move for "an authorized, unprecedented, or unconstitutional referendum" on the prohibition question.

Thirty-three Bodies Represented.

Thirty-three of the strongest dry organizations, including the Anti-Saloon league, W. C. T. U., and Methodist board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals, were represented at the conference.

Mrs. Ella Boole, president of the W. C. T. U., and chairman of the conference, presided. The gavel later was taken by Ernest H. Cherrington, who was elected chairman to succeed her. E. C. Dinwiddie was reelected general secretary.

Despite the wet trend in the recent elections and the wet agitation in congress there was no sign that the dry leaders are willing to compromise on prohibition.

Among the bills which received the endorsement of the conference were the Wickersham so-called juryless trial bills, the unified border patrol bill, and the Howell bill to tighten up enforcement in the District of Columbia.

Oppose All Modification Efforts.

"We oppose all bills that have been introduced or that may be offered to modify or weaken the national prohibition act or other laws for the suppression of the liquor traffic," said the legislative resolution. "We also oppose all bills that have been introduced proposing any amendments to the constitution to restore the legalized liquor traffic in any form."

Prohibition Director W. W. Woodcock said that he emphasized to the conference his policy of concentrating upon commercial violations.

"I told them that I believe our efforts are being successful against commercial violators and I asked their cooperation toward meeting the noncommercial cases," he said. "I believe in education for the private violator and the laws and the courts for the commercial violators."

Mr. Woodcock added that he was questioned on the grape concentrate controversy and reiterated his view that "if anybody sells the concentrate with the intent of violating the law they can be prosecuted. It is purely a question of proving the intent."

The wet convention, sponsored by the Federal Dispensary league, wound up its meetings. The group agreed upon a unified substitute plan for prohibition but it will not be made public until tomorrow.

NEW DENATURANT GIVES ALKY ODOR OF BAD EGGS AND GARLIC

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Discovery and adoption of a formula for denaturing certain kinds of industrial alcohol which is nonpoisonous but which makes the beverage unfit for drinking and cannot be removed by bootleggers was announced today by Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol.

Dr. Doran described the substance, termed alcotate, as having the odor of "rotten eggs and garlic."

The Doran disclosure followed a bitter fight made by the wet bloc in the house of representatives to compel the government to give up the use of wood alcohol and other poisons as denaturants. An amendment to the treasury appropriation bill carrying such a provision was voted down, 106 to 54.

One reason for Dr. Doran's announcement today was said to be the likelihood of a further fight for the anti-poison amendment when the appropriation bill reaches the floor of the senate tomorrow. Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.] has announced that he will sponsor the amendment.

SHEPARD'S LOVE NOTES TO GIRL READ TO JURY

She Will Testify Today in Death of His Wife.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Nearing the climax of its case against Maj. Charles A. Shepard, the government announced today that Miss Grace Brandon, stenographer with whom the 59 year old army medical officer was infatuated, would take the witness stand tomorrow in his trial for the alleged poison murder of his second wife.

A parade of witnesses today related how Shepard had showered flowers and gifts on the girl, including a $1,500 motor car, a pet canary and jewelry and clothing.

Messages Read to Jury.

The prosecution brought out that Shepard had ordered flowers for Miss Brandon through F. H. Hauser, San Antonio florist, before and after his wife's death at Fort Riley, Kan., June 15, 1929.

One letter from Shepard identified by Hauser was dated three days after Mrs. Shepard was stricken with the fatal illness which the government charges was induced by poison administered by Shepard in a plot to remove his wife so he could wed Miss Brandon.

Endearing messages, composed by Shepard to accompany the flowers, were read into the record, giving the jury and spectators a foretaste of the long, ardent epistles to Miss Brandon which the prosecution has announced will be introduced later.

Doctor Testifies.

"I wish I could take the place of these flowers, personally," and "the sweetest of these lilies are symbolic of my sweetheart," were some of the greetings signed with "love" from "Charlie."

Expert testimony in support of the contention that Mrs. Shepard died of poisoning was wound up today when Dr. Frank J. Hall, Kansas City pathologist, in answer to a hypothetical question stated death resulted from "mercurial poisoning."

LIQUOR RUNNERS PAY COAST GUARDSMEN TO PASS, WITNESS AVERS

New York, Dec. 10.—[Special.]—"Revised" immunity prices for rum boats operating off the New Jersey shore range anywhere from $200 to $300 this Christmas, it was brought out at the trial of John Beebe, coast guard mechanic, on "scandalous conduct" charges here today.

Beebe is one of several coast guardsmen accused of accepting bribes from rum runners to let cargoes pass through the "lines" to Atlantic City and other New Jersey points. One of the group rounded up following an investigation into rum conditions along the Jersey coast was tried yesterday—Howard Gifford, a boatsmain's mate.

The findings of the court martial, which is sitting in the navy yard, Brooklyn, were forwarded to Washington, where the decision will be announced.

The immunity rates were quoted by Clarence L. Daniels, boatsman's mate, attached to the Atlantic City coast guard station.

Daniels said he and Gifford, Beebe and a guardsman named "Sooey" had an arrangement with rum runners by which they let cargoes pass for $200 or $300.

DETECTIVE SAVES DANISH MINISTER FROM ASSASSIN

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The quick action of a detective today probably saved the life of K. K. Steincke, minister of social affairs, at the session of the folketing on unemployment.

As Minister Steincke began to speak a young communist, Charles Nielson, hooted him and was dragged from the gallery by four detectives. During the ensuing scuffle Nielson drew a pistel and aimed at Steincke, but a detective pushed his arm before the communist had pulled the trigger. The bullet struck the railing of the visitors' gallery. The minister was nonchalant through it all.

"Let's get on; this is only fireworks!" he shouted dramatically as he continued his speech.

The affair started a police roundup, and late tonight ten other young communists besides Nielson were held in jail. In the meantime the social affairs minister was still calm about the incident. He said communists were nothing to get excited about, since there are fewer than 200 of them in Denmark.

'SUGAR DOGGY'S' 'HONEY HORSIE' ASKS $250,000

Price of a Month's Love Idyl in Vienna.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Comedy and farce played today in the civil courts in several "openings." A glance into the trial chambers revealed the local Solomons sitting in judgment on such perplexing problems as:

Whether a Michigan iron man called "Sugar Doggy" should pay "Honey Horsie" approximately $250,- 00 for a Vienna holiday.

The proper amount of alimony a society matron rates after two consecutive duckings in a tiled duck pond.

The relative legal importance of marital misconduct in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., vs. the same behavior in New York.

The right of a father addicted to "visiting various skating rinks" to administer a $600,000 estate.

A Viennese Interlude.

The "Honey Horsie" case was Supreme Court Justice Alfred J. Townley's offering for the day. It all came out when letters penned by Mlle. Herta Rittell to Connant Hatch, described as a big iron man from St. Joseph, Mich., were read in court. He was her "sugar doggy" and she was his "honey horsie." Mlle. Rittell, who is as blonde as cafeteria coffee, wants $250,000 for four "love mad weeks in Vienna." She very prettily explained the amorous terminology of her letters to the court.

"We stroll by one time a little shop in Paree," gleefully recited Mlle. Rittell, "and there was in the window a leetle doggy. It was made of brown sugar, you see? And I say that ess him—because he wass so very sweet. Now, the honey horsie, eet was me. He call me hees horsie, maybe because I eat so much, I doan know—but the honey, that make it nice."

The little girl from Vienna wants the money for a broken heart.

A Ducked Wife's Tale.

The case of Mrs. Katherine Barbaresi, society matron of Bronxville, up where the estates begin in Westchester county, however, is different. She wants alimony, claiming that her husband, Alfred, who buys and sells lots, houses and such things, tossed her into a duck pond in their flower garden and pushed her back again when she climbed out. Mrs. Barbaresi asked the court for $5,000 counsel fees and $50 a week pending trial of her separation suit.

After the double ducking last September her husband left her, she says, and drove away in one of his $5,000 automobiles. The husband insisted today that his wife is self-supporting and owns a lot of property down in Georgia and that besides he can't even rent a garage. Justice John Beakley reserved decision.

The Complicated Pinders.

The Pinders—the W. Bruce Pinders of Westchester, Long Island, Nassau, and White Sulphur Springs—called for a jury this afternoon to settle their divorce action—it was all so complex. Mrs. Pinder came right out and named Mrs. Robert T. Neely as co-respondent, alleging her husband and Mrs. Neely were guilty of misconduct in White Sulphur Springs last fall. Mrs. Neely checked back and countered that she was with her husband at that time, so how could she be guilty of misconduct? Anyhow, Mrs. Pinder's attorneys say Mr. Pinder, at his winter home in Nassau, is in arrears in alimony.

An ocean island as well as skating rinks also figured in Surrogate James A. Foley's chamber. The Misses Hall, Miriam and Barbara, called there seeking to remove their father, W. Hunt Hall, as administrator of the $600,000 estate of their mother. The daughters charge that their father makes long visits to Bermuda without notifying them and that, although he is an elderly man, he spends a large part of his time at various skating rinks, thereby "improperly applying the estate's funds."

Otherwise it was a pretty dull day in the courts, except, of course, in the criminal division, where the judges try one another.

JACK FROST VISITS MIAMI REGION AND TRUCK CROPS SUFFER

Miami, Fla., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Preliminary estimates of heavy frost damage last night to truck crops in this section reached here today, along with temperature readings ranging from an unofficial 22 degrees north of Miami to an official 35 here.

Richard W. Gray, government meteorologist, said there was "a killing frost pretty generally over muck lands, with light frost adjacent." Frost was reported within the city limits of Miami, Gray added.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

THE WILDER SENATE.

Some hope is had in Washington and in higher rated sections of the country that the house of representatives will be able to hold the senate in check and reduce the nonsense of the short session to a minimum without making a special session unavoidable. This, admittedly, will take some effort.

It is a curious reversal of ideas which makes the house the solid protection against wildness in the senate. That was not in the original intention or expectation. The senate was supposed to be the bulwark of conservatism. The term of six years was intended to protect a senator from sudden storms. The election by legislatures was another remove from popular instability. That has been done away with and is partly responsible for looser wits in the upper chamber.

When the senate, operating according to form, became fossilized, as it did frequently, the conditions seemed to require dynamite. Evidently whatever is has something wrong with it. Now the senate is almost completely rid of any collective responsibility. It is a disorganized aggregation of willful personalities enjoying the egotism without hindrance from any accepted traditions or rules of conduct. The more sober minded of the Conscript Fathers can get under their desks when the storm breaks, but that is about all they can do.

Party responsibility has ceased to be. Except in meaningless records there is no party majority and no party control. There are certain Republicans who have no means of distinguishing themselves from certain Democrats. The real control, if any is exercised, is in the hands of men who have no party affiliation whatever.

The larger membership of the house, with the short term of two years, predictably would make a volatile assembly giver to half considered or half cracked ideas to be well baked or rejected in the senate. It proves, however, that the very mass of the house represses eccentricity and individual caprice. Organization rules and the individual member generally finds it safer to return to his district every two years with the stamp of party regularity on him than to try for any distinctive personal performance which would pay out for him at the polls.

Consequently the house is now composed to stand the shock of senate wildness and to hold the six year irresponsibles in check. If the Founders could know that they would think half their ideas were all wrong, but it would not be the only thing in the government which would astonish them.

THE HAPPY ENDING.

That the governments of Europe, or at least those having the most important relations with Russia, have tried to keep informed in the only manner which soviet censorship makes possible—that is, secretly—upon internal Russian affairs is virtually certain. That there are groups in European countries, especially in Paris, that have been trying and will continue to try to encourage revolt against the bolshevik régime is also certain. The testimony of the alleged conspirators whose sentences have just been commuted was hardly necessary to establish these facts. The soviet, which through its agency of Red International is constantly indulging in mischief in other countries, is hardly in a position to justify its display of righteous indignation on that score. What was significant and interesting in the confessions was their temper, their sweeping acknowledgments of guilt and charges against men now dead, their emphatic generalities and vagueness as to many details, and their obvious effort to make out a case of injured virtue for the bolshevik tyranny.

That was good politics from the soviet viewpoint of its effect upon public opinion in Russia, because of its instant effect in inflaming Russian patriotism and communist partisanism. Whether the confessions were given their form and scope by threats of torture may be dismissed as really irrelevant. But the prompt commutation of the sentences will not fail to increase the skepticism of the outside world, if not that of whatever free judgment remains, under cover, in Russia, as to the validity of the melodrama. Clemency to dissenters, much less to conspirators, has not been shown by the communist tyranny up to this time. Why now? And why to men who have confessed to the organization of what the soviet government asks its people and the world to believe was a most dangerous scheme for the overthrow of the soviet and the invasion of Russia by foreign armies?

Millions of Russians have been slaughtered by the communist government without evidence of overt revolt, on suspicion, on the policy of destroying the bourgeoisie, because of individual resistance to measures of confiscation. Tens of thousands of what are called kulaks, or "rich peasants," have been executed for trying to escape grain exactions. The communist power waded to power through blood and supports its rule today by ruthless force. Therefore this sudden show of clemency is more than suspicious. Unexplained and unprecedented, it has every appearance of a bargain. The conspirators caught in a foolish plot, in which misinformation as to the intention of foreign governments encouraged them, went far beyond the natural confession of exposed conspirators and virtually turned their wrongdoing into a brief for the soviet government. Death was the reasonable, the certain, expectation of complicity in a conspiracy to overthrow the government and open the frontiers of Russia to invading armies.

Is it reasonable to believe that the ruthless vengeance and despotic policy of the communist masters of Russia would suddenly feel the gentle influence of mercy? Common sense will look for the real motive, and it is not obscure. The conspiracy trial was a great show. The sequel is illuminating.

THE LEAGUE AND THE FOG.

The league of nations, it is reported from Liege, has sent an urgent wire to the Belgian government asking for the scientific explanation, if any, of the fog which was deadly in the zinc production districts. Evidently the secretariat in Geneva or a loose humanitarian on one of the commissions has discovered an equivalent of the man-eating shark or a new way to give the sultan hell. It ought to be possible for the altruists of Geneva, in the secretariat or even in the council or a plenary session of the assembly, to come out strong against death-dealing fogs not provided for in the treaty of Versailles or other instruments for the application of the peace to peoples who were down when that peace was contrived and who since, under its administration, have about passed out.

A little something on the better side might be welcomed in the Geneva agenda and possibly could be worked up into a brilliant opus showing the essential tenderness of the league of nations. This is the one fog in which the leaguists might be able to see their way about. They have abandoned the others as too thick. Of them the less said the better. Numbers of mandated peoples and minorities have ceased to cry for help because they have come to realize the ironic futility of making any noise at all in their desperate conditions.

The lathi stricken East Indians, raw from the flailings they have received in their nonresistance, would consider themselves fools indeed if they appealed to Geneva against their treatment. The Lithuanians have long ago taken their troubles home. The Hungarians have shut up and expect some day to work out their own salvation or not have it acquired. The Tyrol is silent because no one would listen. European, Asiatic, and African, as injured by the peace of the millennium, have withdrawn to hide their wounds.

When the league discovers that Belgian industrialists may not care for any scientific inquiry into the new fog it will return to its safer interest in the man-eating shark or the size of the gold reserve in the United States and how to reduce it.

A QUEEN FOR MR. SHAW.

Queen Elizabeth of the Belgians has apparently succeeded in forcing a scientific inquiry into the causes of the numerous deaths which accompanied the fog in the lower valley of the Meuse. The politicians were inclined to regard the deaths as an act of God, a misfortune to be regretted and forgotten. They preferred to bury the mystery with the victims. There is an intimation in the dispatches that the cabinet did not wish to inquire too closely into the responsibility which might attach to the owners of certain zinc works in the vicinity, although there is some reason to believe that fumes from factory chimneys may have poisoned the victims.

The queen on her own authority appointed a scientific committee to prosecute the inquiry wherever it might lead, thus confounding the politicians. Her act will be understood by all those who have seen Mr. Shaw's "Apple Cart." It is a case for Mr. Shaw's book if ever there was one. The royal family, he says, is above the political battle. It owes nothing to the men of power in the nation, whether they owe their influence to birth, to wealth or to votes. The monarch is therefore uniquely free to act as a nation's conscience; it is his function to intercede in defense of human rights. He can do so with impunity because his job is secure.

Historically there is a good deal to be said for Mr. Shaw. The monarchies rose to power in western Europe largely because they took the side of the ordinary man, especially the merchant of the cities, against grasping nobles. Mr. Shaw neglected, however, to say that a good many kings have failed to understand their jobs as well as Mr. Shaw does. The kaiser actually encouraged arrogance on the part of army officers; the present king of Italy has not prevented the most outrageous abuses of human rights by the Fascists. The czar, had he been a Shavian king, would have prevented the Russian revolution; in fact, he made it inevitable. Elizabeth of Belgium is the exceptional rather than the customary monarch. She has few counterparts outside Mr. Shaw's pages.

Editorial of the Day

MILK DOWN ONE CENT.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

With constriction of the pocketbook on the farm, the American cow has come nobly to the fore, as of course she might have been expected to do. There are 22,500,000 of her now in the country, almost one to every six of the population; in fact, 650,000 more of her than there were last year, and she added a present or prospective $3,000,000,000 to help fill out that farm pocketbook. How much more this is than the pocketbook aid provided by congress anybody can figure. While her numbers are up 3 per cent, dairy consumption is down 10 per cent for obvious reasons. However, while her primary product is classed as perishable in the freight schedules, much of it has been given a form that will keep, has gone into cans as condensed milk, into cheese, into butter, whose freshness now can be preserved longer than was formerly practicable.

The wealth she brought to us in her unobtrusive way is a little more than $12 per cow. The maximum average from any class of cows is 581 gallons of milk a year, which falls in the case of other classes to 523 gallons, both much less than averages in Denmark and other dairying countries. The net to the farmers appears, accordingly, to be only a little more than 2 cents a gallon, and some farmers say there is no net. Only about 5 per cent of our cows are pedigreed cows, when we should have 50 per cent or more.

Supply having outrun demand we have, despite drought and other things, seen the paradox of 1 cent being clipped off the retail price of milk at the beginning of the very winter season in St. Louis, when the price ordinarily goes up. It is a paradox we are not likely to see at the beginning of many future winters.

PROVES EXERCISE PAYS.

THIS is the story of a man who believes in keeping fit, who crowns his faith with his works, and who is willing to submit himself as proof that he is right, both in theory and in practice. He is now halfway between the eighty-first milepost and its successor, having, by reason of strength, exceeded the Biblical allowance for men of his class by a good margin. Furthermore, he is marching toward the century mark with hopes of passing it.

His form of exercise is walking. He has kept a log since 1910. He may have started this practice at an earlier date, but the only record which I have is that which began Oct. 1, 1910, and ran to the same date in 1930. In that time the record shows he walked 53,533 miles, or at the rate of 7 1-3 miles a day. His maximum was achieved in 1924, when he was 75 years old. In that year he walked 3,725 miles, an average of more than 10 miles a day. His minimum was in 1920, in which year he accomplished 2,245 miles, a little more than six miles a day on an average. In twelve of the years he averaged between seven and eight; in two, between eight and nine; in one, between nine and ten, and in the other, over ten miles as already stated.

These figures are taken from a summarized statement. The daily logs show distance walked, route, weather, and some reactions. Keeping the record and making it something of a diary has added zest and prevented the task from becoming monotonous.

But this is not the only method of keeping fit made use of by Mr. Collier. A favorite indoor sport with him is lying on his back and raising his legs to a perpendicular position. He can raise his legs and the lower part of his body until nothing touches the floor except his head, neck, and shoulders. He gave me this information just before we witnessed a motion picture of a fight between a cobra and a mongoose. When we saw this cobra raise his body high up in the air I thought, "Old boy, when it comes to lifting your body from the ground you have nothing on Mr. Collier."

Mr. Collier tells me he has never lost a day from work on account of illness.

MARASMUS IN YOUNG.

A. R. writes: Does marasmus ever affect children in any way when they get older, or does it affect their mind in any way?

REPLY.

These children are not only underweight but the growth of stature and framework is interfered with. The measurement of mentality, is not easy, but there are reasons for thinking it too is adversely affected. However, recuperation due to good feeding and good digestion may accomplish wonders. We see it shown in the sleek, fine cattle seen on far western pastures after the rain starts and the grass has become good. These fat yearlings were packs of bones during the drought.

There is some dispute among physiologists as to the completeness of recovery after marasmus. Some contend that permanent marks are left on vital organs. Some hold that recovery may be complete.

SLEEPING ON STOMACH.

E. E. R. writes: In reply to a question from W. J. T. recently you said that well people "never sleep on the stomach for many minutes consecutively." I am perfectly well, sleep soundly (most of the time without having moved) and have slept on my stomach ever since I can remember, and I am nearly 52 years of age. I sleep with my left hand under my chin, my right hand under my stomach, and my left knee bent somewhat.

REPLY.

You meant to tell me that I did not know what I was writing, though you were kind enough to be indirect about it. In spite of your courtesy I want to disagree with you. If you will have an umpire watch you sleep and a secretary keep the score the record will prove that you flop front to back, back to side every few minutes just as do all others here below.

THE FEMININE AGE.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is it necessary for a woman, whose profession demands more or less secrecy concerning her age, when questioned as a witness before court, to state her exact age, or may she with impunity answer, "Over 25," or "Over 35," or whatever limit may be deemed suitable? Have seen cases where a woman has "admitted to 36," or some such age, which would indicate a margin has been taken. Would such answer stand in court? A. J. J.

If the information is material then a false answer would be punishable as perjury. You do not give us the facts to determine whether it is material.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

STREET STEPS ARE TEMPORARY.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—[Friend of the People.]—When will the stairs at the southeast corner of the Civic Opera building at Madison street be permanently built? On account of the present narrow stairs hundreds of people are required to cut across through traffic. This is not only dangerous, but delays street cars and traffic generally. A. C. S.

This office had this matter up with the architects and owners of the property. They are working on plans to relieve the condition complained of regarding the stairs at the southeast corner of the Civic Opera building at Madison street.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

RENEWAL BY IMPLICATION.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I signed a lease for my flat which expired last Oct. 1. The landlord and myself did not discuss renewing same. I now wish to move and wish to know if I will be held liable for breaking the lease. The lease does not contain anything about automatic renewal upon expiration. Please let me know if I can move now or after giving sixty days' notification. H. J. H.

Where a tenant under a lease for a definite term holds over beyond the term and the landlord accepts additional rent, these circumstances, in the absence of other circumstances showing a contrary intent on the part of the landlord, result in a renewal by implication so that neither party can terminate the tenancy nor increase the rent during such renewal.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By A. A.

IF CAL WROTE ABOUT IT IN HIS COLYUM.

Northampton, Mass.—We should all deeply deplore the somewhat strained relations existing at present in our national capitol between two most important branches of our great government. This is the greatest, the richest country on earth, and misunderstandings can always be avoided. Birds in their little nests agree and 'tis a shameful sight when members of one family fall out and quarrel and fight. The word or two of criticism should always be followed by a kiss. Expenditures in government affairs can always be equalized. If more money is demanded for any purpose out of the ordinary it may be secured by economizing in other directions. Using the stubs of lead pencils and retaining waste baskets for twice their ordinary tenure of office, shutting off the light in the halls at 9 o'clock every evening, and reading the newspaper over the shoulder of some one in the street car would, if adopted extensively in all the government departments in Washington, soon provide a large floating fund to be used for exigencies. Save the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves. Willful waste makes woeful want. How often we hear people exclaim: "Oh, how I wish I had the crust which once I threw away." Even the demanding of apologies invites waste, because the letter paper on which the apology is written and the ink, to say nothing of the pen and the postage stamp, all involve unnecessary expense. The senate is a large body and a letter of apology to each senator, plus the cost of the stamps, would put the government to great expense, especially if the senate should regard the incident as a precedent and demand an apology every day. Even if an apology was demanded from the White House only once a week the cost would be considerable and the money might well be spent on other things. The country will earnestly hope that the present unhappy difference of opinion in Washington will soon disappear and that all will join hand in hand to the great work of advancing the glory of our magnificent country. Oh, say, can you see, by the dawn's early light, what so gladly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming, whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous night, o'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming? And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air, gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there. Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave, o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

FOR AN OLD LOVE.

My thoughts return to you
Through winding lanes of years;
They go like peaceful nuns,
Remote from passion's thrall,
Their eyes undimmed by tears.

My thoughts return to you
Unladened now with pain
Or ecstasy; they go
Like reverent calm nuns
Revisiting a fane.

My thoughts return to you
Like nuns that murmur low
A prayer for the dead,
A blessing full, profound,
On one loved long ago.

ADELAIDE P. LOVE.

"BECOME a farmer's bride and be happy!" says Mrs. Ellsworth Richardson of Albia, Iowa, who has just won the distinguished service medal from the American Farm Bureau federation. Wait, girls! If the farmer's wife is so all-fired happy, why does the senate think the farmers have to have $60,000,000 for relief? Or maybe it's the prospect of getting the sixty million bucks that's going to make the farmers' wives so happy. Anyhow, with wheat at 70 and 80 cents a bushel, you'd better think it over, girls.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 11, 1914.

LONDON.—Roulers, until the last few days headquarters of the German army staff in West Flanders, has been captured by the allies. The place is 12 miles northeast of Ypres. Armentieres, for a long time held by the Germans, also has fallen into the hands of the British, according to a Boulogne correspondent. The capture of these two cities verifies the many reports that the Germans are falling back before the offensive movement of the allies.

BERLIN.—The German official press bureau says: "Immediately Germany received the suggestion of Pope Benedict for a truce among the warring nations during the Christmas holidays an affirmative reply was sent to the Vatican. The reply was conditional, however, on the acquiescence of all the other belligerents in the pope's suggestion." Pope Benedict sent out recently a request to all the powers for a Christmas time truce.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Representative Serene E. Payne of New York died suddenly of heart disease. He was 70 years old, long a Republican leader in congress, and a noted tariff authority. He was Republican floor leader in 1909-'10 and directed the drafting of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

CHICAGO.—A London dispatch says that Sol Lewinson, the fugitive Chicago banker and straw bondsman, has been released from Brixton prison. He was freed through the efforts of Jack Norworth, the actor, and Lou M. Houseman of Chicago, who forwarded the money to effect his release.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. — Joseph Smith, president of the reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints, died here at the age of 82. By an announcement made eight years ago his son, Frederick M. Smith, 37 years old, becomes his successor.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 11, 1900.

CHICAGO. — The resignation of Joseph Kipley, superintendent of police, is in the hands of Mayor Harrison. It has not been acted upon because the question of his successor has not yet been determined. The resignation never would have been sent in had it not been asked for. Four men are being considered as Kipley's successor. They are Capt. John Wheeler, Capt. Herman F. Schuettler, Chief of Detectives Colleran, and Acting Superintendent Ptacek.

CHICAGO.—The city was divided into 35 new wards by the city council last night without regard to distribution of population. A snap redistricting ordinance framed by the "gang" was rushed through by a vote of 43 to 23. The boundary lines of the new wards twist and turn to make the tenure in office of most of the aldermen certain.

LONDON.—The Evening Standard, which has particularly good sources of information, publishes the story that a great battle is on between the British forces under Gen. Knox and the Boers under Gen. De Wet.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 11, 1880.

NEW YORK.—John Kelly's political career is ended and his remains, figuratively speaking, were swept from the city hall by the aldermanic broom wielded by Mayor Cooper, when he was deposed as city controller. The man who has controlled the patronage of a municipality more important than that of many states and wielded the power of a despot is dethroned. The fall of Kelly and his Tammany "heelers" has caused excitement such as the city has not known since the collapse of Tweed and his ring.

ANDERSON, Ind.—The Madison county courthouse here was destroyed by fire and the records of the clerk's and the sheriff's offices burned. The recorder's and treasurer's offices were in another building and escaped the fire.

ATHENS.—Greece is preparing for war and the Greek parliament has negotiated for a large loan. It is said that Garibaldi's son has offered to raise 7,000 men for the Greek army. Turkey offers to cede certain portions of territory to Greece but will not yield Janina, Metzova or Larissa, which are demanded by Greece.

THE PRESS TABLE IN CHURCH.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—At the end of an editorial concerning the antics of an ex-judge who recently attempted to disturb the services of a New York cathedral, probably to seek notoriety or advertise his lectures, you allude to the "press table" as a "new article of church furniture." I venture the opinion that the growing use of the press table and the radio in American churches is in response to the great desire of the public to read about and hear services which they cannot attend. Leading newspapers throughout the country print more sermons and church news than ever before. Prominent broadcasting chains and local stations devote increasing time on Sundays and throughout the week to messages from pulpits in every part of the country. This is evidence that the great majority of the American people are morally sound and continue to receive their greatest and best inspiration from the Word of God.

Let the press print more of it; let the air be filled with it; it cannot be too widely broadcast. ANGUS HIBBARD.

FREE SPEECH.

Elmhurst, Ill., Dec. 9. — Of course Judge Lindsey's plea for "right of free speech" is as unreasonable as it is silly in this instance. If any one, then the eminent Colorado ex-judge knows that a church is not a public forum where any one, whether attacked or not, may rise at his pleasure to defend his views. If privately supported churches should serve such purposes, what about colleges and universities where similar attacks, even with personal reference, are made, possibly every day; would an author attacked in a classroom of even a public institution like a state university have the right to enter at his will and demand that he be heard in his defense? Obviously not, and of course Judge Lindsey has as much opportunity for defending himself publicly as well as privately as the eminent divine in St. John's had for attacking him.

If I hadn't a high regard for Judge Lindsey, I should be tempted to think that he and his friends deliberately staged this fracas for purposes of advertising his views.

KARL M. CHWOROWSKY.

PERSONALITIES IN THE PULPIT.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Your editorial of this morning concerning Judge Lindsey's protest against Bishop Manning's strictures was, as usual, interesting but—also, as usual—quite beside the point. Judge Lindsey should have preserved the decorum belonging to public worship. On the other hand Bishop Manning should have preserved the decorum belonging to those who occupy the pulpit.

His duty as a Christian minister was to state the case of the church against companionate marriage, impersonally. He had no right in that place to impugn the bona fides of Judge Lindsey or anybody else. The persons abused with his tongue have the right of protest in the place where the abuse was suffered. The pulpit has been too free with personalities to merit the protection it has received as part of a sacred place. If the law is to be invoked to preserve the peace of our sanctuaries it behooves those in charge of those sanctuaries to be scrupulous in their avoidance of personal abuse.

Religion has been seriously damaged in recent years through this abuse of the pulpit. It was recently stated that 83 per cent of the men of America have abandoned the habit of church going. That is bad for America, but those who occupy our pulpits are chiefly to blame, in that they have used the pulpit less to enunciate eternal principles than to abuse their opponents. That goes not for companionate marriage merely but for prohibition also—as well as for some other lost causes.

COPELAND-SMITH.

A REPLY TO MR. CERMAK.

Oak Park, Ill., Nov. 28.—Without questioning the correctness of any of his figures, it might prove interesting to follow along the line of thought suggested by Anton J. Cermak in his letter which appeared in the Voice of the People today.

Two hundred million dollars has been spent by the federal government for prohibition enforcement in the last nine years—the enormous sum of $1.67 per capita. After dividing this by nine makes the enforcement expense about 18 cents per year for each inhabitant. Now I, for one, believe that the good old U. S. A. is a better place to live in than it was a dozen years ago, and I shall very willingly continue to pay my 18 cents per year toward keeping away from open saloon conditions.

It is enlightening to note that in 1914 a barrel of "good beer" sold at $5.50, and paid a tax of $1. But that same barrel when dispensed in 5 cent drinks sold at over $40. In other words, some poor suckers had to spend $40 for something worse than useless to yield $1 of tax. Certainly not a very efficient method of raising tax money. There are doubtless some others besides myself who would prefer to spend $39 for something of value and pay a dollar tax, if necessary, in a direct form.

It is true that increased consumption of beer would make work, and thereby help to relieve unemployment. But to what extent is it true? Let us see! That $40 worth of beer sold to the saloonkeeper for $5.50, and paying $1 of tax, must have cost the brewer to make $4.50 less his profit [and you know brewers did make some profit], less selling costs, less overhead, less transportation, etc. Perhaps the farmer who sold the grain, and the laborer who changed it into beer, together got a dollar or so out of it. No, taking $40 of the laborer's money in order to furnish a dollar's worth of work for labor is not going to make prosperity.

Why is not this a reasonable way to look at the whole problem of liquor control? If alcohol is a detriment to society as a whole it should be eradicated by every means possible. If it is a benefit, by all means let's have it; the more the better; let it be sold in any form, in any quantity, by any one, to any one, without restriction and without any government control. Thus we will get the whole matter out of politics, there will be no more crime, we will all respect all the laws, and sin will be forever banished from the face of the earth. H. LOUIS AUTEN.

NOTHING COSTS SO MUCH AS FAILURE

IT is the customary and seemingly prudent thing for business to seek to "limit its losses" in times of depression.

But don't forget that you can "sweat" the punch out of a business organization no less than out of a prizefighter.

There might be neither point nor timeliness to this warning if at the moment all business in America were bad.

But all business in America isn't bad by a long shot—on the contrary a host of businesses today are driving ahead full tilt to record sales and profits!

IF you are naive enough to think that Prosperity can be conjured back by poiitical fiat, organized hoping, or Providential grace—go ahead, have fun.

In the meantime if you want your business to march abreast with that sound and successful fraternity mentioned above there are these simple things to be done:

See to it that your goods honestly measure up to the times — in style, value, quality, utility.

See to it that your sales energies are planned to do the job, not merely keep within the budget.

See to it that your advertising is bull's-eye in aim, sure-shot in appeal, siege-gun in amount.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST knows something about that prescription because it is taking it.

And it is going steadily ahead in these times as for thirty years past, at its usual rate of an additional hundred thousand readers every year.

It offers alert American business a success-paved avenue to the minds and pocketbooks of the sanest, soundest, richest three million families in the world.

You can't buy its values elsewhere; if its cost as an indispensable part of any bigger-business-program right now should worry you, remember this:

Nothing costs so much as failure!

CHILE SEIZES 14 IN PLOT TO BLOW UP PRESIDENT

Conspirators Seen Hiding 25 Pounds of Dynamite.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Fourteen persons, ranging from professors and students to lawyers and merchants, are held in connection with a plot against the life of President Carlos Ibanez, thwarted last night by government agents.

The government press bulletin described the conspiracy as developed by "a number of high persons, in conjunction with anarchistic elements."

Secret Agent in Plot.

Fifteen originally were arrested, but one was a government secret service operative who worked into the group and gave all details of the plot to police.

With this knowledge the police permitted the plotters to proceed with their scheme and even watched them lay 25 pounds of dynamite under a railroad bridge across the River Maido, 20 miles from Sanitago. This happened a short time before the presidential train was due to pass.

Then the agents jumped in, captured six plotters on the scene, disconnected the electric wires which were to have set off the charge, and arrested a seventh conspirator who sat nearby in an automobile which had conveyed the group to the railroad. Seven other accomplices were rounded up in Santiago later.

Press Demands Penalties.

The president, unmoved by the incident, went about his work today in his usual fashion. The public reaction against the plotters, however, was severe and the press united today in demanding the stiffest penalties.

With the ringleaders of the plots of Sept. 21 and yesterday behind the bars the press declares the position of President Ibanez to be the strongest in two years, and asserts that he has demonstrated effectively that his administration can take care of any revolutionary movement.

BANDITS "OWN" BANK FOR HOUR AND TAKE $45,000

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Four unmasked robbers took charge of the Interstate National bank for more than an hour early today, waited the opening hour of a time lock on the vault, and then escaped with $45,000 loot.

One of the robbers followed Austin Young, Negro janitor, into the bank, located on the second floor of the Live Stock Exchange building. He drew an automatic pistol and ordered Young to proceed with the morning cleaning as though nothing unusual was happening. Three companions of the robber then appeared.

One by one the bank's employés and officers came in to begin the day's work. Each was compelled to "step right over here" or "go over in the corner and sit down with the crowd."

Twenty-seven persons had gathered before the vault could be opened. While the time clock clicked away the minutes some of the women engaged in repartee with the bandits.

"Well," one robber remarked, "it is getting around Christmas time, and we have to have some money."

"But what will we do about Christmas?" a girl clerk asked.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 10.—Reports from Puerto Acosta, on the border of Lake Titicaca, 70 miles from La Paz, say that the arrival of a government plane stopped fierce fighting between three old Aymara Indian clans, called Chinaja, Patapatani, and Soccon. They are the largest of the vestiges of pre-Columbian social organizations and have remained land owners in the exact area and location where they were established in the pre-Incas period. The clans are armed with tools or their primitive weapon, called an onda, used to throw stones. The break in the traditional harmony of clan intercourse is declared to be due to the pernicious influences exercised by the white stock of a nearby mine, inducing one clan to violate old frontiers of their sayana, or area, accorded to the clan to live in from times immemorial.

Winter warning!

Stay Out of Crowds Or Else Guard Your Mouth and Throat!

Winter exposes you to many infections. Deadly germs get in their work during the cold months. The person next to you in the street car may be handing you a nice case of Grippe. A sneeze in the office may scatter some pretty sore throats. Sickness threatens from all sides. The wise thing to do is to realize it and put up defences. You can do nothing better than rinse your mouth and throat every morning and night with a solution of one part Extol and three parts water.

Reaches the Hidden Germs

Extol is the amazing new antiseptic mouth wash and throat gargle that is revolutionizing all standards of germicidal efficiency. It was recently perfected by one of the world's largest pharmaceutical houses. It kills germs faster than any other mouth wash ever known—so fast it is called the "10-second germicide". One minute of gargling with Extol beats hours with any other preparation. It is so highly germicidal that diluted even 1 to 3 it is more efficient than any ordinary mouth wash used straight. Also it is highly penetrating! This is important, for an antiseptic to be effective must penetrate the folds and crevices of the mouth and throat; also the mucous membrane so it can reach the germs that lie hidden underneath the outer layer of mucosa. Extol reaches the hidden germs that other antiseptics miss.

Delightful to Use

Used as a preventive measure, Extol will guard against colds, sore throats and other infections. If a head cold or a soreness of the throat has already set in, it will relieve it promptly. It is also an excellent means of keeping the gums and teeth in good condition and the breath sweet and pure. Swift and efficient as it is in action, Extol is utterly harmless. As for flavor and refreshing effect, it makes ordinary mouth washes seem insipid by comparison. And, finally, it is more economical to use. Not only costs less than the average antiseptic, but permitting a more liberal dilution, goes much further. All McKesson Service Druggists and other independent drug stores sell Extol. Get a bottle today for the protection of your family—adults as well as children. Note the name, EXTOL—a McKesson & Robbins product.

BRITISH MAGNATE SEES NATION IN 'DEEPEST ABYSS'

Assails Government for the Dole System.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Great Britain is now in the deepest economic abyss in living memory, Lord Inchcape, shipping magnate, told the annual meeting of the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship company today during a withering tirade against governmental policies, which he bitterly accused of "raiding the fruits of thrift" through taxation and the dole.

Lord Inchcape laid most of the troubles of England to the Labor government's policies, but he swept wide enough to embrace the gloomy picture of depression and political unrest in all quarters of the globe. He was unrelenting in his discussions of England.

Assails High Taxation.

"I have never known trade to be so bad as in the last few months," he said. "A man who earns a good income by means of brains, industry, and application is now called on to contribute £2.88 of $4.86 for income tax and supertax while he is alive, and the death duties absorb, in most cases, 50 per cent of his estate when he dies. "This raid on the fruits of industry and thrift in itself is a sufficient cause of regret. But the worst aspect of the matter is that a large part of this reckless plunder is dispensed with a too lavish hand in the payment of doles. The relief, which approaches too nearly, and in some cases oversteps, the wage level, is morally and financially a sin against the people. Truly, it is a rake's progress.

Points to Rest of World.

"The disturbances, lawlessness and boycott in India, the financial uncertainty of Australia and the unending civil strife in China have contributed to the severe fall of the sterling value of the dollar and the tael. This is seriously affecting shipping."

The board was able to recommend a five per cent dividend for deferred stockholders, however, making the total annual payment ten per cent, tax free. This represents a two per cent reduction.

Lord Inchcape's speech embodied a scathing rebuke to agitation for shorter working hours.

"You hear talk about 36 or 40 hours' work a week being enough for any one," he said. "For the last 60 years I have worked 60 hours a week and am none the worse for it."

Speaking of communism, Lord Inchcape declared:

"The whole thing is moonshine."

"If I may venture to say so," he declared, "the future of this country, to a great extent, is in the hands of the leaders of the trade unions. Let us trust that they will realize the economic condition of the country in the arena of international competition. If they don't, we will come to grief and they and their members will share in the disaster. I do not believe for a moment that we will ever fall into the abyss of communism."

Expect Big Budget Deficit.

The Labor government's next budget, experts estimate, will show a deficit of between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000, Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden admitted tonight at a private meeting of the Labor party members that there would be a large deficit, as the normal yield of revenue usually expected at the present time of the year was not being realized, due to the trade slump.

The chancellor declared, however, that industry was too depressed to stand the strain of any further taxation.

SIX POLICEMEN GUARD NEW YORK WITNESS WHO TELLS OF GRAFT

New York, Dec. 10.—[Special.]—An extraordinary precaution for the safety of Chile Mapocho Acuna, the stool pigeon who has testified to police graft, "frameups," and perjury, was taken today, when Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney assigned six lieutenants who are at the head of the list for promotion to guard him every minute of the day. No veteran in the department could recall when such a bodyguard had ever before been given to a witness.

Acuna spent most of this morning crying, in the offices of Isidor J. Kresel, special counsel for the appellate division's investigation of conditions in and about the city magistrates' courts, where the stool pigeon's testimony was first brought out.

Indictments against three more persons were returned today by the September grand jury, which is investigating racketeering, making a total of eight persons indicted in two days. The new indictments charged conspiracy in connection with an alleged racket in the pocketbook manufacturing business.

FIRE DESTROYS HOODOO LINER ON WAY TO JUNKPILE

Once Proud Ship Burns to Water Line at Last Dock

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The bad luck which has dogged the wake of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland finally overtook the aged vessel at the dock at Blyth today as flames gutted the once greatest vessel afloat while it awaited the scrappers' hammers.

The aged ship was towed in a couple of days ago and a large gang was signed up to tear her apart, but fire, which once destroyed much of her superstructure, appeared again before she reached the nautical graveyard. She lay in the harbor tonight, red hot plates sizzling in the water, while flames ate away at what were once the most elaborate fittings known.

Nearly Sank Last May.

The ship's first fire occurred at Alexandria in 1928, when part of the deck was destroyed before it was extinguished. In 1925 she collided with the freighter Scottsburg near New York, and it was feared that she would sink last May when she went aground on the mud banks of the St. Lawrence river. The passengers were ferried ashore.

The Empress of Scotland's final hoodoo broke out today in the second class cabins and nearly claimed the lives of 8 men aboard as the flames rapidly spread to the ship's fuel tanks that still contained 300 tons of oil. The blaze is believed to have started from a short circuit. All the fire fighting equipment in the town failed to master the blaze. All shipping in the vicinity withdrew to a safe distance and an attempt was made to scuttle the liner. This failed, too, and superstitious sailormen were forced to stand by while the floating furnace, suffering her last and to them inevitable misfortune, lighted up the river banks for miles around.

Was Once German.

The Empress of Scotland was built in 1905 for the Hamburg line. As the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria she was the biggest ship in the world at the time. She was surrendered to Great Britain after the war and converted into a honeymoon ship for round the world cruises. At one time there were 27 engagements among the passengers on a single cruise.

PAPER COMPANY SEEKS RECEIVER FOR PUBLISHERS

Lea Interests Involved in Bond Suit.

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Receivers for the Tennessee Publishing company, publishers of the Nashville Tennessean and the Evening Tennessean, and the Southern Publishers, Inc., holding company owning all of the stock of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, Inc., and the Knoxville Journal and Tribune company were asked in separate actions filed here today.

A general creditors' bill asking a receiver for the Tennessee Publishing company was filed first by the Minnesota and Ontario Paper company of Minneapolis in Chancery court. A few hours later the Nashville Trust company, the Minnesota and Ontario Paper company, and D. D. Robertson, receiver for the Bank of Tennessee, instituted a suit asking for a receiver for Southern Publishers, Inc., a Nashville holding company.

Suits Not Related.

The suits, attorneys said, had no connection other than the indirect fact that Col. Luke Lea, Nashville publisher, is a controlling factor in all the papers involved.

Earlier in the day D. D. Robertson, receiver for the closed Liberty Bank and Trust company here filed suit for approximately $166,000 against Col. Lea and others for funds alleged to be due the institution.

The Memphis Commercial Appeal, Inc., publishes the Commercial Appeal and the Memphis Evening Appeal, while the Knoxville Journal and Tribune company publishes the Knoxville Journal. The newspaper properties in Memphis and Knoxville are not involved, attorneys said.

The bill filed against the Southern Publishers, Inc., of which Col. Lea is president and of which Rogers Caldwell is a director, seeks to impound Memphis Commercial Appeal, Inc., stock now held by the Nashville Trust company as a pledge against a $1,500,000 bond debenture issue of the Southern Publishers, Inc., the debenture was purchased by the Minnesota and Ontario Paper company.

Alleged violations of the trust indenture agreement are cited in the bill as a reason that a receiver should be appointed to take charge of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, Inc., stock.

Charge Mismanagement.

One violation of the agreement, it was alleged, consisted in mismanagement of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, Inc.

Luke Lea Jr., vice president of the Tennessee Publishing company, said in a statement the receivership suit came as a "complete surprise" and that the company is "absolutely solvent."

He also quoted Col. Lea, who is returning here from a business trip, as saying allegations in the Liberty bank suit "involving fraud are false and without any foundation or fact."

The complainant averred that R. E. Donnell, late president of the Liberty Bank and Trust company, and Col. Lea have for the last two years "practically controlled and dominated the affairs and transactions of said bank."

Donnell was found dead in a Nashville hotel Nov. 8 with a shoestring tied around his neck. Police said he had committed suicide.

DUMP ALKY IN OAK PARK SEWER.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Ragged Nerves

DEMAND CITIES GET A THIRD OF GAS TAX FUNDS

Present Law Unfair, Convention Told.

A demand that all cities and towns in Illinois be given back a third of the amount that their citizens pay in under the state gasoline tax and that they be permitted to expend this money on the improvement of their streets at their own discretion was made before the annual meeting of the Illinois Association of Highway and Municipal Contractors in the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

The proposed change in the law, which would give a third of the revenue from the tax to the state, a third to the counties and a third to the municipalities, was outlined by Mayor Charles H. Greene of Aurora and John P. Hart, Aurora corporation counsel. Under the present law the state gets two-thirds and the counties one-third.

Present Law Under Fire.

Mr. Hart asserted that 90 per cent of the state legislators did not know the real provisions of the gasoline tax bill when they passed it. The present law, he said, gives too much power to the state department of public works. He said estimates had indicated that $21,000,000 would be collected annually under the gasoline tax, whereas $28,000,000 has been collected this year. This money, together with bond issue funds and motor license money, has resulted in huge sums accumulating in Springfield that are not being put to use, Hart charged.

Under the present law, he said, the counties can spend their allotments of the tax revenue only with the approval of the state department of public works. Further, he said, although the state gets its share of the funds at frequent intervals, the counties have to wait until the end of the year for theirs.

One Reason for a Change.

Mr. Hart explained that in many cases state marked roads passing through cities and towns are of greater benefit to through traffic than to the municipalities, although paid for locally and repaired with local money. This is one reason, he said, why the municipalities should receive a part of the tax funds.

If each city and town were to get a third of the money it pays on the gasoline tax large sums could be spent immediately which would do much toward providing work for the unemployed and toward hastening a return to normal conditions, Mr. Hart added.

HELD FOR CONFIDENCE GAME.

William Corbett, 35 years old, 628 South Austin boulevard, Oak Park, wanted for violation of parole from Joliet penitentiary, was held to the grand jury on a charge of operating a confidence game by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle. Fred Pierson, 5754 Addison street, charged that Corbett gave him a worthless check for $153.

FOG INCREASES DEATH RATE IN LONDON BY 2%

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Six straight days of fog have boosted London's death rate by two per cent and brought on an increase of 25 per cent in medical treatment of bronchial cases.

The advice of "eat, drink, and be merry" is advocated to counteract the depressing effect of the uninterrupted gloom of the fog, which also leaves its victims in a weakened condition.

Shipping is again affected, several ships now being held at anchor on the south coast for safety. Airplane departures and arrivals are delayed.

BIRTH CONTROL IS HERE TO STAY, PASTOR ASSERTS

Upholds Lindsey in His Tilt with Manning.

New York, Dec. 10.—[Special.]—The Rev. Eliot White of Grace church today expressed the opinion that nine-tenths of all the marriages performed in Protestant Episcopal churches of this city are "companionate" in the sense that the parties to them practice birth control for varying periods following the ceremony.

He said that Ben B. Lindsey was quite right in asserting in his controversy with Bishop William T. Manning that the orthodox position of the church on the subject is widely disregarded by the laymen.

The Rev. Mr. White yesterday remarked casually that his own daughter, Mrs. Shirley White Zucker, had entered into a "companionate marriage" in the sense that she and her husband had quietly decided that they could not afford children for a while.

Amazed at "Sensation."

Today he declared himself amazed that the press looked upon this as a sensation, saying that there was nothing new about it, and that Mr. Lindsey was "merely trying to get legalized a situation which already obtains."

"Why can't we get this through our heads?" Mr. White demanded. "It's a plain matter of virility. God made us this way. Why speak of birth control as though it scandalized God and man?

"It would be instructive to have a survey, honest and frank, in all of our churches. If people are ashamed of the conjugal relationship they should retire to a monastery or nunnery. Some do, at the call of conscience, and I respect them, but most of us feel that we should remain in the world as it is and make the bestof it."

Urges Birth Control for All.

"I say that these east side people should be given the same intelligent, unharmful birth control information that the well-to-do people in the church seem to have in abundance. From the records it certainly looks as if many parishioners in many churches had such knowledge and made use of it.

"I am convinced that even a rapid survey of records in church and mission would reveal a vast discrepancy in the size of families on the two sides of town."

Ella Thomas, 80, Widow of Advertising Man, Dies

Married in Boston, her birthplace, Mrs. Thomas came here with her husband in 1907. Surviving her are a daughter, Mrs. Florence Thomas Dingle, and seven grandchildren. The funeral will be held Saturday from Mrs. Dingle's home at 515 South Sheridan road, Highland Park. Interment will be in Mount Hope.

FAIL TO FIND POISON ALCOHOL IN GARY DEATH

A setback for the plans of the defense for the five Gary youths indicted for the murder and attack of 18 year old Arlene Draves at Gary was delivered yesterday when Dr. R. N. Harger, Indiana university chemist, after an analysis of the stomach contents, reported there was no poison in the liquor she drank at the party. He added that while there were traces of alcohol, there was not enough to cause intoxication. It was learned yesterday that the defense expects to ask for a change of venue from Lake to Porter county.

W. C. T. U. PROTESTS.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Charges that the prohibition law was responsible for the death of Arlene Draves, Gary, Ind., high school girl, at a drinking party, with the subsequent indictment of five youths for murder, brought an indignant protest today from Mrs. Ella Boole, president of the W. C. T. U.

"These young people got drunk on hooch—not prohibition," she said. "Disobedience of the law—not obedience—caused the tragedy."

MRS. KNITTEL, COOK RESIDENT 87 YEARS, DIES

You can't Concentrate if you are Tired Out

Eat or drink something sweet and you will overcome fatigue. Sugar is quickly digested and its energy is immediately available.

THE PRESSURE of daily business often makes one nervous. Fatigue follows. Concentration is virtually impossible when there is nervous fatigue.

To avoid this condition, which invariably occurs from mid-afternoon on, take a moment to eat or drink something sweet. A piece of candy, cakes or cookies, ice cream, or a sweetened beverage are appropriate snacks to revive a work-fagged system. Many have found that the "athlete's cocktail"—a glass of water sweetened with sugar—will renew vigor with amazing quickness.

The quick digestibility of sugar makes its energy available immediately. This has been proved by many experiments among workers in various occupations. The Sugar Institute.

WESLEY HILL, NEGRO ACTOR, KILLED IN N. Y.

New York, Dec. 10.—[Special.]—The Angel Gabriel is dead—the Angel Gabriel of "Green Pastures," that is. Wesley Hill, Negro actor who created the rôle of the right hand man of the Lord in "The Green Pastures" and who played it from the opening night through the performance of last night, was not in his dressing room when the Mansfield theater's stage manager sounded the "half hour" call for today's matinée. Wesley Hill lay dead at his home in Harlem, the victim of a taxi accident.

The car hurled him violently against an "L" pillar. He was rushed to Suydenham hospital, but was dead on arrival.

Hill was just past sixty. He had been on the stage since boyhood.

The estate of Jacob Mortenson, lumber magnate, was closed yesterday before George B. Weiss, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. The estate was valued at $4,840,892 and paid inheritance taxes totaling $473,678. Attorneys who filed the final accounting declared the estate is actually worth only $2,500,000.

The estate paid $172,546 to the state of Illinois and $301,132 for federal inheritance tax. Under the terms of Mr. Mortenson's will the estate is largely left in trust. His four grandchildren each will receive the income from $50,000. A son, Harold David Mortenson, of Klamath Falls, Ore., is given stock in two companies.

The widow, Mrs. Ida M. Mortenson of Oak Park, will receive $10,000 annually. The remainder of the estate is left in trust for Mrs. Mortenson and two daughters, Mrs. Katherine M. Carr of Colorado Springs, and Mrs. Margaret May of Pasadena. This trust will be divided equally among the three women in 1935. Mr. Mortenson died on Aug. 12, 1924.

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Chandos and his wife, Leonie, former grand duchess of Reichtenburg, are visited at their estate near Littai, in Austria, by George Hanbury. A telegram arrives from Marya Salm, countess of Dresden, an expected guest, stating that she dare not come. Prince Paul, ruler of Reichtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and was incensed at her marriage to Chandos. Fearing for Marya's safety, because of her friendship for Leonie, Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants, Bell and Rowley, depart for Vigli, capital city of Reichtenburg, where Marya resides. Because of the enmity of the prince they must enter the country in stealth. They drive to the frontier and leave Rowley with the car at a farm and proceed by foot. A peasant, named Ramon, whom they befriend, leads them over the border by a secret path under a waterfall. They reach the home of Marya, unseen, and learn from her that she sent no message and that she plans to drive to Austria that night. Realizing the telegram was a ruse to lure them within the prince's dominion, they are preparing to flee with Marya, when the prince arrives. The men hold the prince and his servants at point of gun and escape in the royal car. They find the border so closely guarded that hope of crossing is abandoned. Chandos remembers Ramon, who lives in the nearby town of Gola. They seek him for aid. He agrees to hide Marya and Carol, her trusted servant, in his house. Chandos and Hanbury join a traveling circus, where they feel fairly safe from discovery. They are planning to desert the circus and return to Gola, when Carol reaches them with a car to take them to Bariche, across the border, where he says Marya is waiting. They recognize the car as Grieg's, the chief of police. Arrived at the inn in Bariche, they receive another message from Marya, stating that she is to be pardoned, one condition being that she does not leave Reichtenburg, and another that she does not communicate with them and that they must never enter the country again. They realize that Marya, endeavoring to save them, has made an arrangement with Grieg, to which they could never consent. They return to the farm, where they left the car with Rowley. Bell is sent back to give news to Leonie.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

APPREHENDED.

When I saw Rowley so moved the concern I had felt for Leonie's peace of mind rose into a wave of apprehension which would not be stilled. If her spirit was high, my wife was of Riechtenburg and so knew far better than Rowley the danger in which we should stand if ever the prince came to know that we were within his gates. The five full days of silence must have passed very slowly at Littai and the shocking fear that she had herself started to find us kept laying hold of my heart. I would indeed have given the world to see her, but for me to visit Littai would have meant a delay of eight hours, and, since any waste of time was not to be thought of, I sought to console myself by insisting that Bell would be with his mistress before another day broke.

When we left the farm it was not yet 8 o'clock, and, the way being easy to find, we went very fast, first of all driving due south and then very nearly due west and skirting the Riechtenburg frontier all the way.

The struggle was hopeless, and so I stood perfectly still.

We had covered some ninety miles when I, who was keeping the map, gave George some wrong direction, and, since it was now very dark, a quarter of an hour went by before we discovered my mistake. What was worse, when George had slowed down I could not perceive my mistake, for, to judge by the map, there was no town for thirty miles round, save only one called Sallust, and that stood in Riechtenburg.

It seemed dreadfully clear that we were miles out in our reckoning, and that at a time when we had not a moment to lose.

Bitterly reproaching myself, I called to a passing soldier and asked him the name of the place. He said at once that it was Sallust.

"Sallust?" I cried. "But Sallust is in Riechtenburg."

"Ay," said the man, "the old town. But this is the new. They are all one really, but the river divides them in two. If you want to go in"—he pointed—"that is the way to the river, and so to the bridge. The Customs are there."

With that he was gone and George and I studied the map. This gave no sign of any such state of affairs, but it showed that Sallust stood forty miles from Vigli, while the point for which we had been making lay sixty-five.

"This is the place," said George. "With a dual population restrictions are bound to be slack."

As he spoke he let in the clutch. . . .

He took the car down to the river and berthed her under some limes. Then we alighted and strolled along to the bridge.

This was busy. Maybe because it was Sunday, all sorts and conditions were crossing and nearly every one was going to Riechtenburg. In the midst of the bridge a movable bar or turnpike prevented all wheeled traffic and forced the people afoot to go by in single file. Here the rule of the road was strictly observed, and whichever way a man passed he kept the bar on his left. Those going to Riechtenburg went without let or hindrance, but those coming out were inspected by three of that country's police. Leaning on the bar were four sentries, engaged in talk and glancing now and again at such as approached the police.

I cannot pretend that I liked it, but this seemed to be our chance. For all the attention paid them, those that were going our way might have been leaving the gates of a football ground, and, indeed, they gave the impression of going home after some entertainment from which they had been lately dismissed. If this were so and we were indeed to join them, it was clearly unwise to delay, for any moment their number would begin to diminish and this would increase such risk as we were to run. Without more ado, I, therefore, gave Bell his instructions and bade him get back to the car.

We watched his retreating figure, and when the car had stolen into the shadows we turned to the bridge.

By one consent we parted and casually mingled with such as were going our way. . . .

As I was leaving the road I saw George nearing the bar in the midst of the bridge, and, though I could not see Rowley, I knew that he was between us, for I had watched him go on.

Already those crossing were fewer than when we had first arrived, but the passage by the bar being narrow, the press there was still thick enough to offer a fair protection to a man that stuck close to the wall.

Now, as I came up to the bar, I found myself next to a peasant who had drunk more than his fill. He was not reeling, but he was very unsteady, and he cursed and muttered as though he were sick of life. He was bearing upon his shoulder a basket of good looking figs which threatened every moment to leave their perch. I think the press annoyed him, for he was in that condition which needs more than ordinary room, and when he stumbled against me he cursed me loudly as though the fault had been mine.

This conduct attracted so much notice that I could have broken his neck, but, since I could not withdraw, there was nothing to be done but go forward and hope for the best.

We were full in the light of the lamps when he stumbled and cursed me again.

As I made to pass by the turnpike the drunkard thrust for the gap. Then he struck my shoulder with his basket and sent its burden flying all over the flags.

I suppose it was natural that he should hold me to blame.

Had he not seized me I could have gone on my way, but his outcry was such that the people ahead turned back to see what the matter might be and before I could shake him off a ring had been formed.

Afraid that my speech would betray me, I let the man rave. Then I shrugged my shoulders and began to pick up the fruit.

"Whence do you come?" said a voice.

Two of the police were looking me up and down.

"From Switzerland," I replied. "I am making a walking tour."

"Your passport, please," said one, and put out his hand.

"I'm afraid I've lost it," said I. "I am going to the consul at Vigli as soon as I can."

"Without a passport we can not allow you to pass." He turned to his fellow. "It can not be one of them. He is going the opposite way."

"He answers the description," the other said. "You say you are walking. Where did you sleep last night?"

He could not have asked a worse question. I had no idea of the country which had I come from the west, I must have passed through.

"I slept at a farm," I said. "I do not know the name of the place."

"What was the last town you passed?"

Frantically I cudgelled my brains. I had read some names on the map, but, because they did not concern us, they had not stayed in my mind.

"I can not remember."

There was a moment's silence.

"He must come to the station," said the one that had spoken last.

"Yes," said the other softly, with the queerest look in his eyes, which were fast on my coat.

The next instant he fell upon me, shouting some words of patois which I could not understand.

To struggle was hopeless, and so I stood perfectly still.

Then a hand went into my pocket and brought my pistol out.

Good Morning!

QUALITY: Fair.

ACTING: Yes and no. Joe Frisco and Harry Gribbon as a pair of clown detectives gummed up the piece for me. They are supposed to caricature their rôles, of course, but a caricature must pack a laugh if it's to get across—and there was never a smile for me in the doings of Messrs. Frisco and Gribbon.

DIRECTION: Maybe that's what's the matter.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Excellent.

SOUND: Good.

LINES: Fair—shading into stupid.

SUSPENSE: A little.

STORY: Is concerned with solving a question of identity. WHO is the elusive and brutal murderer known as "The Gorilla"?

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Not much, I should say. Successful burlesque must have a fine edge of satire—and there are no fine edges here. However, if slapstick that keeps you guessing a bit is what you enjoy, why, "The Gorilla" may be your meat.

See you tomorrow.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

An obituary notice in THE TRIBUNE of yesterday stated that the funeral of James M. Cowan, who died Tuesday, would be held at his home "in Downers Grove." Mr. Cowan's home was in Aurora. The funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from Healy's chapel, Aurora. Dr. Horace Cady Wilson will officiate.

AUSTRALIA'S LEADING FLYER MARRIES, AND FAVORS SAFETY FIRST

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Australia's foremost airman and the girl who waited behind while he flew around the world were married today.

In Scots' church the ceremony was said that made Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith and Miss Mary Powell man and wife. Only immediate friends were present, but 10,000 persons waited outside the church to catch a glimpse of the bride and groom.

She was attired in white and silver with a long tulle veil, and he wore his air force uniform. Four bridesmaids attended Mrs. Kingsford-Smith. C. T. P. Ulm, friend of Kingsford-Smith and his companion on his trans-Pacific flight, accompanied the bridegroom.

Climaxing a romance that began on an ocean liner and was twined around the earth by the adventurous flyer, the marriage means the beginning of a quieter, safer life for Kingsford-Smith.

Flyer's Romance Fails.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Almost simultaneously with receipt here of the news of the marriage of Charles Kingsford-Smith, the flyer, and Mary Powell in Melbourne today it was learned that another romance of the Southern Cross flight was not to end so happily.

The marriage arranged between Capt. J. P. Saul, navigator on the epochal world flight, and Miss Zenu Marchant, a Dublin girl, is not to take place, it was announced. Their engagement followed their meeting on the eve of the flight, when Miss Marchant went to an airdrome to kiss Capt. Saul good-by. They were to have been married when the captain came home.

To Wed Yankee Girl.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The Daily Mail learns from Dublin that J. P. Saul, who was navigator for Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith in their famous flight from California to Australia, is engaged to marry Elizabeth, only daughter of Dr. Frederick Drake Fridham of Baltimore and New York.

The marriage will take place next year, the paper adds. Dispatches from the Irish capital today said the marriage plans of Capt. Saul and Miss Zenu Marchant, a Dublin girl, had been canceled. Shortly after this, the Mail says, announcement was made of the Pridham-Saul engagement.

Dancer Coming to U. S.

DRESDEN, Germany, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Mary Wigman, noted interpretive dancer, is going to the United States and is happy over it. She will embark Dec. 16.

BRIDE

The marriage of Miss Rachel Wing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Wing of 1827 Asbury avenue, Evanston, to Melvin J. Cassidy of Chicago, son of Mrs. M. J. Cassidy of Ottawa, Ill., took place on Nov. 29. The former Miss Wing attended Roycemore school, Wills college, and the National Academy of Fine Arts. Mr. Cassidy is a graduate of the University of Michigan.

KIPNIS, OPERA SINGER, COMPLETES TESTS OF YANKEE CITIZENSHIP

Alexander Kipnis, basso of the Chicago Civic Opera company, passed his final examinations for citizenship yesterday and within ninety days will receive his full papers.

"This examination," said the singer, as he strode down the corridors of the federal building, "it was very easy, but I can remember one much ... so hard, in fact, that I never passed it, and for that I am very thankful."

He was in Germany during the day, he related, and had just managed to escape internment while studying voice. "I was broke, and it was impossible for me to return to my home in Ukraine because of the active fighting," he said. "I got a place with the Hamburg opera, but in order to appear I had to become a German citizen."

JEWELS OFFER KEY TO CHRISTMAS GIFT PROBLEM FOR MANY

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The gallant gentleman of that courtly age before men took much to business and its dynamics of speed and utility, knew well how to please a lady when Christmas time rolled around. They didn't buy her a washing machine. Or bathroom scales. Or stock certificates. Or reducing equipment. They clasped about her throat a jeweled necklace, a bracelet about her wrist, or slipped a ring upon her finger.

Husbands and sweethearts who pause long enough from the exigencies of their all important day's work to drop in a jewelry store between now and Dec. 24, will find styles as enchanting to feminine hearts and as enhancing to their charms as was the jewelry of old, now obsolete. Whether he be a La Salle street banker or broker, or a $20 a week clerk, today's man can find a piece of jewelry to delight his wife or best girl.

Prices of jewelry along State street, which is typical of anywhere in Chicago, range from $1 to, well—$100,000 is a safe maximum. Goldsmiths and precious stone cutters have fashioned styles that are, if anything, more beautiful than the antiques. The day of the filigree in rings is past, according to one large jewelry house. Simple platinum mountings are becoming popular, and it is no longer important, they say, to own a diamond ring with ten or twelve small diamonds crowding its shoulders.

If Mr. Banker or Mr. Broker contemplates choosing this Christmas for giving his wife an extra special present he may buy her a $50,000 diamond ring with a marquise shaped stone, shouldered with a baguet roll of small emerald cut diamonds. If Mr. Clerk is considering spending his savings on that very important engagement ring or wedding circlet, he will find a diamond ring in just as good taste for $50, or even less. One novel wedding ring is the flexible link set with diamonds.

The diamond brooches and necklaces this year are making lavish use of fancy cut stones, and are avoiding any show of metal. Gaining in popularity are the emerald and ruby in rings for which one may pay as high as $35,000. Much combination is made of rubies and emeralds with diamonds. Semi-precious stones, such as the Brazilian emerald and the zicon, are also mounted with small diamonds.

For costume wear, there is any end of styles in jewelry. There are combinations of rhinestones, pearls, turquoise with silver mountings. Rhinestones, the observing will discover, have a carbon underlay which give the stones a bluish cast like diamonds. There are garnet necklaces, the stones set in floral design, necklaces of jade, necklaces of crystal and enamel, fancy pendants of woven metal flower baskets and semi-precious stones for flowers, frosted crystal pendants with diamond mountings, costume sets of black onyx, marcasite and silver.

Women do not have a corner on receiving jewelry, jewelers hasten to explain. And if there is ever a year when jewelry as a gift for a man is in order it is this Christmas.

English crystals for cuff links are among the newest stones for men for sport wear. These show heads of animals such as horses and dogs, or initials are very smart. They may be bought for $10 on up to $250. The latest in full dress sets is a frosted crystal half the square set with diamonds and sapphires.

Men's scarf pins are coming back and with them a flair for novelty, such as a dog's head in outline, or a platinum duck with a diamond eye and diamond feet. Gold collar pins for soft shirts can be bought as low as $3.50, made to represent golf sticks and other sporting articles. There are bill clips, $5 and up in solid gold or $3 and up in sterling silver. These bear initials, horses' heads in English crystals, or serve as a combination bill clip and key holder.

Among the novelties for men are key cases that also serve as corkscrews, and knife blades. The romantic man who keeps to the good old fashioned custom of carrying his wife's or children's or sweetheart's picture around with him will like a gold or platinum book locket to wear on his best chain as a charm. The photograph is reproduced on the gold metal, and there are leaves for as many as six tiny pictures.

Crowd Hears Mary Garden in Chicagoan's Opera, "Camille"

Society Fills Boxes

BY MILDRED JAKLON.

The throngs at the opera house last night for the first performance of Mary Garden's and Hamilton Forrest's "Camille" witnessed a social, dramatic, and musical thriller such as few members of this generation have experienced.

We have the word of Miss Anna Morgan, who attended the opening of the old Auditorium, when Adelina Patti sang, that the Garden-Forrest occasion was more exciting than any that has taken place since then, not excluding the opeping of the new opera house. The anticipatory excitement was matched by the spirited controversy that went on between acts. There was complaint against the "modern" settings, costumes, and music, even as historians tell us there was nearly 80 years ago when Verdi's "La Traviata" was sung in Venice.

The atmosphere was electric with breathless interest. The box tiers were overflowing, with extra chairs wedged in wherever they would fit. All the more prominent opera supporters were present. The tension of the occasion was imparted even to the opera attachés. White haired Harry, who guards the door to the Opera club, wore a camellia in his buttonhole to mark the general festivity.

One of the most interesting moments was the second act curtain when the young composer, who once was an office boy in Samuel Insull's Chicago office, made his bows. His mother, Mrs. Charles Forrest, occupied a place in the third row, and was the center of much attention from those nearby.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, who are devoted friends of Mary Garden, were hosts to a party in their box. Their guests included Lady Ludlow of London, Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, and Sewell Avery. Mrs. Chalmers wore a black velvet gown with diamente trimming, Lady Ludlow wore black velvet with a pearl necklace and drop earrings, Mrs. Blake black satin, and Mrs. Charles M. Schweppe green velvet.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull's guests were Mrs. Secor Cunningham, in black satin; Mrs. John W. Gary, in black velvet; Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, the latter in white satin, and John Gulick. Mrs. Insull wore a gown of silver cloth and pearls.

Mrs. Richard T. Crane was hostess to a large party, including her daughter, Miss Florence Crane, the Marquise d'Ivanrey, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, Arthur Heun, Russell Tyson, William B. McCluer, and J. C. Hemmel.

Joseph T. Ryerson had as his guests Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Mr. and Mrs. Volney Foster, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, and Col. George Voevodski. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Grahams' guests were Col. and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague, Miss Anna Fitziu, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, and Washington Porter.

Harold F. McCormick occupied his box with his house guests, Capt. and Mrs. Reginald Paget of London, the latter in flesh colored crêpe, and Mrs. William West of Evanston, in green chiffon. Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. Clay Judson were guests of the Charles Edward Browns. Mrs. Bennett wore black satin, Mrs. Clay Judson beaded gold lamé, and their hostess black velvet.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. McGann were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams, Mrs. Charles I. Pierce, and Alfred Cowles. Mr. and Mrs. Corson Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Phelps Kelley occupied the Robert J. Thorne box. Dr. and Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wetten, Dean and Mrs. Gordon Laing, Mrs. Ernst Freund, and Rudolph Reuter.

Mrs. Julius Rosenwald was hostess to Judge Julian W. Mack of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Lessing Rosenthal, Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Goodkind, and Mr. and Mrs. Leo F. Wormser.

The Walter Brewsters' guests were Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill, Miss Fanny Butcher, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock, Stanley Rinehart, and Thornton Wilder.

Miss Lucy Martin, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Thaddeus Zasulinsky, and Emil Wetten were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Yager. Others present in the box tier and on the main floor were: Miss Anna Morgan, in a black velvet gown embroidered in white roses and a turquoise necklace; Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm L. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Logan, Miss Phoebe Logan, Joseph B. Terbell Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William V. Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Bendelari, Mrs. Joseph B. Long, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Boyden, Mrs. Clair More, and Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It may be—one always hopes it of a new piece, particularly of a new American piece—that "Camille" will classify as one of the successes of the 1930 operatic season. If this should be so it will be due more than any other one element to that amazing person, Mary Garden.

For along in the last ten minutes of the second act Miss Garden, who had evidently been holding herself in reserve, took the dramatic bit between her teeth and ran away with the whole show.

She had been having some pretty good artistic competition from Charles Hackett and Chase Baromeo, but during these few minutes the whole stage was hers. She even overcame the effect of as comic a coiffure as has been seen in many seasons.

Just at present I am quite unable to state whether it was good opera or good drama. I only know that her incredibly savage, raging, blazing outburst was an exciting exhibition of theater.

Mr. Forrest has gone back to the younger Dumas for his opera, omitting some of the incidents that go into "La Traviata," including some others that were not used there. The page of 1850 opens an enormous volume on the stage, disclosing the corridor to Marguerite's box at the Opéra-Comique. Armand and she meet for the first time. Then another page closes the book and with it the prologue.

From there the piece proceeds much after the manner of, if rather more elaborately than the play, "Camille." It has been brought down to date. As far as masculine costumes are concerned, it is opera in long-pants. There are references to autos in the libretto and occasional strains of jazz in the score.

From a musical standpoint the work is constructed something like "Lorenzaccio," which opened the season. The orchestra makes brief comments that fit one dramatic situation about as well as another, the dialogue is carried along as conversation set to notes rather than melody.

Only occasionally is a conventional melodic line allowed to develop. There is a pleasant "Valse Parisienne" played by the orchestra between the prologue and first act, the jazz strains referred to issue from a well played piano during a party chez Marguerite in the second act. There is a popular song or so here also.

The third act is devoted to the death of Marguerite. It is a comparatively short piece, but I imagine that it presents about as many difficulties to the participants as any six operas that can be named. However, it has that great scene for Miss Garden.

The audience was large and disposed to applaud with determined cheer. The cast was repeatedly called before the curtain singly and in groups, likewise the conductor, the stage director, and the author-composer, he receiving the accolade of a pat on the cheek from the hand of Miss Garden. And so, after the inspiriting ritual of such cases, another American opera was given to the public.

Marriage Returns Greater Than Those of Business Career?

BY DORIS BLAKE.

We hear on excellent authority that young women are abandoning their older sister's "career" style, just as they have refused to accept her boyish bob and silhouette example. They have a better idea for both—a more womanly idea. They may want a career but they want a husband, home and family more. If they can have both, O. K. But not a career without marriage.

Just in case there are girls here and there who still think a career sufficient to a well rounded life, we'd like to present a few statistical findings on the subject of the financial returns of careers, as they've been gathered by the bureau of business research at the School of Business administration of the University of Michigan. We present these, believing that with rare exceptions, career enthusiasts are enthusiastic over the big spending money and the assurance of a life of ease promised.

Compared with the millions of women who work, the number of five figured salaried among them is pitifully small. "With a few spectacular exceptions," the report reads, "women in business and the professions are not highly paid. Women who are independently engaged earn considerably more than those on a salary basis."

Not that we are attempting to discourage women from entering business or professions, since with the great majority it is not a question of preference, but of economic need. Nor do we honestly believe that many women have foregone matrimony or intend to forego it for a promising wedded career. Aside from the actual need of supporting self, the opportunity afforded women in business to fill up a life that marriage has eluded for this reason or that is too important to be treated lightly. And women are gaining in the professions and in business every year.

But this we got out of the report on women's earning in the various branches of activities: Unless you are one of the spectacular exceptions you are likely to arrive at middle age without a fortune or anywhere near one and the older you get in business, the less your chances for accumulating a fortune.

Speaking without statistical authority, the question in my mind is whether working at marriage with the same ambition to get somewhere with it, wouldn't assure a woman greater security in her late years.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

It Would Be Unwise.

"Dear Miss Blake: My fellow wants to marry me, which I would like to do. But I don't love him much and he hasn't any money. WONDERING."

In fairness to you both, you should not marry him. Without love a marriage would not bring happiness into your lives.

Latin School's Sixth Graders Plan for Show

BY THALIA

THE sixth graders of the Chicago Latin school must be feeling pretty important and excited right now, partly because there's to be a Father and Sons dinner, the first of its kind, expressly for them and their dads at the Racquet club tomorrow night, partly because they're to give the annual Christmas play for the school, and, in general, just because "Chrismus is comin'."

The dinner tomorrow night will be a regular stag affair, grownup-like, with bowling before dinner and singing and speeches during the party. The swimming pool will be open, too, so that any of the young hopefuls so inclined can show their aquatic prowess. John R. Winterbotham Jr. and Rosecrans Baldwin, each having a boy in 6th grade, are seeing to the arrangements. And if you think it isn't an important event for both generations you should know how many of the fathers are passing up the prize fight at the Stadium in order to be present.

The mothers have been beguiled into helping with the costumes and scenery for the Christmas play, which is to be Tolstoy's "Where Love Is, There God Is Also." Sammy Reed, one of the Philip Loring Reeds' five very young men, is to take the star part of the Cobbler, and the cast besides includes Harold Dato as Vanya; Junior Pearce, Morris Eddy, and David Rowe as the First, Second, and Third Men; Sonny Maxwell as The Woman, Bobby Cudahy as the Apple Woman, Johnny Winterbotham as the Boy, Edward Ryerson as the Snow Shoveler, and David Ressler as the Friend. Mrs. Reed, Mrs. E. I. Cudahy, Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy, and Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell are the mothers who are doing their bit for the play, which is to be given at the Latin school on the 19th, the last day before school lets out for the holiday vacation.

Elias Mayers Bringing Rare Orchids from Britain.

When the Europa, which sailed 24 hours late because of fog, docks in New York on Saturday the Elias Mayers of 1540 Lake Shore drive will be aboard, and, if their plans went well, they'll have with them some new and rare varieties of orchid plants from England. When they went away Mr. Mayer told all his friends that he was going just for orchids to add to his incredibly extensive and marvelous collection of plants housed at the Mayers' country place on Half Day road near Deerfield. While her parents have been away Eleanor Mayer, who has been winning a lot of blue ribbons at the horse shows, has been going to school and keeping up with her horsemanship at the Riding club.

Had you heard that . . . the Alan C. Dixons of 222 East Delaware place got back on Tuesday from a stay at Asheville, N. C.? . . . That Mrs. Boyd Hill has been in Milwaukee all week with an exhibition of things from the Chintz shop, with which she's recently become affiliated, and that the exhibit was held at the Milwaukee Junior league rooms? . . . That Gwen Fargo has been selling a line of very grand Christmas cards and monogrammed playing cards, and that she made over six hundred dollars during November? . . . That the artist John V. Storrs and his wife arrived in Chicago a few weeks ago, and are at the Delaware Towers, and that Mrs. Storrs is working on a book about Americans? . . . "Mim" Hamilton was in the Frances Townsend-Graeme Macdonald wedding in New York City, one of the important ones of the season, on Monday? . . . Mrs. Francis Neilson is to have the monthly meeting of the Chicago Home for Convalescent Women and Children on Monday at her Drexel boulevard residence?

Arthur Meekers Delay Their Trip to California.

Personal and pertinent! The Arthur Meekers aren't going to California until after Christmas and the Leroy Goddards, who had planned to go west the first of this month, also are deferring their departure until Jan. 1. The Meekers expect to be in their new house at Santa Barbara and the Goddards, who will be away until May 1, will go to the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles.

The Lansing B. Warners of Hubbard Woods were registered at the Carolina hotel at Pinehurst, in the Carolinas, the first part of the week.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, one of our busiest commuters between here and New York, was at the St. Regis hotel in New York over the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson sailed from Vancouver on Saturday for a tour around the world.

Mrs. Leonard A. Busby and her daughter, Miss Janet Busby, were among the arrivals in New York on Monday.

Alice Ransom has chosen St. Peter's church for her marriage on Dec. 22 to Albert William Elliott for purely sentimental reasons, because she went there to Sunday school as a child. Since her husband-to-be still has another year in medical school, they wanted to live near the University of Chicago. After a long and intensive search, they discovered a little house on Harper avenue only 15 feet wide—mind you—that is just the thing. They're going to decorate and paint it all themselves.

The James L. Martin residence on Sheridan road in Highland Park has been all reconstructed and done over this fall, and so it will be all in spruce order for the debut tea the Martins are to give on Saturday afternoon for their daughter, Jane. Mrs. Robert Stanley, who is Sister Kate to the bud, will receive with her and Mrs. Martin and there will be the usual coterie of buds to assist.

Jane and Mildred Lawrence, daughters of the Frederick K. Lawrences, who had a debut luncheon at the Blackstone on Tuesday, are giving a party for their assistants at the Thursday night dance at the Opera club tonight.

Former Lake View High Girl Back; Movie Star

Still Life Pictures by Salcia Bahnc Better than Figures

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Salcia Bahnc is home after a year of hard painting in Paris and an exhibition of her recent pictures opened yesterday in the Chester Johnson galleries in the Fine Arts building. It is good to welcome her back. During the years she lived in Chicago she made a distinct place for herself as an instructor in the Art institute school and as an independent painter in the world of art. The exhibit will continue to Dec. 20.

The present exhibition is a revelation of what progress may be made in twelve months. "Roses," a little commonplace and stiff, is the first picture Miss Bahnc painted after reaching Paris. The magnificent still lifes, numbers 8, 10 and 7, mark a brilliant development. Here there is painting that stands high in any company, conservative or modernist. The beauty of color, quality of texture, values in arrangement and lighting, the infinite details each carried to perfection that shine through these paintings of fruits and flowers, glass and pottery, make them throb with a life and vitality that force a quick response from you.

When we turn to the figure paintings, the delicacy and glitter of the still life are swallowed up in an enthusiastic extravagance of paint. The colors run riot and oppress you by their exuberance. You feel smothered in confused rainbows which have broken awkwardly, like eggs, and, also like eggs, created a certain amount of havoc. Among the confusion bulk great nudes, women of Rubens' descent, startlingly and emphatically of the flesh fleshly. You must adopt an entirely different prospective to get anything from this part of the exhibit. With care, the "Bathers" resolves itself into a canvas possessed of a certain strange haunting beauty.

London Woman Guest of Mrs. W. J. Chalmers

Lady Ludlow, known as one of England's wealthiest women, dressed in a mink coat and small brown hat, arrived in Chicago yesterday for a week-end visit as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, 1100 Lake Shore drive.

Lady Ludlow figured prominently in the news of June, 1924, when her collection of fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth century jewels, amassed by her first husband, the late Sir Julius Wernher, was stolen from her mansion in Piccadilly, London. The thieves ignored valuable modern pieces.

Sir Julius controlled the Kimberley diamond mines of South Africa and was considered the world's largest owner of diamond properties. The antique collection was valued at $500,000 to $1,500,000.

Christmas Carol Offer Is Made Again This Year

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

With shopping, children, housework, cooking, school festivities, Christmas cards to send, packages to mail, presents to make and the thousand and one motions that Christmas means to mothers of families, one more motion sometimes seems too much. Which is why for the last two years this department has given its readers the opportunity to obtain Christmas music first hand. There was such a big demand for the carols that we are arranging the same service for our readers this season.

There are many mothers living in remote country places, in small towns, and many in cities and suburbs who have in the past been glad to be able to obtain Christmas carols with words and music through this column, because they could not easily get them otherwise.

The set of carols we supplied the year before last contained the most familiar ones. They were:

Holy Night.
Little Town of Bethlehem.
Draw Nigh Immanuel.
God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen.
The First Noel.
We Three Kings.
Noel! Noel!
A Virgin Unspotted.

This year's set of carols has not been offered here before. It contains a much less familiar group, but one which may interest those who want a change. The six old melodies are:

'Tis Christmas Day [old Welsh melody].

While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night [old English melody].

From Highest Heaven to Earth We Come [old German].

Hark! What Music Fills the Sky [old Latin].

O'er the Cradle of a King [old Breton].

As with Gladness Men of Old [old German].

If you desire a copy of either of these carols you can obtain them by sending 14 cents in stamps or money to this column direct. Do not send envelope.

For convenience we will call the most familiar carols, that is, the first ones listed, Set 1. The second set of six old melodies, Set 2. Please specify which set you wish.

Healthy Baby Offers Problem in Relativity

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—"Parlor relativity"—the kind that every one can understand—is reviving with the visit to the United States of Albert Einstein, noted German physicist. He arrives tomorrow on the liner Belgenland.

Measuring motion is considered important, because nothing anywhere in creation yet has been found at rest. The velocities range from the unseen wave movements in solid atoms to speeds of hundreds of miles a second of stars in their orbits.

The famous fourth dimension is merely adding time to length, breadth and thickness.

If that seems puzzling, try describing an active baby in terms of only three dimensions—length, breadth and thickness.

If your description includes his "position in space," as would be necessary were he a moving star, you would be forced to add time as a dimension—in fact, you usually do, with some such remark as:

"Well, he was on this spot just a moment ago."

Time is an indispensable fourth dimension in common use when an object's motion is described.

Time is converted into a general mathematical fourth dimension by multiplying it by the square root of minus one—which is an imaginary number. Some scientists say this makes relativity mostly imaginary.

But relativity has three tangible "proofs."

Einstein said it would show light is bent near the sun. Newton said the same thing, but Einstein predicted about twice as much bending due to "curved space" as Newton due to gravitation. Astronomers in 1919 reported that Einstein was right.

Relativity also predicted that light from massive bodies like the sun would be redder than from less massive ones like earth.

This "proof" showed up in a startling manner in a tiny star, about four time as big as earth. This star is a companion of the Great Dog star, Sirius, and its light was found unaccountably reddened.

The reason was learned by discovering that the little fellow is incredibly massive—a match box full of his substance weighing about a ton.

The massiveness explains the reddened light, according to relativity. The explanation was a scientific sensation and was developed by Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of Mount Wilson observatory.

The third "proof" was clarification of certain irregular motions of the planet Mercury which gravitation failed to explain. Relativity denies existence of a void—that is of "empty space."

In Newton's theory of gravitation, the sun's attraction fills all space at a uniformly diminishing rate. Not quite so in relativity. There the sun's gravitation is limited to a "field," or area not clearly defined. The sun has electrical and magnetic "fields" about it also. All these fields are curved.

Einstein Gains Courage.

STEAMSHIP BELGENLAND, Dec. 10.—[Jewish Telegraphic Agency.]—Prof. Albert Einstein, to whom an avalanche of American invitations has been a nightmare, disclosed today that during the four days this ship remains in New York after its arrival tomorrow he will go ashore to attend several events planned in his honor.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover attended the concert this morning at the Mayflower, the second one this season organized by Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, wife of the former American minister to Belgium. José Iturbi, Spanish pianist, gave the program. Mrs. Hoover had with her Mrs. Porter H. Dale, president of the Congressional club, and wife of a senator from Vermont; Mrs. Arthur Bullard, Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr., and the Marquise de Rosale. They all had luncheon afterwards at the White House.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Storey of Chicago will spend the remainder of this week in Washington at the Mayflower, having come for the reception of Carnegie institute on Friday.

The Charm of Some Faces Depends on Beauty of Heart

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Under a photograph of a woman considerably past middle life, which I happened to see in a magazine, ran a caption: "The moral qualities revealed in the face often make the old more beautiful than the young."

Now don't be scared that I am going to sermonize with a "be good and you'll be beautiful" text. Were I tempted the mind picture of a certain celebrity interviewed within the last few years would set me to laughing.

In all seriousness the creature, with a reputation for meanness unparalleled and a total vacuum where morals are supposed to be kept, elaborated at length to me upon the value of thinking beautiful thoughts to make one beautiful. She did not infer in her conversation but frankly said that her beauty was due to no other secret. The pity of it for the moral of my tale is that the girl was a beauty. She may have been dumb—but not so dumb in her own line but that she made a whooping success of her business. Of course it may have been only her publicity line. Again it may have been that she was created without a grain of humor. Anyway she spoiled that line for me about thinking beautiful thoughts to be beautiful.

However let's get back to the picture of the older woman who has something beautiful in her face that you can't explain with preservative cosmetic lotion, massage, or eye wash. A something that makes you love to watch her every expression. A beauty that has nothing to do with feature, coloring, or contour. You sense an inner flame feeding and softening the light in the eye, the turn of the mouth. A quiet inner flame that illuminates the face. You know one of her. Every one does.

Perhaps, like I, you have gone away comparing her with women who have devoted years to the cult of physical beauty. More often than not she is a mother who has known both joy and sorrow in her life. More often than not a woman who has not been over blessed with physical goods. But always a woman that life has left kind and sweet and very, very dear. A woman with beauty in her heart. A woman with moral qualities revealed in the face.

Certainly she hasn't given much time to unbeautiful thoughts so may be you and I had better not be flip about the influence on beauty of thoughts. That may be just what's wrong with our faces.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

E. H.: MASSAGE IS HELPFUL IN reducing overstout ankles. Begin at the instep. Grasp the tissues and forcibly turn and twist them upon the underlying bone. Use both hands, encircling the leg so that the thumbs meet in front and gradually work upward with forceful pressure movements. Exercises may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

Long Tunics Deserve Parisian Popularity

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Long tunics have won the affections of the smartest women in Paris. Jean Patou first launched them, last season, but they made their way slowly to the summit of chic, for they introduced a brand new line into the silhouette. These long tunics have good reasons to explain their popularity. In a light color, they give life to the fashionable dark ensembles, being just as dressy as a whole light frock and ever so much easier to wear, and they are wonderful for giving new life to last season's costumes, that may be just a shade too short or too straight, for the fact that they are being sponsored by the couturiers in their latest creations takes the curse off the word: made over.

A long tunic is the outstanding feature of the Redfern afternoon ensemble, sketched above. It is of turquoise blue surah—that old, serge surfaced silk is being revived for some of the smartest Parisienne costumes. It has an encrusted, petal edged, yoke collar and a bow tie of the surah.

The skirt is flared by diagonal topped gores that become full about eight inches above the knees. It is worn over a narrow undershirt of black broadcloth to match the black broadcloth coat shown on the small figure. Three bias folds give it an empire bolero effect in back and similar folds fashionably widen the upper sleeves. The front is semi-fitted and plain, and there is a huge framing collar of silver fox. The cutaway hem adds to the effect of slenderness, but is long enough to completely cover the colored tunic.

Breasted Gets Persian Permit to Hunt Facts

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state, announced today that Prof. James Henry Breasted, University of Chicago, has been granted a permit to restore the ancient city of Persepolis, royal seat of Kings Darius, Xerxes) and other Persian rulers.

The special permit was granted under a Persian law recently enacted with reference to antiquarian research and antiques. Until recently all excavations in Persia have been monopolized by France and all the important discoveries have been made by scientists from that country.

State department officials expressed confidence that Prof. Breasted and other American orientalists will make important contributions to history, through work at Persepolis. That city's site is about forty miles northeast of the present town of Shiraz. If not founded by Darius I. it became the royal residence during his reign [about 520 B. C.]. The principal buildings of the city, the ruins of which exist to this day, date from the time of Darius and his successors.

This city, situated in a remote mountainous region, never developed the importance of Susa and Babylon, which for years remained two of the principal cities of the Persian realm. Alexander the Great of Macedonia is credited with having burned the palaces at Persepolis during his Asiatic campaign.

At the same time that Secretary Stimson announced the Breasted project the state department called attention to an international exhibit of Persian art and archeology at Burlington House in London during January and February. Credit for this exhibit, it was stated, is largely due to another Chicagoan, Dr. Arthur Upham Pope, curator of Mohammedan art of the Art institute of Chicago. It was stated that the greatest masterpieces of Persian art owned by the various countries of the world, including Persia, will be on exhibition.

"Many of the sacred shrines of Persia, hitherto never viewed by who were not Moslems, have been dismantled by order of the shah. Their treasures were sent to London," the state department said.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Pass on Old Garments.

"I am the mother of four children, all of whom need clothing, which I cannot buy. With no work it has been hard to get along, so I hope you can help me. The girls are 8 and 6 years old. The boys are 3 years and 8 months.

The garment your children wore last winter and will not be able to wear again would help to keep this family warm and comfortable during the cold weather.

Did you ever see a farm boy or girl refuse to go down cellar to bring up a bowlful of sauerkraut? Those of us who have lived in the country know why such errands are run so willingly, and many of us can remember that not all the kraut taken from the barrel went into the bowl. It couldn't have gone in if the youth carrying the bowl was the normal type who responded naturally to ordinary stimuli. The pungent, appetizing odor which met one's nostrils as soon as the cellar door was opened was temptation enough to withstand. When the lid of the barrel was lifted, the sight of the savory kraut steeped in rich brine was just too alluring to resist.

Its pleasantly piquant flavor is one of the attractive features about kraut. It is one food that is nutritious as well as tasty. This flavor is partly due to saltiness and partly to lactic acid, which is a product of the fermentation of the cabbage. Lactic acid has a favorable effect in the intestines, exerting a kind of disinfecting process. Sauerkraut also stimulates the flow of gastric juice. The stimulation of the appetite, however, is not entirely due to the acid content. Some of it can be attributed to its vitamin B content.

Besides the lactic acid and saltiness, sauerkraut has all the food value of the original cabbage. It is a good source of vitamins A and B and rich in C. Its iron and calcium content is also high. Because it has a large percentage of cellulose, it furnishes valuable bulk to the diet.

To most individuals the flavor of raw kraut is more pleasing than that of the cooked. There is a coolness and crispness about it that makes it desirable as an appetizer or a salad. In serving, care should be taken not to throw away any of the juice. Raw or cooked kraut should be served with its natural juice. Unfortunately, many cooks throw away or boil away all the juice and serve the kraut quite dry, which makes it unattractive.

My favorite way is to eat kraut au naturel, just as it comes from the barrel. The next best way, in my opinion, is in soup. [Use of bony pieces of goose or chicken to make the base of the soup, then add kraut the last 20 minutes of cooking]. Spareribs, boiled pigs' hocks, or weiners are the most usual accompaniments. Recently I've tasted some unusual and delicious salads made of kraut.

Kraut is an economical food worth all the money we ever pay for it as far as flavor and food value are concerned. It is good all the year around, but it especially appeals at this season of the year. Kraut comes in barrels and it comes in cans. My preference is for the former, but I would never refuse the latter. I suggest that kraut fresh from the barrel should be purchased, not that which stands drying out in large trays on the grocer's counter. Insist on his getting the moist, juicy kind right from the barrel.

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

JUNIOR GIRL'S LINGERIE ENSEMBLE.

The bandeau and panties of this ensemble follow the shaping of the figure and are popular with the younger set. The yoked band of the panties that opens at either side does away with any bulk at the waistline, and the leg bands provide opportunity for a contrasting color. The fitted brassiere opens at the back. Crêpe satin, crêpe de chine, radium silk, and triple voile are among the lovely materials that are suitable.

The pattern, 2861, comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 16 requires 1¼ yards of 39 inch material with ⅞ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

EDDIE SHEA WHIPS LA BARBA IN RING UPSET

Stribling and Griffith Guarantee That.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Jack Sharkey may or may not fight Max Schmeling for the world's heavyweight title in New York next summer, Chicago can't be bothered, for tomorrow night at the Stadium Young Wil Stribling and Tuffy Griffith fight ten rounds. Without casting aspersion on Sharkey and Herr Max, Chicago probably will see more action [and for less money] than Sharkey and Schmeling ever will offer the public.

Without going into the sequence of events which makes possible a return engagement between Schmeling and the man who gave him the world title by a foul, since such events apparently are not based on logic or sane reasoning, it is proper to inquire where a better heavyweight fight may be found than the one tomorrow night.

Griffith Also Fighting Man.

Will Stribling is the National Boxing association's number two man, and what is more important, he is regarded as such by boxing fans, even if the nomenclature doesn't place him at the top of the world's heavyweights. And Tuffy Griffith is something of a fighting man himself. Certainly he never has been accused of persistently punching below the legal limits, nor has it ever been said he practiced high diving for any opponent.

In short, Griffith is a suitable match for Stribling, and about the only heavyweight over whom Strib hasn't proved his superiority. We haven't forgotten, of course, Sharkey's victory over Stribling in Florida, but the best reason for that wrestling match may be that Stribling was fighting Sharkey.

"This fight [Stribling and Griffith] is the test of boxing in Chicago." So says Nate Lewis, the man who made the match. "If Chicago won't patronize this bout, the fans don't want big fights."

Gate May Reach $100,000.

While we are not concerned whether 3,000 Chicagoans will contribute approximately $100,000, being of the opinion that each individual should be permitted to take fights or leave them, it does seem these figures will become facts. This hypothesis is not unreasonable if New Yorkers will contribute an estimated $27.50 each to see Sharkey meet Schmeling with the probability, judging from previous performances, that the championship will be determined by violation of a rule rather than by prowess.

The majority of the hundreds who have watched training drills this week favor Stribling to win with perhaps a mental reservation that Strib must fight as against Von Porat and Scott. And the minority which espouses Griffith's cause also probably has its minutes when it hopes Tuffy will carry on in best form and not wage cautious retreat, hoping to win on points.

Stribling Given Edge.

Both fighters are ready. Griffith did not box yesterday and will not today. He weighs 187 pounds, two less than Stribling scaled yesterday afternoon when he concluded his boxing. While both are matched in speed, Stribling is given an advantage in experience, punching power, and cleverness. This covers the case, and all the fans can do is wait until 10 o'clock tomorrow evening.

Kid Howard, proprietor of the Arcade gymnasium, and the new management of the Randolph street training grounds, where the Stribling menace has held forth, have reasons to believe Chicago is interested in the fight. Attendance records have been broken at both gymnasiums when the headliners were in the ring. Four hundred paid admission last Sunday to see Griffith. Monday, the last day Tuffy boxed, 550 laid down their 25 cent pieces, while an equal number clustered past the turnstile on the free list as fighters, managers, or because they knew someone who knew somebody else.

Enjoy Striblings' Antics.

The long wooden bleachers at the big gymnasium were packed with customers yesterday afternoon when Stribling boxed two rounds with Tom Jones and two more with Mickey Patrick, while the intimates of boxing were grouped closely about the ring. The crowd applauded Strib's workout and repeated for Herb (Baby) Stribling who boxes six rounds in the opening bout tomorrow night with Allen Kennedy. And there were cheers for Grandpa Stribling and four year old W. L. Third in their daily games of flips and hand stands.

Other fighters on the card also are ready for the show. Jack Gagnon, whom Chicago remembers as one time conqueror of Griffith, later defeated at the Stadium in ten rounds by Tuffy, will fight Larry Johnson. This eight round semi-windup may contain more slam bang punching than the final. Natie Brown and Frank Conley are matched for eight rounds. Willie Oster and Mickey McFarland complete the card.

George Godfrey will train today at the Arcade before continuing his journey to Atlanta for a bout with Ernest Wright.

Prince of Wales Takes London Squash Tourney

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The prince of Wales won the final of the Squash Rackets handicap tournament at the Queen's club tonight, beating E. A. Benson, 9-4, 9-6, 10-9. The prince has competed in three previous finals, but never before won the event.

THRONGS GREET GRIDIRON HEROES OF NOTRE DAME

Notre Dame's national football champions came home yesterday and everybody in the loop knew it.

The largest crowd that ever had jammed into a Chicago railway station was at the La Salle street terminal to welcome back the midwest's gridiron heroes from California. Thousands more were packed around the entrance trying to get in. Other thousands took up positions on the sidewalks for blocks around the loop waiting for a glimpse of the athletes.

For a moment after arrival it looked as if this group of boys who had rushed up and down gridirons from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts would be stopped at the line of scrimmage. Coach Knute Rockne, who was confined to his compartment all of the way back from Los Angeles, hesitated about leaving the train.

File Out to Automobiles.

Policemen and firemen locked arms with the players and managed to bring them single file from the train to waiting automobiles for a tour of the loop. Rockne and others in the party pulled a quarter back sneak on the crowd, reaching the lower level of the station by an emergency stairway in the rear of the train shed.

Reception committees had made elaborate plans to receive the team, but they had no chance to reach their guests. They hadn't anticipated such a welcoming throng.

The parade, which had difficulty getting under way because of the milling crowds outside the station, passed through streets decorated with American flags and the blue and gold of Notre Dame. Ticker tape and confetti were showered down in La Salle street.

Demand Carideo Speak.

The throngs broke through police lines at La Salle and Jackson, surrounded the car in which rode Frank Carideo, quarter back, and demanded a speech from the bewildered youth. The chauffeur got the car moving again, but had lost the rest of the parade.

After Rockne had thanked Chicago over W-G-N for its reception of the team, the party entrained for South Bend, still deafened by the thunder of Chicago's slap on the back.

When it was all over Rockne remarked: "We thought we had been through some great lines on the football field this year, but the lines we and the police had to fight today had 'em all beat."

MORE ADO AT SOUTH BEND

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Fifteen thousand students and townspeople greeted the Notre Dame team upon its return home today. The demonstration tied up traffic for nearly an hour.

The team was formally received by Father Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame, in a campus gathering after the downtown celebration.

Rockne said that many persons had asked him to compare the 1930 team with the 1924 Four Horsemen, but he remarked: "I can't compare them. There is plenty of room for all of these great teams. Others have asked me who was the greater quarter back—Carideo or Stuhldreher. I couldn't compare them any more than I could compare Caesar and Napoleon."

"Something really memorable should be said on this occasion, but I don't know what it should be. I find words inadequate to pay proper tribute to this team, to Rockne, and to the others of his coaching staff," said Father O'Donnell.

The players will be feted tomorrow night at the civic testimonial banquet at which Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of Big Ten athletics; A. A. Stagg, and Dick Hanley have been invited to talk.

Rockne, who fears a recurrence of his old leg ailment, plans to enter Mayo Brothers' hospital after his return from New York next week.

"Any Job'll Do," Old Timers Plead, Rockin' on Their Heels

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 10.—Our scene is the lobby of a sophisticated hotel connected with Grand Central terminal. Canaries flutter and chirp in their gilded cages, beating their dead wings in the manner of eagles against the bars. Old pitchers and catchers also flutter and chirp, stimulated, some of them, by the condescending ministrations of the major league baseball magnates, beating their dead wings against the smoky air.

"I am good for a dozen games a year with a half decent club behind me," says an old right hander of the National league. "The arm is O. K., but Earnshaw would have been a bum with my club last year."

The old boys, long ago resigned to $3,500 a year as scouts and coaches, rock on their heels, squinting at the ceiling, their faces puckered up after years on the battlefield.

Blackburn Wants to Play.

"Yeah," they reflect, but do not say. "Yeah. Well, he will have to learn like the rest of us. It's tough, but so is dying."

And they rock on their heels, swinging their overcoats on their arms.

"I just want to play ball," says Lena Blackburn, the old infielder, who enjoyed or suffered one year's authority as manager of the White Sox and played Fred Fulton for Art Shires' imitation of Jack Dempsey. "Give me anything to do with a ball club. I'll pitch, catch, chase flies, or chase bats. I'll do anything, just so it's baseball."

Johnny Evers goes by. He was the greatest second baseman in the game for a maximum salary of $4,000 a year with the old Cubs. His jaw is still as angular, undershot, and quarrelsome as ever. He looks like George M. Cohan somehow. If Johnny were at his best today his newspaper syndicate rights alone would be worth more to him than he ever drew as salary.

Mr. Stevens Quotes Classics.

Old Harry Stevens, the Shakesperean hot dog and peanut magnate, leans against a pillar. A pitcher with a $2,000 back salary claim against one of the teams is trying his case before a tolerant and miscellaneous but powerless jury.

"This is a great place to come asking for your rights," says a dead arm

Player Market Is Bullish; Peace Near in Draft War

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Activity among players reached a new high today in the major league meetings and a promise of peace appeared in the complicated draft controversy with the minors.

For hours and hours the magnates of the National and American leagues sat in conclave, first in a committee meeting with nine representatives of the International and Pacific Coast leagues, and the American association to discuss the draft, then in regular business sessions of the leagues.

Wally Schang and Cy Perkins, veteran catchers, released by the Athletics, talked themselves into jobs. Wally with the Detroit Tigers and Perkins with the New York Yankees. Joe Dugan, once the third base ace of baseball, and the Yankees, came to a tentative agreement with the Tigers as utility man.

John McGraw, of the New York Giants, offered Old Chief Bender, once a pitching star on Connie Mack's great teams, a job as a scout. At the same time McGraw reached an agreement with George Burns, once a Giant outfielder, to replace Irish Meusel as a coach here.

The trade winds failed to stir but there were rumors aplenty. The Red Sox were reported to have offered First Baseman Phil Todt to Cleveland for Johnny Hodapp.

The Washington Senators would take Outfielder Reynolds from the White Sox and give them a choice of two of the following players: Joe Kuhel, rookie first baseman, Buddy Meyer, infielder, and Bump Hadley, pitcher. Donie Bush would be more inclined to talk business if Hadley and an outfielder were joined in the offer. Cleveland offered the White Sox First Baseman Fonseca for Willie Kamm.

In the draft conference the major league committee listened to the proposition of the minors and laid the situation before a joint league meeting tonight. There seems to be little trouble over the price of drafted players but the majors want to have 15 men out on option for three years instead of the eight allowed them for two years.

GREENLEAF RUNS UP 125-24 CUE SCORE ON ALLEN

Clicks Off 41 and 49 for Decisive Victory.

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Ralph Greenleaf successfully hurdled another barrier tonight in quest of his tenth world's pocket billiard championship in eleven years. Meeting Bennie Allen of Kansas City, who was winning national titles when Greenleaf was first learning the feel of a cue, the 30 year old champion played brilliant billiards to win, 125 to 24, in 16 innings.

At times Allen threatened to break through Greenleaf's game with a well planned defensive play, but in the end it was the great defensive work of the champion that won. With Greenleaf holding an edge of 18 to 13 in the fifth inning, the youthful veteran and his even more experienced rival traded safety for safety for eight innings in an effort to gain an advantage.

Greenleaf Gets Opening.

All of the safety plays were on one ball as each player endeavored to freeze it to the rail. With the crowd urging him on, Allen finally chose to break away from the game that was gaining nothing for either player and in doing so left an opening for Greenleaf. A faint smile spread over the champion's face as he grasped the opportunity and ran 41 to take a lead of 57 to 13.

With the end in sight, Greenleaf speeded up his play, missed an easy pocket play on his 42d shot, but came back to run five in the 14th inning, 15 in the 15th and then completed the game with an unfinished high run of 49. Allen, started out strong, never was able to improve on his high run of 13 made in the fifth frame.

Greenleaf's victory, his second one-sided triumph of the tournament, left him in a triple tie for first place with Arthur Woods and Onofrio Lauri of New York, who also won today.

Lauri Beats Taberski.

Woods, playing the best billiards of his long career, turned back Thomas Boatman of Portland, Ore., 125 to 43, in nine innings, the second shortest game of the tournament.

Frank Taberski, Schenectady, N. Y., veteran and former champion, fell before the erratic but daring shotmaking of Lauri, 125 to 76, in 22 innings. Lauri got away to a 30 point lead in the first inning, an advantage which Taberski never was able to overcome.

HOPPE RUNS 247 TO BEAT COCHRAN IN SIXTH BLOCK

Willie Hoppe reached the peak of his game last night to win the final block of his six block 18.2 balkline billiard match with Welker Cochran, 300 to 88, in three innings at Mussey's. Hoppe had an unfinished run of 247, the best run of the match. They finished all even at three blocks, and today will start a six block match at 18.1.

INVADER FROM THE NORTH

Shamrocks to Seek Revenge Over Millers

The Shamrocks tonight will continue their week's business of seeking revenge from the two American league teams that have licked them when they meet the Minneapolis Millers at the Chicago Stadium.

The Millers last week took the Shamrocks to the only trimming either Chicago hockey team has taken on Chicago ice this season, and the Green and White boys didn't like it, especially since they claim that one of the goal judges was chatting with a friend and failed to see a Chicago goal which would have tied the score. Tonight they are determined to get even for the relapse.

The lineups tonight will be:

SHAMROCKS.		MINNEAPOLIS MILLERS.
Timmins	G	Levine
Taylor	D	Coutu
Mulligan	D	Munro
Headley	C	Johnson
Mackenzie	R. W.	Gordon
Burns	L. W.	Oddson

Millers—Carbol, defense; Riley, center; Collings, Redding, De Paul, Lessard, wings.

Johnny Gottselig, the Blackhawks' scoring ace, will be back on the ice at the Stadium against the Montreal Maroons Sunday night after a two weeks' illness.

This is the fifth season for big league hockey in Chicago. Rule pamphlets were put on sale at the game last Sunday night and 3,000 were sold between periods at the game with the Detroit Falcons. It is expected that several thousand more will be sold Sunday night.

The Blackhawks are especially concerned about defeating the Montreal Maroons, the only team that had beaten them until they ran into a snag at Detroit Tuesday night. The Hawks of 1929 whipped the Maroons four straight.

Tulsa Piles Up 11 to 2 Score on Buffalo Sextet

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Showing as fast and furious an exhibition of hockey as has been seen on the local ice, the Tulsa Oilers swamped the Buffalo Buffs, 11 to 2, in an American Hockey league game here tonight.

Paterson Cagers Twice as Good as Bruins; Win, 24-12

Paterson, with Honey Russell, one time captain of the Bruins and still a favorite with Chicago fans, in the lineup, doubled the score on the home team last night at the Stadium. The final count of 24 to 12 was due in no small part to Russell's cool headed advance of the ball, although it was Bennie Borgman and later, Red Conaty, who did the scoring.

What might have been a great basketball game developed into a first half rout principally because the Bruins couldn't make the ball go through the loop. They had shots, not easy ones, of course, but enough of the kind they usually make to keep pace with Paterson. The half ended, 10 to 3, Nate Hickey producing all 3 Chicago's points.

The best Chicago could do in the second half was to manufacture an 18 to 12 score with 15 minutes work. From here Paterson sprinted ahead with Red Conaty playing for Artus to add six points while the Bruins went back into their slump. Free throws were indicative of the collapse of Chicago's offensive. Hickey made four out of eight attempts and Allen and Bramhall missed one each. Paterson counted eight in ten tries. Russell banging four in a row.

In the preliminary game the Taylor Trunk girls lost 24 to 22 to the Christ Church boys. The boys led 15 to 8 at the half but Taylor Trunks tied the count 18 all at the third period.

Sam Hildreth's Estate Appraised at $961,819

New York, Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Gross assets of $1,031,062 and net assets of $961,819 were shown today in an appraisal of the estate of Samuel Clay Hildreth, owner and trainer of horses, who died on Sept. 24, 1929. The appraisal set forth assets as follows: $50,000 in real estate; $120,299 in cash; $830,759 in stocks and bonds, and $28,684 in mortgages, notes and accounts.

SWARMS OVER COAST FIGHTER IN LATE ROUNDS

Fields Wins; Miller Takes Licking.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Eddie Shea, rough and ready Chicago Italian, bounded into the front ranks of featherweight challengers tonight when he was awarded a ten round decision over Fidel La Barba of Los Angeles.

Patsy Haley of New York, the referee, unhesitatingly raised Shea's right hand in victory after the ten rounds of ripping and tearing fighting. The decision seemed to surprise the 12,000 spectators who at first greeted it with boos and then broke into cheers.

La Barba, rated as an outstanding challenger for the title, appeared to be stunned by the decision. He fought a rough and aggressive opponent in Shea, who continually bored in, ripping his arms to the body like pistons. Shea rushed La Barba to the ropes a half dozen times under a heavy body punishing attack.

Makes La Barba Retreat.

Shea's big offensive was in the fifth round, when he opened up in a flashy spurt to drive La Barba to the ropes. He scored repeatedly with short body punches and left hooks to the head. From then on to the finish he kept crowding La Barba, who appeared to tire under the heavy pace.

The battle was one of three ten rounders to raise funds for Christmas charity. The show, attracting the largest crowd that ever saw a boxing show in Cleveland, drew $48,360, of which a profit of $19,000 will be used to buy clothing, toys and food for needy children.

Shea weighed 126 pounds and La Barba 124¾.

Fields Cuffs Pirrone.

Jackie Fields, Los Angeles, former world welterweight champion, defeated Paul Pirrone of Cleveland in their ten round bout. Fields, flashing superior speed and boxing skill, won nine of the ten rounds.

The former titleholder was too clever for the rugged Cleveland boxer. Pirrone was hanging on in the second and third rounds and again in the eighth and ninth, in an effort to escape Field's blistering two handed attack to the head and body.

Pironne exhibited courage and a dangerous right hand swing, but connected with it only in the seventh round. Fields weighed 146¾. Pirrone scaled 148¾.

Ray Miller Loses.

Johnny Farr, sawedoff lightweight from Cleveland, outroughed and outfought Ray Miller, Chicago left hooker, to earn the referee's decision in their ten rounder. Farr, outweighed 7 pounds, lost the first two rounds, but came back to take the next eight. Miller vainly attempted to spear Farr with one of his devastating left hooks, but missed repeatedly, due to Farr's aggressive body attack. Miller weighed 138. Farr 131.

Ollie Bartlett, Detroit, weighing 116¾, won a referee's decision over Mickey Cohen, Cleveland, in six rounds. Martin Zuniga, Los Angeles, featherweight, scored a technical knockout over Marshall Cousette, Cleveland, in one round.

MICHIGAN GIVES UP PLAN OF TWO BASKET SQUADS

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Michigan will have only one basketball squad this year and will pick men for both regular and B games from that squad, it is announced by Coach George Veenker. The decision throws into discard the plan of having both regular and B squads, which was tried last year.

The men who are to play the B games with Kalamazoo college next Tuesday night and Detroit City college two nights later, will be picked Monday by Coaches Veenker and Ray Courtright. Courtright will have charge of the group.

The order of the Michigan basketball games with Ohio States has been reversed by athletic officials of the two schools. Under the new arrangement Michigan will meet the Buckeyes at Columbus Jan. 17 and here Jan. 26.

WALLER HEAVIES DEFEAT TULEY IN THIRD OVERTIME

Waller High school's heavyweight basketball team yesterday defeated Tuley, 23 to 20, on the latter's court after three overtime periods. Tuley led at the half, 10 to 6, but the score was 19—19 at the end of regulation time.

They fought through two overtimes scoreless. In the third overtime Hughes scored two field goals for the winning margin. Tuley lights won from Waller, 23 to 6.

Wendell Phillips heavyweights handed Harrison its first defeat of the season, 26 to 19. Capt. Bray led the victors. Harrison lights scored their fourth victory, defeating the Phillips ponies, 11 to 8.

Martinez-Zorilla to Lead 1931 Cornell Grid Team

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Cristobal Martinez-Zorilla, member of an old Mexican family, was elected captain of the 1931 Cornell university football team at the annual football banquet held here tonight.

OFFICERS, WIVES CHEER ARMY IN GRID PRACTICE

King, Messinger Return to Team for Navy Game.

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 10.—(AP)—The Army football team ran through another snappy drill today in preparation for the charity game with the Navy in New York Saturday. The entire crop of cadets, officers of the post, and their wives were grouped around the practice field.

King and Messinger, ends, who have been on the injured list, were back in the lineup, and Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, head coach, appeared encouraged at the condition of his squad.

Plebes Use Navy Plays.

The plebe team again put on its version of the Navy attack, scrimmaging at full speed with Sasse's three varsity elevens. The secondary defense of the Army regulars was kept busy and had considerable difficulty in stopping the Navy aerial attack. A long pass defense drill for the varsity backs followed the scrimmage.

When the cadets shifted to the attack to test their new plays against the scrubs each successful thrust was greeted with cheers from the spectators. Most of the plays were directed at the tackles.

Kicking came in for considerable attention under the direction of Sasse and Lieut. Red Reeder. Broshous concentrated on drop kicking, Herb and Glattly on placement booting, and Frenzel, Fields, and Elliott on punting. A large part of the kicking was done under the pressure of a charging scrub line.

Officers Take Part in Rally.

After practice the commissioned personnel of the post, headed by Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent, marched to Washington hall to have dinner with the corps. In a brief rally which followed dinner short talks were given by Gen. Smith, Maj. Sasse, and Polly Humber, team captain.

IS 1930 A NAVY YEAR?

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Some bright midshipmen discovered today thtathe Navy football team has beaten the Army in every year that numbered an even ten.

In 1890, the teams of the service schools played their first game and the Navy won, 24 to 0. In 1900, the Navy sandwiched at 11 to 7 victory between two defeats by the Army. In 1910, the scode favored the Navy, 3 to 0, and in 1920 the Middies won, 7 to 0. Thus they expect 1930 will bring the Navy another victory when the teams clash at New York Saturday.

Look for Another Upset.

Navy followers also are pointing to unexpected victories at the end of the last two seasons as a promise of what the team will do this year in its final effort. In 1928, the Navy defeated a powerful Princeton team in the final game, and last year it overcame Dartmouth.

Today was pep day at the Naval academy, with the pep manifested in two installments, during practice this afternoon and for a half hour after supper and before the study period began. This afternoon, the regiment faced a huge sign on the opposite stands, which spelled in colored cardboards, "We are ready now."

Bill, the Navy goat, was on the field early, and then the Army mule appeared, ridden by two cheer leaders. Bill calmly approached the mule, which nearly backed through the grandstand, and this was taken as another favorable omen for the Navy.

Kirn's Parents Watch Practice.

Among the spectators at practice were the father and mother of Lou Kirn, the ace of the Navy back field. They came from Milwaukee to see Saturday's game and stopped over at the academy.

Practice for the varsity consisted of shadow scrimmage against squad B.

All betting in which the midshipmen have taken a part is unofficial. Groups have been formed at both schools, represented by a cadet and midshipman who happen to know each other and who act as agents for placing bets of bathrobes, sweaters, and other articles. In one case, a midshipman and a cadet have wagered their blouses.

THISTLETHWAITE ASKS BADGERS TO FORGET "STRIKE"

Madison, Wis., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—The ten University of Wisconsin sophomore football players who yesterday signed a petition agreeing not to play next season if Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite is dismissed by the athletic council, today were asked by Thistlethwaite to reconsider their action.

"I am not anticipating a dismissal by the university authorities, but if it should come, I should like to be the first person to ask these boys to reconsider that part of the petition to the effect that they will not participate under other authorities," Thistlethwaite said.

Postl is an experienced trainer and a former wrestler. He has applied to the Illinois State Athletic commission for a second's license so that he may be in Londos' corner during the match.

Foster, Father of Negro Ball League, Dies

Andrew Rube Foster, probably the best known colored baseball player in the world, died Tuesday evening after an illness of two years. Funeral services will be held at St. Mark's M. E. church, 50th street and Wabash avenue, Sunday afternon at 3 o'clock. Burial will be in Lincoln cemetery on Monday.

Foster was born in Calvert, Tex., on Sept. 17, 1879, and his first baseball was on he sand lots of his home town. In 1899 he attracted attention with the Fort Worth Yellowjackets and then came to Chicago as pitcher for the old Leland Giants ball club at 79th street and Wentworth avenue.

Returns Here in 1907.

In 1902 he went east and joined the Philadelphia Cuban Giants, and in 1904 he pitched for the Philadelphia Giants. He remained east until 1907 when he returned to Chicago bringing with him the stars of the eastern colored clubs and joined Leland's outfit again. Foster remained with that team until he formed the American Giants in 1910 and played in Schorling's park, the old White Sox grounds, at 39th and Wentworth avenue.

As pitcher and manager of the Leland Giants and as manager of the American Giants, Foster played against some of the best talent in baseball at that time. His club was a member of the old Chicago City league which included Anson's Colts, Gunthers, Logan Squares, Normals, South Chicago, Spaldings, and the West Ends. Jimmy Callahan, former manager of the Chicago White Sox; Percy Skillin, Mike Donlin, Jake Stahl, who later managed the Boston Red Sox; Gus Munch, Hildebrand, and others were members of the various clubs in the league.

Cubs Accept Challenge.

In October, 1909, Foster challenged the Chicago Cubs, then managed by Frank Chance. There were three games played, all at Gunther park. Both Chance and Evers refused to participate. Miner Brown defeated Walter Ball to win the first game against Rube's team, 4 to 2. Big Overall and Pat Dougherty hooked up in a hurlers' duel in the second contest, and the colored boys lost, 1 to 0. The south side fans banked on Foster to take the last game of the series and save a complete shutout. Foster, whose leg had been broken in July, faced Miner Brown and lost, 6 to 5.

In 1920 Foster joined a group of owners of colored ball clubs and formed the Negro National league. He was elected president and served until his health forced him to quit the game two years ago.

Foster was the Judge Landis of Negro baseball. Although president of the league, he also was a high commissioner.

PRESIDENT OPENS PROBE OF SPORTS AT PENNSYLVANIA

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Thomas S. Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania, announced today that a complete investigation is being made with the view to the adoption of a constructive policy covering competitive athletics.

"The authorities of the university have been fully conscious for a considerable period of the unrest which exists among the students of the university and among alumni in respect to competitive athletics, especially football," said Mr. Gates in a formal statement.

"The university is keenly alive to its responsibility for the physical welfare of its students, whether this involves participation in competitive athletics or intramural athletics or physical education. The authorities intend to see that the interests of the students are safeguarded in every reasonable way."

CENTRAL A. A. U. PICKS CHAIRMAN OF 1931 SPORTS

Ted Canty was named chairman of the industrial sports committee, Owen Van Camp of the membership and investigation committee, Charles Postl of the weight lifting sports committee, Harry Keator of the volley ball committee, and Roy Davis of the registration committee. All committees meet regularly during the season to plan and supervise A. A. U. activities.

'Any Job'll Do,' Plead Baseball Stars of Past coach who is lucky to have a job when he has one.

"Sir," Mr. Stevens says, "you put me in mind of something. A great English jurist once said, 'For justice any place is a temple and all seasons are summer.'"

"Yeah?" says Mr. Blackburn. "And what did they do to him?"

The elevator door opens and Dan Howley, the manager of the Cincinnati Reds, steps out. Dan looks something like Jim Farley, the chairman of the New York prize fight commission. He hasn't much fur on his skull any more.

Goes In for Youth.

"New ball club next year," Dan says. "I'm disbanding the old men's home and starting a boys' camp. From now on I'm Dan Beard, the head of the Boy Scouts.

"Hello, Tomato Face," to Sunburst Bill Killefer, the manager of the Browns, "how's your brother?"

Bill Killefer's brother, Red, has just been opened at the hospital in Battle Creek and Sunburst Bill is waiting for a train.

"I got a wire today," Bill says. "He's lost forty pounds in a couple of months, but they say he's doing all right. Still, I think I ought to go see him right away."

"Nothing serious, I hope," says Salvation Dan. "O, he'll be all right. Big, healthy fellow like him. Still, forty pounds in a couple of months. That's tough, Bill."

Moe Berg of the White Sox, a ball player with more initials in his college degrees than Gene Tunney has letters in his name, goes strolling by.

Modesty Berg's Failing.

"Here's a guy can out-Shakespeare any guy in the house," says Mr. Bill [Big Shot] McGowan, the umpire, presenting Mr. Berg to Mr. Stevens. "He can speak nine languages and when he pops off at the umpires a guy can't get his delivery unless the guy is a Swede or a Russian or something. Tell him to go to hell in Polish, Moe."

"Now, lay off, please," says Mr. Berg. This young man has passed up a fortune in earnings due to his almost cringing modesty. If he had had the assurance of Mr. Tunney he, with his book learning, would have been the most famous intellectual athlete of his time. But it hurts him to be called a highbrow.

"Now, lay off," says he. "I'm no professor. I'm a catcher."

"I've heard of you," says Mr. Stevens, cocking his derby over a narrow blue eye. "They tell me you read books."

"I haven't never read nothing but the sport pages," says Mr. Berg. "Don't you go believing no propaganda."

Refuse to Stop Home Runs.

Upstairs, in a couple of parlor and bedroom suites, the magnates are pondering their business problems. The restriction of the home run loses by a close vote. It is proposed to soften the ball, to erect screens, to institute zones, but the sense of the business meeting is that the home run has paid dividends to date and that this is no time to legislate against dividends.

The afternoon meetings disperse after four hours and the proprietors emerge from their smoky confinement to refresh their lungs with the mixed fumes of the lobby.

Mr. Sam Breadon, proprietor of the Cardinals and a dozen minor league firms, peps a couple of aspirins into himself. He is afraid he will have to take some alcohol to ward off a cold, and a half a dozen offers of alcohol are urged upon him.

"No," Mr. Breadon says, "I think I will stick to the aspirin. After all, I'm a business man and we are having another meeting tonight. A man can't lose his sense of proportion on aspirin.

Sam and Rogers Meet.

A spring fellow with a blue-black jaw happens by, Rogers Hornsby. Here is a classic hate. Both Breadon and Hornsby have hard, square chins and cold, go to hell eyes, and they fought like pit dogs over some trivial row a few years ago. The hair comes up and twitches on the back of their necks, or the backs of their necks.

Hornsby waits for Sam to speak and vice versa.

"Why, hello, Sam," and "Hello, Roj," simultaneously and defiantly. "How's everything? Everything all right? That's fine. Glad to see you."

So this is the feud the customers were taking sides and fighting in the speakeasies about a few years ago in St. Louis. Is anything on the level any more?

Mr. Veeck of the Cubs comments: "A couple of hard boiled young fellows who couldn't get along. Great guys, but contrary minded."

It Helps Players, He Says.

Mr. Breadon mentions the squabble between the major leagues and the minors about the draft. The customers know little about the draft except that by this devise the major league teams claim the right to attach the best players in the minors after Sept. 15 each year for prices incompatible with the value of the property, a player being property in baseball.

"The draft is designed to improve the professional opportunities of the players," Mr. Breadon says without smiling. There are derisive cries from irresponsible persons around and about.

"Looks like I might have to get me a crate of those unemployed apples and go to work hustling at Broadway and 42d," says Mr. Blackburne. "Meeting's almost over and no job yet. I'm willing to do anything around a ball club. Pitch, catch, infield, outfield, chase bats, take tickets, anything. No reasonable offer refused, but no job yet."

Y. M. C. A. COLLEGE QUINTET BEATS CRANE, 30 TO 23

STRIBLING VS. GRIFFITH.

YOUNG STRIBLING pretty generally is conceded victory over Tuffy Griffith at the Stadium tomorrow night, either by decision or knockout. Possibly there is too near unanimity on the subject. Tuffy's record is dotted with surprises, both in third speed and in reverse.

One reason for this swarming to Stribling is that success is essential to the one time Georgia school boy to enable him to maintain his rôle as leading challenger of Champion Max Schmeling. In his battles of the last year, Stribling has shown that he can battle as an aggressive puncher. His present public popularity dates from the time he discarded Parthian tactics.

Whether Stribling is better than Jack Sharkey remains an open question. When they met at Miami two years ago this coming winter, the Bostonian secured the verdict in a contest where we thought the Georgian might have won or at least secured a draw by pressing the issue. Since then Sharkey won from Phil Scott, after perpetrating a foul which was not called and Stribling convincingly horizontailed the Briton.

Sharkey already has met Schmeling, losing on a foul when he had all the advantage up to that time. Schmeling, however, had taken everything offered by the Boston boy and was in no visible distress. On that showing, Sharkey naturally asks another bout. It is a moot question, then, whether Sharkey or Stribling next is entitled to meet the German. A bout between the two would settle that issue.

This is extending rather far into the future when Griffith may have something to say with his fists tomorrow night. By winning, Tuffy could leap right into the front rank. It is his great opportunity. An unsatisfactory bout would do little good for future lucrative engagements.

The Day Before Pay Day.

(With apology to Christopher Morley.)

'Twas the day before pay day and all through my sock
I hunted ten minutes by our stopped clock.
All through my bureau, excited and quick,
Under my pillow and under the tick.
'Twas no use, honey bunch, the search was a flop,
'Tis certain my pocketbook leaks at the top.
Never mind, for tomorrow we'll live high, I hope,
When you bring home to wife your pay envelope. Ella M.

DE PAUL QUINTET TO FACE CORNELL TOMORROW NIGHT

Speed and more deception in passing were stressed yesterday afternoon as the De Paul university quintet continued to round into form for the battle tomorrow night with Cornell college.

The Blue Demons will present a baffling attack when Coach Jim Kelly finishes removing the rough spots. Stix Powers, forward, is a clever ball handler.

Heine Coan, the other forward, is also a fast floor man and an expert passer. John Ascher, center, has shown ability to control the jump and takes a key part in the offensive play. Bud and Joe O'Connor have performed capably at the guards.

Indiana Five Beats De Pauw in Debut, 26-18

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 10.—[Special.]—Indiana opened its basketball season here tonight with a 26 to 18 victory over De Pauw. The Crimson led at the half, 14 to 11.

Although the Indiana defense was ragged, offensive power kept the Hoosiers in the lead. Frequent fouling and rough and tumble play made the game interesting. Veller and Rainbolt opened the game with successive field goals in two attempts.

The floor play of Peadad Campbell of Shelbyville and the long shots of Veller were outstanding for Indiana. Eubank led the Tiger attack and scored three field goals. Ragsdale was able to net 8 points for De Pauw.

Indiana used a makeshift lineup, but the Hoosier five showed promise of making competition hot for its opponents.

Besides scoring two goals from the field, Campbell was in the midst of every play. Veller was used in backguard position with Blagrave, veteran of last year, unable to appear in uniform due to a knee injury. Lineup:

C. A. A. SWIMMING TEAM DEFEATS PURPLE, 46 TO 29

Northwestern's swimming supremacy was broken by the Chicago Athletic association team in a dual meet at Patten gymnasium last night, the Cherry Circle swimmers winning by a score of 46 to 29.

Two members of the Wildcat team which last year won the national collegiate title—Dick Hinch and Don Peterson—swam for the C. A. A. last night and won first place in their events.

Some solace was gained by the Purple fans when a freshman relay team composed of Kerber, Murphy, Highland, and Wilcox swam to a new world record in the 400 yard relay. Their time was 3:36.3, which bettered the mark of 3:38 made by Yale last year.

This quartet, whom Coach Tom Robinson called the greatest group of free style swimmers in the history of Northwestern, will be eligible for varsity competition next year.

The C. A. A. swimmers won 6 of the 9 events in the swimming meet and then swamped the Wildcats, 13 to 1, in a water polo match. The summaries:

400 YARD RELAY—Won by Northwestern [Troup, Debenham, Wilson and Covode]. Time, 3:48.4.

220 YARD BREAST STROKE—Won by Peterson, C. A. A.; Elliott, C. A. A., second; Bernolfo, N. U., third; Kaufman, N. U., fourth. Time, 2:42.4.

MILD WEATHER PROLONGS STAY OF DUCK FLOCKS

But Wary Birds Careful to Avoid Hunters.

BY BOB BECKER.

The mild December weather which has prevailed throughout the central states has been like an Indian summer in south central and southern Illinois with the result that the waterfowl population is loafing around reluctant to push on toward the gulf states. For a while the mallards skidded around on the ice, but during the last week the temperature has gone so high that the ice has melted and once more the puddler ducks are splashing into the bayous, lakes and ponds in the Illinois river country.

Duck hunters who are wondering if the hunting season ended with the cold snap which froze the ponds down state have an answer to their question in the presence of thousands of mallards along the Illinois. However, the birds are pretty smart and of late they have been inactive during the day.

Time Arrival, Departure.

It looks much as if the leaders of the big flocks carry wrist watches instead of numbered bands around their legs so that they can time the arrival and departure of the mallard hosts and thus give the hunters mighty little shooting at times.

Here is what happens. At 4:15 p. m. when the shotgun boys are picking up their decoys or on their way home the greenheads by the thousands fly over the trees from the rest ground. They seem to know when it is safe to pile into the ponds for a night of feeding and rest.

Head for Rest Ground.

In the morning when the boys take up quarters in a blind, thousands of birds will rise from the ponds and then head for a rest ground. During this mild, balmy weather the mallard hosts have been spending their time loafing on these restricted waters and flying but little.

Of course, some decoy during the day so that a fellow gets shooting now and then. But the great flocks stay "put" until nightfall. Then the air is filled with the smart old greenheads and the evening flight became a stirring picture just as the sun goes down.

9 TEAMS ENTER CAGE LEAGUE AT LOYOLA U.

Loyola university's plan of "athletics for all" began to take form yesterday when nine teams were organized for intra-mural basketball. All entries for the league does not close until Dec. 19, it is likely that more teams will participate in the competition.

President Robert M. Kelley, S. J., announced last week that Loyola had abandoned intercolegiate football and that more students could compete in athletics. Next fall Loyola's football program will consist entirely of intramural competition.

Shortly after the Christmas vacation Loyola students will compete in a swimming meet. The tourney will be conducted under the supervision of Richard Thompson, Loyola swimming coach, and Thomas O'Neil, director of the contest.

In addition to individual events of 100 yard breast stroke and free style and 50 yard back stroke races there will be relays of 200 yards and four water polo contests.

This will make the head of the house sit up and take notice!

U.S. STEEL CORP. SENDS OUT GOOD NEWS BULLETIN

Backlog Shows Rise of 157,873 Tons.

BY O. A. MATHER.

There was good news from the steel industry yesterday in spite of the fact that production is abnormally low. The United States Steel corporation's monthly report on unfilled orders showed an increase of 157,873 tons during November.

The increase not only was larger than had been predicted but it was the largest monthly increase thus far this year and also the best November gain since 1925. Furthermore, it was the second successive monthly upturn and brought unfilled tonnage up to a total of 3,639,636 tons, the largest backlog since July.

The report was favorably received in Wall and La Salle streets as indicating that forward buying of steel has shown some signs of expanding in recent weeks, inasmuch as output of United States Steel last month was geared pretty close to incoming orders.

It also was recalled that large orders for equipment from the railroads a year ago were reflected in a gain in unfilled orders, which totaled 4,125,345 on Nov. 30. And now resumption of buying by the railroads after a prolonged lull, as well as prospects of increased demand from other industries early next year, inspires the hope that the rising trend of unfilled tonnage figures will continue.

Consensus of Reviews.

The midweek steel trade reviews appearing yesterday were couched in more optimistic vein than recently, although they admitted some further seasonal decline in production. The Iron Age placed output this week at 41 per cent of capacity, compared with 43 per cent last week, but estimated operations of the United States Steel corporation between 41 and 42 per cent. The general average was estimated around 40 per cent by Steel, while Dow-Jones placed operations between 37 and 38 per cent.

"The week's development in iron and steel have been preponderantly favorable," Iron Age says, "and the industry, although chastened by repeated disappointments during the year, has gained confidence. While steel ingot output in November declined to the lowest level since July, 1924, and some further recession this month seems inevitable, there has been a gradual gain in demand for forward delivery, strengthening expectations of an upturn in production early next year.

Rail Contracting.

"Rail contracting, which ordinarily gets into full swing in October, now gives promise of getting under way without further delay. The two months' postponement of the bulk of rail and track accessory buying will concentrate demands that otherwise would have been spread over a longer period.

"Structural steel shows greater activity. Pipe lines, which have taken much steel in the last year, promise to give the mills renewed support. The automobile industry is buying more steel."

The New York Stock exchange announced yesterday that the total market value of all listed stocks was $11,211,859,703 on Nov. 29, a decrease of $1,718,850,914 for the month. The average market value on Dec. 1 was $41.13, compared with $42.43 on Nov. 1.

Opposes Restriction of Savings from Waterway

BY SCRUTATOR.

A proposal of more than ordinary interest and of much more than ordinary value to the gulf waterway is now before the interstate commerce commission. It embraces a request by the Inland Waterways corporation for a certificate empowering it to operate on the Illinois river and for orders directing the railroads touching its terminals to join in the making of through rates.

It is to be assumed that no arguments will be powerful enough to keep the certificate from being issued. The controversy—railroads oppose the rate arrangements suggested—is based on how much saving can be ordered in behalf of water shippers by the commission. It is also based partly on the exteht to which the water transport benefits shall be extended to persons living a considerable distance from the waterway.

Rails Attack Program.

The railroads of the southern territory, with the exception of four lines, have already filed comments unfavorable to the request of the corporation. They attack the entire waterway program, and particularly the government owned barge line, operated by the Inland Waterways corporation.

In general the proposal of the corporation is that it should be allowed to save its customers 20 per cent of their freight charges on what the barges handle. It is asked that a railroad north or east of Chicago, as an instance, should pick up a shipment, bring it to Chicago, allow it to be transferred to the barge line here, taken to a Mississippi river point, and then transferred again to rail for the continuance of its journey to final destination in Texas.

Unless such rates are made the benefit of the Illinois waterway will be confined to the people who live along its banks. Under these rates the waterline has to absorb the loading and unloading charges. The railroads are of course in the position of being forced to cooperate with a competitor. Among their acrid comments are the following:

"The barge line has reached the period of its existence when experimentation must cease and the commission should no longer blindly and without justifiable facts before it further engraft it into our transportation system. We further believe the time has come when this form of transportation must either justify itself of its own merit or fail because of its own weakness and for a lack of continued nourishment from the public treasury."

Might Prevent Use of System.

One waterway advocate holds that the commission must follow the mandates of congress, which has declared itself in favor of water transport and that it is a plain duty for the commission to preserve it in full vigor. He adds that the railroads' effort to make the savings smaller than 20 per cent for water shippers would, if successful, go far toward preventing the use of the system.

Navigation from Chicago to the gulf with a 9 foot channel will be possible in 1933 if the state gets its bridge program completed. The investment, wise or unwise, has already been made, or ordered. The people of the middle west, to get the benefits, must be allowed as full an access to the navigation as possible. To decree that, having built a waterway, they must get only a negligible saving from it, seems absurd.

COPPER ON DOMESTIC MARKET IS CUT DOWN TO 11C BY PRODUCERS

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Copper on the domestic market today was reduced 1c by producers, bringing the price down to 11c a pound, delivered, about midway between the peak of the recent recovery and the previous low levels.

Bar silver, which Tuesday reached the lowest price ever recorded at 33c an ounce, today rose to 33½c.

Brighter Days Will Come Again, Insull Asserts

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Samuel Insull, head of the Insull utilities, told the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce today that "bright days will come again because courage and character will make them come."

SAMUEL INSULL.

The occasion of his address was the chamber's annual centenary luncheon in honor of the 105 Philadelphia firms which have been in business for 100 years or more.

"We are in the midst of a test of both courage and character today," Mr. Insull said, "and these 105 institutions of yours ought to be an example to us. What has a business depression or even a panic meant in the history of such an institution?"

Will Not Come as a Gift.

"But there is one thing," Insull said, "that we must take to heart. Our good times will not come as a gift of government, or a gift of Providence, but as an effort of the people.

"There are amongst us, as there have been amongst every people of every age, those who are perpetually calling upon government for aid, whether times are good or bad. An enterprising advertising man out in Chicago resurrected the answer to such as these from the essays of Lord Macaulay. It was written when England was having an experience much like ours of today, and is pertinent to this occasion because it was written just a hundred years ago."

"'On what principle is it,' Macaulay asked, 'that when we see nothing but improvement behind us, we are to expect nothing but deterioration before us?

Prudence and Energy.

"'It is not by the intermeddling of the state, but by the prudence and energy of the people that England has hitherto been carried forward in civilization; and it is to the same prudence and the same energy that we now look with comfort and good hope.'

"If, as Macaulay so wisely suggested, government will but keep hands off except in its own proper field we will come out of the doldrums where so many now hang idle of hand and brain, mulling over our present distress instead of bending their energies to the progress of tomorrow."

New Treasury Offering Is Heavily Oversubscribed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—Uncle Sam had money literally thrown at him today. Nearly $1,500,000,000 was offered to the treasury in subscriptions for its new securities, although only about $400,000,000 was wanted and the securities bear only 1¾ and 1¾ per cent, the lowest interest rates since the war. Subscriptions for the 1¾ per cent six month treasury certificates exceeded $939,000,000, although the issue was for only $150,000,000; and tenders for the 1¾ per cent one year certificates exceeded $517,000,000, whereas the issue was for $250,000,000.

TWO CHICAGO BANKS PICK NEW PRESIDENTS; SEVERAL VOTE EXTRAS

Chicago is to have two new bank presidents, according to announcements made yesterday. The Old Dearborn State bank announced that Frederick S. Pope will be elected president of the institution at the annual meeting of stockholders next month. He succeeds R. A. Drum, who has resigned as president but will continue as director and member of the executive committee.

John J. Lynch was chosen president of the South Shore State bank, 75th street and Exchange avenue, at a meeting of directors. At the same time the directors voted an extra dividend of 1 per cent on the capital stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent.

New York, Dec. 10.—The bears put on their wartime scenery and held a little Yuletide reunion on the stock exchange today. It got to be quite a roughhouse affair before it was over and the place was left strewn with the litter of price values of all descriptions. The damage averaged 1 to 4 points or so for the active list and was generously distributed among the rails, utilities, merchandise, chemical, motor and specialty shares alike.

Veteran observers professed to see in the party the beginning of the long expected series of bear attacks de-

BOARD OF TRADE DUES CUT FROM $500 TO $300

Board of Trade dues for 1931 have been fixed at $300, or $200 less than the present year. A year ago they were made $400 and a special assessment of $100 added. There has been a popular demand for a reduction of late, as the expenses in the coming year, it is said, will be very much reduced.

Renting of office and store space in the new exchange building has brought in a larger revenue, as around 90 per cent of the rental space is now under lease, a showing that is especially gratifying to the exchange members.

WRIGLEY BRANCH TO ACCUMULATE CANADIAN WHEAT

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—William Wrigley Jr. company, Ltd., a branch of the Chicago company, has decided all money owing it in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta from Dec. 12, 1930, to May 1, 1931, is to be accumulated to purchase wheat for delivery in May, 1931, Col. F. A. Ross, president of the company, stated tonight. The company believes wheat at 65c a bushel is cheap and the company will make money by holding it indefinitely if necessary, Col. Ross said. Announcing the formation of the "Wrigley wheat investment fund to buy and hold one million bushels of Canadian wheat," Col. Ross said the offer was "in no sense a gamble."

GO TO YOUR BANKER. ASK HIM ABOUT THIS INVESTMENT. HE IS YOUR BEST ADVISER

HAVE you said to yourself: I wish I could own some good common stocks. . . . But I don't know how to choose them. . . . I haven't a big enough sum to invest.

Here is a modern method that will help you. It brings to the man or woman with $100 to invest the same expert financial service as the millionaire enjoys. It assumes responsibility for every detail of buying and caring for the stocks, cashing dividend checks, disposing of rights, etc. Income is paid to you twice yearly, May 1 and November 1.

Best of all—this method safeguards even the smallest common stock investment. For it gives you an interest in many stocks instead of in just one or two. The experienced investor knows that diversification is the secret of profitable investment.

Under the Standard American Trust Shares plan, 25 of the finest stocks on the New York Exchange are placed in trust. These stocks represent many industries. Their companies are leaders. Combined, their resources total 20 billion dollars. Any investor may purchase an interest in this trust.

In the past 10 years these stocks have paid their holders an annual average in excess of 11%. Capital has increased four times. Competent authorities believe this record will be duplicated in the next ten years.

The Standard American plan is attracting men of wealth as well as those of moderate means. Several large investors have recently purchased Standard American Trust Shares in amounts exceeding $100,000.

The distribution of Standard American Trust shares is sponsored by Lawrence Stern & Company and The National Republic Company, investment affiliate of The National Bank of the Republic, Chicago. The trustee holding the stocks for your benefit is the Chicago Trust Company.

Learn all details of this plan. A phone call will bring you complete information. Or write for a booklet, "The Modern Method of Common Stock Investment." It gives you the complete story.

URGES UNIFORM MORTGAGE LAW FOR ILLINOIS

D. E. Bridgman Addresses Local Bankers.

BY AL CHASE.

How Illinois can remedy the present archaic condition of its mortgage laws by enacting a model uniform real estate mortgage law was outlined to nearly two hundred bankers and lawyers at a dinner of the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association last night at the Palmer house by Donald E. Bridgman of Minneapolis, father of the law, already partially in force in several states.

"The uniform mortgage act, if adopted, will simplify trust deeds and mortgages and their foreclosure and make clearer and better titles to land, avoid useless trouble and expense, facilitate the flow of money on mortgage loans, and be a great aid in the handling of the enormous loan business, upon which in a large measure prosperity and happiness depend," said Mr. Bridgman.

"We are vitally interested in the reform of our real estate mortgage laws," said Louis K. Boysen, president of the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association and vice president of the First Union Trust and Savings bank, who presided at the dinner. "Like everything else, real estate values have suffered severe depreciation.

Called "Frozen Asset."

"Real estate acquired by a bank is called a 'frozen asset.' There can be no better name for it when you figure how long it takes to secure title by foreclosure under our present Illinois laws. The interest that accumulates on the investment and the costs that pile up in court proceedings add a burden of from 20 to 35 per cent on the original investment, and usually wipes out all margin of security that the banker may have thought he possessed.

"It is, of course, realized by the attorneys who have been working on the problem that we cannot lightly enter into any change of our real estate laws without giving every phase of the problem careful thought. In the chain of events leading to a definite decision it was considered important that we invite the author of the uniform real estate mortgage act to address us on the subject, so that his views might be given careful consideration at the subsequent meetings which will be held by the committee during the next thirty days." It is expected that the attorneys representing the different associations will shortly get together and by common agreement prepare the necessary bill for presentation to the Illinois legislature this winter."

O. K.'d by Bar Association.

The uniform real estate mortgage act, which Mr. Bridgman then described in detail, was finally put out by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in 1927, after the conference had been working on the act for six years. The national body had selected Mr. Bridgman to prepare the original draft. He was assisted by several men of national importance. In addition to being recommended by the national conference for adoption in all the states it has been approved by the American Bar association.

"There is hardly a subject where the laws are more diverse in the different states than in the matter of mortgages, and especially their foreclosure," said Mr. Bridgman. "And yet there are urgent reasons for better and more uniform mortgage laws. A very large portion of all mortgage loans are made across state lines, and it would be a great aid to the vast mortgage business of the country if there were uniform laws."

Quotes Realtors' Body.

Mr. Bridgman quoted the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in a resolution indorsing the uniform mortgage act, as follows: "The act simplifies mortgages and their foreclosure and makes clear titles to real estate. Its general adoption by the states would produce uniformity of law for the large interstate dealings in mortgages in place of the present great diversity of law.

"The act provides a standard simple, short form of mortgage, the long equivalent of which is set forth in the act to give protection to the parties. A standard short form would greatly facilitate and economize the giving, recording, and transfer of mortgages, as proved by the experience of states where it is now used.

"The act provides a simple method of foreclosure by power of sale so regulated as to afford proper protection for all parties, including a redemption period. Foreclosure is made less expensive and more certain as compared with the diverse, cumbersome, and costly foreclosure proceedings now in use generally in the states.

"The lender is given better security, while the borrower is protected, thus greatly aiding the loaning of money on real estate. In the long run the borrower pays for the present useless large expense of foreclosure.

"The act provides statutes of limitations which effectively outlaw old mortgages of record and not extended, and which give good titles after foreclosure, thus aiding greatly in making clear titles to land."

Frederick C. Hack of Winston, Strawn & Shaw and Senator Herbert Hicks spoke briefly on the advantages of a new mortgage law for Illinois.

CHICAGO STOCKS FIGHT WAY BACK AFTER DECLINE

Gleaner Combine Target for Sharpshooters.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Guns were trained on the leading stocks on the Chicago exchange in the late part of yesterday's trading fray, but the damage inflicted was not entirely irreparable, as was proved in the later skirmishes.

Before the market had a chance to steady itself, however, many issues were forced back to price regions hitherto unexplored. Most of the issues fought back part way, but one or two stocks were hard pressed until the final gong ended the trading.

It was believed that the omission of the quarterly dividend by Gleaner Combine had been pretty well discounted in the market prior to the action of directors, but an outpouring of offerings in that issue sent the price reeling down to a new all time low at 5.

Give No Hint of Storm.

The opening transactions in the stock made an eighth below its previous close, gave no hint of the storm which was to break. But as the general market gave convincing evidence of weakness the stock proved a good target for the sharpshooters. The final quotations was a fraction above its low.

Elsewhere in the list the net losses were largely confined within the margin of a point or so. The downward trend was common to all classes of stocks, but with the exception of Gleaner there ere no outstanding sore spots.

Traction securities, which previously were apathetic in the face of announcement of consolidation plank, were more active yesterday. About 1,200 shares of City and Connecting common were exchanged at less than $1 a share and the preferred sold down to 6 on a turnover of 900 shares. Among the senior issues Chicago Railways 5s A and 4s B advanced 1 and 1¼, respectively, but the first 5s sloughed off three points, to 71. Metropolitan West Side Elevated extension 4s were bid up more than 7 points from the last price and Northwest Elevated 5s advanced 2.

Satisfactory Earnings.

In announcing that the directors of Associated Apparel Industries had voted to maintain the regular $4 annual dividend rate, President R. C. Stirton said that earnings of the company for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30 were entirely satisfactory in the light of conditions which have existed during the period.

"While a certified audit has not been completed, the showing of the company for the twelve months' period amply justifies the payment of the dividend and the continuance of the company's policy in this respect," he stated.

Directors of the Greif Brothers Cooperage company voted yesterday to reduce the annual dividend rate on the class B stock from $3.20 to $1.60 through the declaration of a quarterly dividend payment of 40 cents.

Offer Share Exchange.

With the view of simplifying the financial structure, the Associated Telephone and Telegraph company has offered class A stockholders of the National Telephone and Telegraph corporation an opportunity to exchange their holdings for Associated shares. Under the terms National Telephone holders would get one-half share of $8 preferred and one-quarter share of class A stock of Associated Telephone for each share held. The call price of the stock they would receive would be $82.75 as compared with $60 a share for National Telephone A stock.

Exchange governors yesterday approved the listing of $10,000,000 five per cent first mortgage bonds of the British Columbia Telephone company. The company is controlled by Associated Telephone and Telegraph through National Telephone and Telegraph. Proceeds of the bond issue will be used to retire the first mortgage debenture stock and for capital extensions and improvements.

Houston Oil of Texas.

I would like to have some information on Houston Oil. What are their holdings and capitalization? Are they interested in natural gas and in natural gas pipe lines?—H. F. Z.

Houston Oil company of Texas was incorporated in 1901. Its land holdings are located mainly in Texas and Louisiana and cover nearly 1,000,000 acres of oil and gas rights. Timber holdings, once a large part of the company's assets, are now of minor importance. The chief development in recent years has been the sale of natural gas through the wholly owned subsidiary, Houston Pipe Line company. The latter owns 462 miles of pipe line, serving Galveston, Houston, and other Texas communities. The volume of oil sales has remained about the same for several years.

Houston Pipe Line company has a daily capacity of about 110,000,000 cubic feet. About 90 per cent of its supply is sold to large industrial plants. This subsidiary's earnings have increased each year since 1925, except for a slight decrease in 1928. The parent company's profits, however, have fallen off more than enough to offset the larger returns from the natural gas business. This has been due to unprofitable oil operations.

Houston Oil company of Texas follows the policy of charging off dry holes and expired leases to current operations. The company has a well established position in natural gas supply and distribution and extensive holdings which may prove profitable when and if the oil industry can overcome overproduction and other evils that have been afflicting it.

In the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1930, consolidated net income was $1,307,042, equal, after preferred dividends, to $3.62 per share on 249,686 common shares, par $100, against $1,251,630, or $3.40 per share in the corresponding period of 1929. In the September quarter alone earnings were 63 cents per share, against $1.35 per share in the September quarter of 1929.

Both the preferred and common stocks were recently split four for one. The new common shares have a par value of $25.

On June 30, 1930, there was outstanding $8,947,600 of 6 per cent preferred stock and a funded debt of $12,120,000. Surplus was $11,319,935.

Preferred dividends have been regularly paid. No cash disbursements have been reported on the common, although a 10 per cent stock dividend was paid Oct. 17, 1930. The preferred deserves a fairly good rating. The common is speculative.

Skelly Oil.

Will you please give me an opinion on Skelly Oil 5½s, due 1939? I notice the price dropped 5 points.—N. S.

Skelly Oil company twelve year sinking fund 5½ per cent debentures, maturing March 1, 1939, are regarded as somewhat speculative.

CORPORATE DIVIDENDS IN 11 MONTHS EXCEED 1929 PERIOD BY 11%

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 10.—Corporate dividend disbursements in the first eleven months this year exceeded $3,470,000,000, an increase of 11 per cent over the $3,123,700,000 in the corresponding period of last year. Interest payments in the period rose slightly less than 3 per cent to $3,817,300,000, and the total of interest and dividend distributions expanded to $7,287,600,000, an increase of almost 6 per cent.

November cash dividend payments made by domestic corporations totaled $223,175,079, according to the Standard statistics company. Electric light and gas companies again led the major divisions, with a total of $54,622,092, while rails were next with $24,999,539.

The Indiana Harbor Belt railroad has declared an extra dividend of $10 and the regular semi-annual dividend of $5.

Directors of International Superpower corporation declared an extra cash dividend of 10 cents a share, in addition to the regular quarterly cash payment of 25 cents.

Singer Manufacturing company has declared an extra dividend of $2.50 in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $2.50. In the previous quarter a similar extra was declared, while at this time last year an extra of $1.50 was declared.

Directors of the Checker Cab Manufacturing company declared three monthly dividends of 15 cents each, placing the stock on a $1.80 annual basis, against $4.20 previously.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

While soft coal production throughout the country fell off 828,000 net tons, or 8.5 per cent, during the third week in November as compared with the preceding week, the output of Illinois mines showed only a slight decrease. Production in Illinois for the week ended Nov. 22 was estimated at 1,060,000 net tons by the United States bureau of mines. In the previous week the output was 1,064,000 net tons.

Net profit after taxes and charges of the Indiana Limestone company for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1930, will be slightly in excess of that in the previous fiscal year, according to Lawrence H. Whiting, chairman of the board. He said that the outlook for 1931 is good and that the company has just closed a contract involving approximately $1,000,000 for cut stone in the new Mellon institute at Pittsburgh.

Directors of the International Paper and Power company ordered the regular quarterly dividends on the $7 cumulative preferred stock, and the $6 cumulative preferred. This was unexpected good news, for dividends had been paid from surplus during recent quarters.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 7,000 cattle, 48,000 hogs, and 16,000 sheep.

Continued high temperatures for this time of year have narrowed the outlet for meats at leading distributing centers. All classes of live stock, with the exception of a few highly finished steers, were subjected to severe price readjustments on yesterday's trade.

The trend was lower, hogs and lambs leading the way down during the first half of the day, but some medium grades of steers showed the most loss at the close.

The break in hogs carried prices to within 10c of the lowest level of the year, established three weeks ago when the top was at $8.15 and the average at $7.85. Yesterday's top at $8.25 was paid for selected pigs and underweights, the practical top for stronger weights stopping at $8.15, while the general average declined to $7.95.

Armour, Swift and Wilson handled a total of 14,000 head, mostly good grades at $8.00 and slightly below. About 7,000 were left at the close and $1,000 expected at five markets today, against 79,400 the previous Thursday.

December Hogs in Demand.

December contracts sold freely at 10@25c lower prices on yesterday's hog futures market. Although opening sales were highest of the day, the close was slightly above the low spot of the forenoon. December light opened at $8.15 and closed at $8.10.

Seven carloads of mediums for this month's delivery sold at $8.10@8.20, closing at $8.15, against $8.20 at the opening. January contracts were offered at $8.55 and bid $8.35. March light carried bids of $9.00, mediums $8.50 and heavy, $8.25.

Fancy yearling steers eligible to more than $13.25 and the few prime weighty steers selling above $12.00 commanded steady prices on yesterday's unsettled and mostly lower market. Losses of as much as 75c to $1.00 in three days were cited in some sales of medium to good grades toward the finish.

Choice Lambs at $8.25.

Although lamb prices were erratic at the opening, bulk of sales were on a 50c lower basis after the general market had been established, with some medium and heavy stock off 75c near the close. Buyers were in a bearish mood, discriminating against lambs averaging more than 90 lbs. Extreme weights were a drug on the market.

Most good grades of handy weights sold at $8.00, although city butchers paid up to $8.25 for a few of the best selections. Early sales at $8.35@8.75 on speculative account were no criterion of the general market. Aged sheep were weak and lambs 25c lower. Feeders sold steady.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Speculative trading in corn is about double that in wheat. A majority of the local traders are giving corn more attention and sentiment is well divided. Traders who analyze the situation say that corn prices would be about 10c higher were there any good increase in speculative buying. So long as speculative sentiment is inclined to go slow on either side of the market sharp fluctuations are to be expected. Later in the season traders expect that there will be sufficient speculative buying to carry prices above wheat.

"Yields of wheat in southern Cordoba, Argentine, are disappointing. Offerings, however, of new wheat at Rosario are increasing in spite of the unsatisfactory weather, which tends to retard deliveries," says Broomhall. "Good Rosario wheat for January-February shipments is freely offered to England at 71¾c, cif."

EARLY UPTURN OF WHEAT PRICES IS LATER NULLIFIED

Stabilization Corp. Rumor Starts Buying.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Reports that the Stabilization corporation was buying May wheat at a figure above the recently "pegged" figure of 81@81⅛c resulted in a stampede on the part of local professionals and commission houses to take the bull side. There was a lack of offerings until the old crop months had advanced 1⅛@1¼c over the early low, while the July jumped 1⅝c over the inside figure as shorts rushed to cover. Those who sold offers started to protect themselves.

Trade broadened materially, but selling in volume was encountered on the upturn and with the late weakness in corn the wheat market retraced its steps and finished within a fraction of the bottom, with prices ¼c higher to ⅛c lower. Old December closed at 77¼@77⅜c; March, 79¼c; May, 81¼c to 81⅛@81¾c, and July at 73⅛@73⅜c.

While it was understood that the farm board agency bought some futures above the recent figures, there was no evidence that the basis was to be maintained, although messages from Minneapolis claimed that the "pegged" price there had been lifted around ¼c to 75¼c for the May. Despite the reaction at Chicago, the northwestern market gained ⅞@1c for the day.

Wheat Spread Narrows.

It was the gossip of the wheat trade that the advance in the farm board agency's buying figure at Minneapolis was due to the fact the discount under Chicago was regarded as too wide, and had it been maintained it might have resulted in a movement of spring wheat from the northwest to the local market from points where the freight rates were favorable for shipments. Yesterday's advance, however, corrected this condition and the Minneapolis-Chicago May spread at the last was 5⅜c, against 6⅛c on Tuesday.

Weakness in the stock market in New York had considerable influence on all the grain markets toward the last, serving to unsettle the confidence of holders. Winnipeg wheat dropped sharply and finished 1@1⅛c lower with some spreading underway with Chicago. Buenos Aires was off 1⅛@1⅜c for the day despite unfavorable weather and threshing returns. Cables from Europe reported increased pressure to sell new grain, January and February being quoted at 71¾c c. i. f. Liverpool finished unchanged with a limited inquiry for cash wheat.

Corn Market Erratic.

Corn prices fluctuated in a most erratic manner. Local operators sold early, with buying against bids checking the decline. Later an oversold condition was disclosed and prices ran up around 2c from the inside figures when wheat started upward with shorts covering on the way up and sellers of offers were forced to protect themselves. Houses with eastern connections sold long corn freely on the bulge, as did holders of orders, and there was limited support when the market turned. Many of the sellers of offers who bought on the bulge started to go out of their lines on the way down. Prices dropped 2⅛@3c from the top and into the bids. The finish was about the bottom with net losses of 1⅝@2¼c, old December being 72¾c at the last with March, 75¼c; May, 77⅜@77½c, and July, 75⅝@78¾c.

Reports that a cargo of Argentine corn had been sold for May delivery at Montreal at equal to 53c per bu attracted some attention early, but this was offset later by the development of a better domestic shipping demand with local handlers selling 155,000 bu. Kansas City reported an active demand with sales made in all directions, including some to go to Texas.

Commission houses as a whole are disposed to favor trading in corn to the exclusion of wheat, but the action of the market suggested a lack of a large outside interest, although the latter shows signs of increasing. Buenos Aires was 1@1½c lower at the close.

Oats Weaken with Corn.

Action of the oats market was a reflection of that of corn, with prices having a range of 1⅞@1¾c for the day. The finish was about the bottom with net losses of ¾c, old December being 34¾c and May 37c at the last. A cargo of 110,000 bu corn and 160,000 bu oats was loaded at Chicago yesterday for shipment to Georgian Bay and will be the last boat of the season to clear for the east.

Buying of rye against sales of corn by spreaders gave the former fair strength early, but the market weakened later with other grains and closed ⅞@1⅞c lower with July leading. December finished at 47¾c; May, 48c, and July, 45¼c. It is understood that there is some December rye held as a hedge against shipping sales, and a delivery is wanted.

EGGS AT NEW RECORD LOW

Another sharp break came in the butter and egg futures markets on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, eggs falling again to record low levels. December eggs sold down to 15¼c while January slid to 14c. Closing trades were 1@1¾c lower. Butter was influenced by a strongly bearish report on production, the Land o' Lakes association recording a 10 per cent increase in the make compared to last month. Also the four markets reported 104,000 lbs less butter out than a year ago. The market closed ¾@1¼c lower. Sales: Butter, 177 cars; eggs, 142 cars. Receipts: Butter, 3,790 tubs; eggs, 4,986 cases. LIQUIDATION IN LARD

Trading in lard increased with a lower level of values yesterday. Commission house holders were good sellers as were also some of the packers. Buying was said to be of an investment character. Selling by New York holders of December, combined with the late break in corn and hogs, carried prices for lard futures down to a close 15c to 20c lower on distant deliveries, with December off 30c, and the close was around the bottom. Liverpool lard was 3d to 6d lower. Exports were 212,350 lbs. Cash trade was slow. Bellies were off 5c on January and 22½c on May. Hog receipts exceeded the previous week, but were below last year's.
